PREFACE TO VOL. XLIII

Following is a summary of the documents contained in the present volume:

XCIV. Le Jeune writes (March, 1657) a short business letter to the hospital superior at Quebec. He refers to certain accounts and bills, some of which he has settled; and states that he has received certain alms for the Quebec convent. He also announces that more nuns are going thither from the Dieppe house.

XCV. The Journal des Jésuites for 1657 is written by Jean de Quen; it is much more full than in the years immediately preceding, especially in recording church ceremonies. In January, De Charny, the acting governor, despatches two Frenchmen to Onondaga; but they cannot go beyond Montreal, as they have no guide and the roads are bad. Services in the large church are begun March 31. The superior receives (April 3) the abjuration of a young man, presumably a Huguenot. A week later, he signs a petition, made by the carpenters of the town, for the establishment of the brotherhood of Ste. Anne. As soon as warm weather approaches, Onondaga Indians commit various hostile acts, notwithstanding the ostensible peace with that tribe. Jean Bourdon sets out, May 2, for his journey to find the North Sea. On the sixth, several Onondaga bands are prowling about Quebec; councils are held between these and the French with their allies. All the speeches of the Onondagas "amounted to nothing,—meræ ambages, meræ tenæbra." During the negotiations, an Onondaga is accidentally wounded by a Frenchman. Complaint of this is made; and Father le Moyne "applies to the wounded man a plaster, in the shape of a porcelain collar." The Onondagas return to their own country on the 15th, with three Huron ambassadors; on the way, the Hurons are prevented by the Mohawks from completing their journey. The first French vessel comes, this year, on May 27. The next day, a Mohawk band come to Quebec, to carry away the Hurons to their country,—for which purpose more councils are held. The French learn that the Mohawks have intrigued between the Hurons and Onondagas, to induce the former to go to the Mohawk country instead of Onondaga. The French try to persuade the Mohawks to delay this project until the arrival of the new governor, D'Argenson.

On the first day of June, Le Mercier arrives from Onondaga; he brings good news from its mission there. The next day, the Mohawks carry away a number of Huron women and children. On the thirteenth, the chapel and all the other buildings at Sillery are destroyed by fire. Three days later, one of the Huron tribes is embarked on the French shallops, to go to live at Onondaga; and, later, Le Mercier again goes thither.

A party of French and Algonkins, who had gone in April to trade with the Poissons-blancs, or Attikamègues, return to Quebec, July 15, laden with pelttries. On the twenty-ninth occurs a notable arrival—that of the Abbé de Queylus and three Sulpi-tian priests. Two weeks later, another Mohawk band come to Quebec, and carry away more of the Hurons to the Iroquois land. August 11, Bourdon returns from his voyage of exploration, which has proved fruitless, owing to the hostility of the Northern savages. On the twentieth, a French vessel arrives, whose captain brings information that the new governor, D'Argenson, had embarked on his vessel, but, long delayed by unfavorable weather, had returned to France. Le Moyne again sets out for the Mohawk country.

The curacy at Quebec is assumed by the Sulpitian abbé de Queylus, September 12; and, soon afterward, he delivers a sermon against the Jesuits. About this time, De Charny (temporary governor in place of his father, De Lauson) returns to France; D'Ailleboust takes his place until D'Argenson shall arrive. The new governor complains to the Jesuit superior of the latter's want of confidence in him regarding affairs at Onondaga, especially because the presents sent thence to Onontio have not yet been delivered to him. These are accordingly sent to D'Ailleboust by the superior. Unfortunately, another grievance arises between them. Letters from the Jesuits, criticising the governor and De Queylus, fall into the hands of the latter, who are greatly offended thereat. On the following Sunday, the abbé delivers "a satirical discourse" aimed at the Jesuits.

Various attacks by the Iroquois, upon both the French and their allies, are recorded in the closing months of the year. D'Ailleboust adopts more vigorous measures than his predecessors had taken; he has all the Iroquois who are at the settlements arrested and put in irons, and then sends two of them back to their own country, to inform their tribesmen that the French now hold hostages of theirs, for the murders which they have committed.

A Huron girl of fifteen years dies (Nov. 3) at the hospital, who has become a nun, taking the veil in her last hours. Many of the Algonkins come down to the French settlements, and D'Ailleboust invites them to bring others of their number, to spend the winter at Quebec.

Another chapter in the Sulpitian controversy is a summons to appear in court, in re the petition of De Queylus that the Jesuits be compelled to surrender their house for his use, or else refund the 6,000 livres given in 1645, by the habitants, for the erection of a clergy-house. They are also embarrassed by another claim, for money due one of the habitants; this man dies, a fortnight later. A dispute arises between the members of the council of Quebec and those of the court of justice, as to precedence in the church procession and in the reception of the blessed bread.

An experiment in regulating the liquor traffic is tried at Three Rivers. De la Poterie, a seignior there, desiring to repress the disorders consequent upon the ordinary sale of liquor to the Indians, opens a tavern, where wine is sold to them at the rate of "two pots for a winter beaver, and one for a summer beaver." The savages do not amend their conduct, and complaints are made against the tavern. The seignior consults with D'Ailleboust, who decides that the tavern must be closed. "Nevertheless, it was continued."

XCVI. In this volume are presented Chaps. i.–xvi. of the Relation of 1656–57; the remainder will appear in Vol. XLIV. It is prefaced by a short letter to the provincial from Le Jeune, procurator in France for the Canadian missions. He explains that misfortune has again befallen the Relation (this year, written by De Quen); the ship by which it was sent was "captured by the Spaniards, and all the letters on board were thrown into the Sea." Le Jeune therefore compiles a report of the mission work, from some letters recovered from this disaster, and some others which arrived in France too late for the Relation published last year.

The burden of this year's report is the work newly begun among the Iroquois tribes. Late in 1655, an embassy from the Senecas arrives at Quebec, desiring to form an alliance with the French. They are cordially received, and set out for their own country; but they are slain, not far above Montreal, evidently by some of the Mohawks, who are jealous of any friendship between the French and tribes other than their own. Another embassy comes in January, 1656, at the head of whom is a chief of high standing; "whose heart was entirely French, and who was already won over to the faith;" they ask for Christian teachers to live among them. Again the Mohawks thwart their desire, by killing this chief while he is on a hunting expedition.

Late in April, 1656, a large Mohawk band come to attack the Hurons. They are delayed at Three Rivers by parleys and presents, until word of the affair can be sent to Quebec. Father le Moyne, who is experienced in dealing with the Iroquois, immediately goes to meet the Mohawks, and after listening to his arguments, they agree to abandon their design against the Hurons, and their army ostensibly disperses. A little later, these treacherous savages, lurking in the woods, fall upon the Onondagas who are escorting the French to their country; but they pretend that this attack was due to a mistake on their part. Again dissembling, these same Mohawks slyly return down the river to Quebec, and, at early morning, fall unexpectedly upon the Hurons of the colony on Orléans Island, killing or capturing many. Some of these captives are burned to death; another, who escapes after being tormented, recounts the sad tale at Quebec. Among the Huron prisoners are many young women, and several of the most fervent Christians, "the flower of the Huron congregation;" they are carried away in the very sight of Quebec, and the French are too weak to prevent this seizure of their allies and dependents. They are held by the Iroquois, for several days, in an encampment near Three Rivers, where one of the Jesuits visits them several times; "never have they been more fervent or bold in manifesting their devotion, which, in many, would appear extraordinary even in a cloister."

The journey of the Jesuits and French soldiers to Onondaga is described at length, in the journal kept by one of the party, doubtless Father Dablon. This is preceded by a rehearsal of the considerations which induced the missionaries to go thither, despite their long experience of Iroquois treachery and cruelty. A captive Huron, escaped from the Onondagas, tells at Quebec their plot to massacre all the French and Hurons, after they shall have lured these into the Iroquois country. The Mohawks, although pretending to be at peace with the French, may become hostile at any moment, owing to their wild jealousy of the Onondagas, and their desire to compel the latter to trade with them and the Dutch, instead of the French. These dangers, with the difficulties and expenses of the enterprise, make the Fathers hesitate; but not for long. Their decision to make the effort is based not only upon their desire to convert the heathen, but upon their perception that it is necessary to pacify the Iroquois at this critical time, lest these begin—as they have already threatened—a war of extermination against the French and their allies. Accordingly, Le Mercier takes with him on this errand Fathers Ménard, Dablon, and Frémín, and two brethren; they are accompanied by some forty Frenchmen. While traveling through the wilderness east of Lake Ontario, they encounter the Huron captive before mentioned, who had escaped from the tortures of the Mohawks; they aid him, and give him a canoe with which to reach Montreal. Their provisions being consumed, they suffer from hunger, but having sent ahead a courier to Onondaga, relief is despatched thence. Before this comes, however, all but five of their savage escort have deserted them. At last, thirty-four days after leaving Montreal, they reach (July 11) the place appointed for the mission, on the shore of Onondaga Lake. The writer mentions some notable characteristics of this locality,—the salt springs, the vast flocks of wild pigeons, and the numerous rattlesnakes. The Indians eat these snakes, and find them as well flavored as eels. The spot chosen by the Fathers is not infested by these reptiles, which haunt the vicinity of the salt springs.

At the spot chosen for their residence, they find awaiting them a great crowd of savages, who give them cordial welcome. After a little rest, the French erect cabins for their dwellings, and a fortification for the soldiers. They visit the chief village of the tribe, where they are flattered, caressed, and feasted to the utmost. Envoys from the other Iroquois tribes are attending a great council at Onondaga; and the Fathers devote themselves to conciliating and winning these men.

In this council, Le Mercier is chosen arbiter of the difficulty between the Senecas and Mohawks. The Fathers adapt themselves to the customs of the tribes, and make both speeches and presents in all important matters; these, with Chaumonot's fluency in their language, delight the Iroquois. Having won their approval and good will, he preaches to them the gospel, with great eloquence and power. The Mohawks claim to be most friendly to the French; but the latter are warned by their hosts not to trust the Mohawks, who are deceitful and treacherous.

The Fathers build a chapel at Onondaga, and a residence on the shore of the lake, which latter they call Ste. Marie of Gannentaa. They preach, teach, and baptize, at every opportunity, while the Frenchmen who have come with them are erecting the buildings. All this is done in the heat of midsummer, with insufficient food and lodging, and many other privations. They suffer from the sudden change of climate, and the harassing attacks of mosquitoes, both day and night. The result is, that the entire party become ill, "with no other succor than that of Heaven." This help is theirs, however; for God sends them abundance of game and fish, and the Indians bring them fresh vegetables. In consequence, they soon recover health. Soon afterward, Ménard and two Frenchmen are sent to the Cayugas, at the urgent request of that tribe; and Chaumonot proceeds to the Senecas, to begin, as the Fathers hope, a mission among those people.

It is apparently a part of De Quen's report which proceeds to describe the manner in which part of the Hurons were carried away from Orléans Island by the Iroquois, in the spring of 1657. The Bear clan go with the Mohawks; that of the Rock, with the Onondagas; while the "nation of the Cord," as they are known to the French, refuse to leave Quebec. An account is given also of Le Moyne's second voyage to the Mohawks, on an errand partly political, partly evangelistic.

At Sillery, a great misfortune has befallen the infant church. In June, 1657, fire destroys there the Jesuit residence, the chapel, and some of the dwellings. The Fathers desire to rebuild this mission; but they have not means to do so unless they receive aid therefor. Various incidents of piety and virtue among the Sillery neophytes are related.

A letter from one of the Fathers on Orléans Island gives an account of the Huron colony before its removal thence,—consisting mainly of instances showing the fidelity and devotion of those converts. One of them "manifested a zeal which I have never observed in any Savage, in informing me of faults in the members of the Congregation, without sparing his own relatives; this greatly assisted me in applying a remedy." The Congregation ("of our Lady") numbers eighty members, and is highly useful in training the Indian disciples in piety and morality.

The Iroquois country, its physical characteristics, and resources, are described. The trees and fruits of the country are mentioned. The springs of salt, sulphur, and petroleum excite the wonder of the French visitors to that region,—as also do the fertility of the soil, and the abundance of fish in the streams and lakes. The five Iroquois tribes who dwell in that land are characterized. Their ferocity and cruelty are extreme, and, in their thirst for blood, they have so devoted themselves to war that their own losses are enormous; "they have so depopulated their own Villages that these now contain more Foreigners than natives of the country." The Senecas comprise people from as many as eleven different tribes. Some account is given of the Iroquois customs in marriage, sickness, mourning, and burial; their domestic relations; their superstitions, especially as connected with dreams; etc. Their hospitality, and kindness to their own poor, are highly praised. They show the utmost kindness to the Frenchmen who have settled at Onondaga, and Le Mercier has been adopted by the leading chief there. The Senecas offer an excellent and advantageous residence for the "black robes," if they will live among them.

The Iroquois mission indicates great promise of success. "More Iroquois have become Christians in two months than there were Hurons converted in several years. ... Their fervor would cause this nascent Church to be taken for a Church already formed and established for many years,—nay, for several centuries." Nevertheless, the labors of the missionaries are hindered by the superstition and vice of the people; and the usual slanders against the Fathers and their religious practices are repeated in this new field. Many incidents are related of their experiences in preaching the gospel, especially at Onondaga, where the most interest and fervor are manifest. An earnest appeal is made to Christians in France, to contribute funds for the redemption of the Christian captives (largely Huron) who are held in slavery by the Iroquois. The mission begun by Chaumonot and Ménard among the Cayugas is described, in a letter written by Ménard. At first they are coldly received; but the chiefs are friendly, and soon a little group of converts is gathered; many others bring their children for baptism. Ménard returns to Onondaga after a few months; but at the urgent request of the Cayugas, he soon goes back to them, and his labors meet with great success.

My Reverend Mother,

Jesus be your salvation. Here is the summary of a longer Letter that I wrote to you.

I have forwarded to monsieur Grignon 800 livres in settlement of your account; after having all your Orders, I will forward what money I have remaining, to your sisters of Dieppe,—both for your account and for the passage-money of the sisters whom they are sending you.

I have informed Madame d'eguillon about all your affairs. I have shown her your bill, and the accounts that I send you; you will remain Accountable unless she provide for them.

You do well to have your money received, next year and in subsequent years, by your sisters at Paris, and to address your Orders to them; but observe in regard to these Orders what I have written to Father Richard. My dear mother, it is best to address your little account to your good mothers; they are well disposed to you. I will give them the alms which are sent to me for you.

I have not heard mention of Sans soucy; I know not where he is. Father Lyonne is going to miskou. He told me that he would write to the fathers at Kebec. I have assured Jaques cottret of the satis-

Biul dit le suisse sur la graue vis a vis de son logis. Il tira vn pierrier dessus les Onontae-ronons sans Effet. Ils tuerent encor vne truie pleine appartenante au mesme.

Le mesme Iour le P le Moine alla a Sillery & des 8 Onontaeeronons qui y estoient en ame-na trois en Nostre maison de quebec pour parler aux Hurons Et Alguonquins. Cela fit bien du bruit. Il y auoit 40 Onontaeeronons Cabanez en 4 cabanes vis a vis de Sillery de l autre bord de la riuiere Iean peltier les fut voir. item dix autres qui entrerent dans la maison de Mr thomas hayot sur le bord de la Riuiere. item quelques autres qui a 2 heures de nuict furent a Monceaux pour entrer dans la Maison. Vn francois leur tira vn coup de fusil pour leur faire peur, ils s'enfuirent.

L onontageronon parla le premier, Et fit 6 presens de porcelaine Enfilee qui disoient tous le mesme, scauoir Ie quitte ma hache Ie suis ton frere toy francois. toy Alguonquin toy huron qui comprend trois nations. Et a L Agnierono-non il dit Ie ne fay rien en Cachette, Tu diras bivil, called "the swiss," on the strand, opposite his dwelling. He fired a swivel-gun at the Onontaeronons, but without Effect. They also killed a sow with farrow, belonging to the same man.

On the same Day, Father le Moine went to Sillery; and, of the 8 Onontaeronons who were there, he brought three to Our house at Quebec, to talk with the Hurons and Algonquins. That created a great stir. There were 40 Onontaeronons Lodged in 4 cabins opposite Sillery, on the other shore of the river; Jean Peltier went to see them. Item, ten others, who entered Monsieur Thomas Hayot's house, on the shore of the River. Item, some others, who, at 2 o'clock at night, were at Monceaux, to enter the House. A Frenchman fired a gun at them, to frighten them, and they fled.

7. A Council was held in our hall to hear the Onontageronon, And to learn from his lips what he came to do here; all that he said amounted to nothing,— _Mēn ambages, Mēn tenebraw_. This assembly was composed of Onontageronons, Agnierons, hurons, Algonquins, Montagnais, and French. Monsieur Charni was present.

The onontageronon spoke first, And made 6 presents of porcelain Beads, which all said the same thing, to wit: "I throw away my hatchet; I am thy brother, thou Frenchman, thou Algonquin, and thou Huron, who comprisest three nations." And to The Agnieronon he said: "I do nothing in Secret.
Incontinent après Et sur le Chant l'Anieronon fit six présents aussi en porcelaine enfilée, qui Diisoient tous le mesme. Au francois a l'Alguonquin aux trois Nations huronnes je me resiouis de ce que vous receuez bien mon frere aîné le Onontageronon. Et a l'onontageronon je me resiouis de ce que tu portes la paix partout.

Le soir du mesme fut faite vne seconde assemblee en mesme Lieu et des mesmes personnes, ou chaque nation respondit 1o aux présens de l'Onontageronon 2o de L'Agnieronon. Le francois parla le 1er a l'onontageronon, et luy dit par vne brasse de porcelaine garde ta parole ne reprend plus ta hache contre le huron. 2 le huron dit voila qui est bien que tu viens visiter tes Amis et que tu as iettè ta hache. 3o L'Alguonquin dit nous sommes freres de tout temps je tiens ma parole aussi bien que le francois.

Le francois Respondit a l'Agnieronon voila qui est bien que vous estes contens tous deux toy Agnier. et toy Onontager. il ne tiendra qu'a vous que la terre ne soit vnie.

10 Iour de Lascention. le P le Moine estant a Sillery tint Conseil avec Le huron et L'Onontageronon. scauoir si le huron se donne-roit a lonontageronon. le Conseil fut troublè par vne Nouuelle, qu'on apporta qu'vn Onontageron auoit estè blessè d'vn coup de fusil a Thou shalt tell thy people in thy country what thou hast seen me do.'

Immediately thereupon, after the Song, the Anieronon also made six presents of porcelain beads, which all said the same thing. To the frenchman, to the algouonquin, to the three huron Nations: "I rejoice that you kindly receive my elder brother, the Onontageronon." And to the onontageronon: "I rejoice that thou dost carry peace everywhere."

On the evening of the same day, a second assembly was held at the same Place and by the same persons, at which each nation responded, in the 1st place, to the presents of the Onontageronon; and, in the 2nd place, to those of The Agnieronon. The frenchman spoke 1st to the onontageronon, and said to him, with a brasse of porcelain beads: "Keep thy word; do not again take up thy hatchet against the huron." 2nd: The huron said: "It is well that thou comest to visit thy Friends, and that thou hast thrown away thy hatchet." 3rd: The Alguonquin said: "We are brothers from all time; I keep my word, as well as the frenchman."

The frenchman Answered the Agnieronon: "It is well that you are both content,—thou, Agnieronon, and thou, Onontageronon. It will depend only on you that the land be united."

10, Ascension Day. Father le Moine, being at Sillery, held a Council with The huron and The Onontageronon, to wit: whether the huron should give himself to the onontage-la cuisse Legerement par Mr le Mire qui Voulloit reprimer L insolence dudit Onontageronon et de ses compagnons qui faisoient les Insolens & les larrons dans sa maison.

Le Capitaine fit ses plaintes, le P. le moine mit vne emplastre d’vn collier de porcelaine au blessè. le Capitaine aussy fit vn present au francois mescontent de la Jeunesse d’Onontage. Item vn second presen pour payer les vaches tuees par la Jeunesse. Enfin vn 3e present pour paier le francois d’eslargir ses bras et laisser aller tous les hurons qui Vousdroient aller a Onontage. Puis en Cachette ledit Capitaine fit vn present d’vn beau Collier au huron de la nation d’Arendageronon pour l’attirer a Onontage. Le present au lieu d estre cache fut produit par le huron a quebec Le soir du Iour qu’il retourna du Conseil fait a sillery, dans Lassemblee des Alguonquins Et hurons.

11 Au matin le huron respondit a ce collier d Onontageronon par deux presens par La bouche de Atsenha dit le plat.

Le mesme Iour 11. L alguonquin fit 5 presens au huron de 10 peaux d orignac 1o. Ie te remets La teste que l agnieron t’a souuent couppee. 2 Ie t’essuie tes larmes. 3 ie te donne vn breuugage. 4 Nous sommes freres risquons Ensemble tousiours. 5 Ne t en va pas sitost a Agnie ny a Onontage, attends encor vn peu ne part point que tu n’aye ronon. The Council was disturbed by the News that an Onontageronon had been Slightly wounded by a gunshot in the thigh, by Monsieur le Mire, who Wished to repress The insolence of the said Onontageronon and of his companions, who were acting Insolently and as thieves in his house.

The Captain made his complaints. Father le moine applied a plaster, in the shape of a porcelain collar, upon the wounded man. The Captain likewise made a present to the frenchman, who was dissatisfied with the Youth of Onontage. Item, a second present, to pay for the cows killed by the Young men. Finally, a 3rd present, to pay the frenchman to open his arms wide, and release all the hurons who Might wish to go to Onontage. Then, in Secret, the Captain made a present of a fine Collar to the huron of the nation of Arendageronon, in order to attract him to Onontage. The present, instead of being concealed, was produced by the huron at quebec, on The evening of the Day when he returned from the Council held at sillery, in The assembly of the Algonquins And hurons.

11. In the morning, the huron responded to this collar of the Onontageronon with two presents, through The mouth of Atsenha, called le plat ['the dish'].

On the same Day, the 11th, The algonquin made 5 presents to the huron, of 10 moose-skins. 1st: "I restore to thee The head which the agnieronon has often cut off for thee." 2nd: "I wipe away thy tears." 3rd:

2. The Onontageronons arrive at Eustache's Cabin, and two of them at Quebec. After having been welcomed with 3 Presents in the name of our 3 nations, and having promised that the next morning they would speak, they returned at the appointed time, saying that they had no Presents. The same day, 2 others came back to say that all, as many as they were, wished to come to Kebec. The Algonquins and Hurons represented to them that, if any one of them should become drunk, some disagreeable accident to the Onontageronons was to be feared; that the French would bind and plunder the Young Onontageronons who should steal the pumpkins, as they do with the Algonquins and the Hurons; finally, that the Algonquin Ambassador would be very much grieved if any of them were ill-treated here. Thereupon, the Onontageronons grew vexed, saying that they would not come at all, but would, on the morrow, cross the River, and, on the following day, go up again. In fact, the next day, they returned to their Spring fort, near Master Nicolas. But finally, upon second thought, they commissioned 4 of their men to come and talk with the Hurons especially, saying that they had already parleyed with the Algonquins the past summer at 3 Rivers. We gave them 8 or 10 sacks of corn.

6. The Onontageronons make special Presents to the Hurons, of 3 collars, besides some strings of Porcelain,—with the result that they invite the latter to join their band, on d'vn Pere, et de Kahik'yan Ambassadeur Algô-quin, qui doibt aller avec eux a Onôtaghé.

9. Our brother Nicolas fauconier made his final vows in our Chapel, the father Superior saying the Mass.

12. At 8 o’clock in the evening, Father Poncet, and Messieurs The abbé and d’alliboust, returned from Montreal. The sieur abbé took charge of the Curacy.

18. Captain Poulet’s vessel sailed from Quebec with Monsieur Charni, Father Poncet, and our brother Ambroise Cauvet.

23. The abbé delivered a sermon against us.

OCTOBER.

2. I went to see Monsieur The abbé, in order to testify to him the desire for peace.

3. He paid me a visit for the same purpose.

6. Boquet arrived in the evening with 8 frenchmen, from onontage, without savages, and brought us news of the murder committed on the 3rd Day of August, 4 Days’ journey above Montreal, by the Onontageronons Upon the Hurons of Quebec, who were going up with Father Ragueneau to Onontagè.

9. It snows the whole morning.

15. The last vessel sailed from Quebec, and carried away Our brother pierre.

16. A shallop arrived from 3 Rivers, which brought us the news that for 8 days a band of 10 Onontageronons or Oneiotchronons had geronons ou Oneiotechronons, qui rodoient vers les trois Rivieres et quebec pour tuer des Alguonquins et hurons et qu'au cap a labre ils auoient pillé 2. francois qui estoient a la chasse.

20. At 6 o'clock in the morning, Monsieur Lepinè arrived from Tadoussac.

Monsieur d'alliboust, governor, complains of me for the little confidence which I have in him, saying that I do not impart to him the matters which concern the mission of Onontage; and 1st, that I did not convey to him the 2 presents which Father Ragueneau had sent to me from Onontage. These presents were addressed to Onontio, and offered by the Onontageronons, who said: "Onontio, we do not approve the murder committed upon the Hurons by our Youth, on the way. Onontio, we pay for the damage which our Youth have done to the French settlements through robberies and killing the cattle." Father druillettes conveyed on my behalf the 2 Collars to Monsieur d'alleboust, 2 Days after.

21. Monsieur the Governor held an assembly of the habitans, at which it was resolved, by common consent of all the habitans and of the Sieur Governor, that the French should defend themselves against the Insolence of both the upper and lower Iroquois; And that no one should be allowed to commit a Theft or robbery or any other act of hostility, under pretext of peace.

Mercier, and the 3rd from father pijart,—all three addressed to Monsieur Lambert Closse, who received them on the Way from Montreal to quebec,—happened to fall into the hands of Madame d’allebouost. After Sieur lambert had read them, he laid them on the table at the fort of quebec, having gone thither to visit Monsieur the Governor and madame the wife of the Governor. The latter took possession of them, and then showed them to Monsieur The Governor and to Monsieur The abbé, who was greatly piqued by them, because in the 2 last there were cutting words against him. Among other things, in the one from father pijart, it was stated that this sieur is of a violent temper, and that we are carrying on a war more annoying than that of the Iroquois.

21, Sunday. Monsieur The Abbé said, upon preaching his sermon: "Messieurs, before saying a word to you concerning the gospel, I will give you A piece of advice. Some persons come to church, not to apply to themselves what they hear, but to criticise it and explain my Intentions. It Would be better for them to stay at home, and be Abed, with a good quartan fever." Then he began the explanation of The gospel, which was, Cujus est Imago? wherein the pharisees try to surprise Our Lord in his words. He thus made them speak: "Who, then, is this Jesus, this Newcomer, who makes himself beloved by the populace, who tries to discredit us? For thirty or 40 years, we have governed the

24. At 4 o'clock in the evening, news arrived from three Rivers that 9 Algonquins have gone to war against both the lower and the upper Iroquois, having learned that the Iroquois were the first to come thither; that two canoes of the latter had been seen in lake St. Pierre, and An Encampment on the three Rivers; and that some Iroquois have plundered two Frenchmen at l'arbre a la Croix.

24. Monsieur the governor assembled at the fort the Algonquins And Hurons, in order to present to Them the 2 collars sent from Onontage by Father Ragueneau. These 2 collars said: 1st, that the Elders had not had a hand in the treachery committed against the Hurons; 2nd, that they were intended to pay for the damages and the wrongs which the Youth of Onontage had done to the French in their settlements.

The savages asked how they should Conduct themselves toward the upper and lower Iroquois. The answer was: 1st, that they would be free to defend themselves or to attack first; that it would, nevertheless, be proper for them not to make their attacks near our settlements. 2nd, that the French will Defend the Hurons And Algonquins within sight of the French houses. 3rd, that the French will not be the first to strike the blow, and will not

25. We learned from two frenchmen, at 10 o'clock in the evening, that the Agnieronons were in force, and that they were making a fort at cap rouge. (That was found false.)

28. Monsieur The abbé, after having published the monitory on three several sundays, Hurled excommunication, at high mass, against Those who had burned The house of Monsieur denis.

NOVEMBER.

1. In the morning, A canoe arrived at quebec from Montreal, which brought the news that The Onontageronons or other savages had killed three frenchmen,—to wit, Monsieur Nicolas godet, St. pere, And his servant.\textsuperscript{12} This was on the 25th of october.

3. Genevieve, a huron, died at the hospital, at 6 o'clock in the evening. Monsieur The abbé had given her the Viaticum, on all saints' day, as also the garb of Religion. On all souls' Day, he administered extreme unc tion; And, a little before dying, she took the vows of Religion, as she had desired. She

A 9 heures du soir le sieur la Meslee amena de trois Riuieres 5 Agnieronous a Mr le Gouverneur pour scouoir d eux les meurtriers des trois francois tuez a montreal. ces 5 agnieronons furent pris avec 6 autres agnieronons par les francois des trois Riuieres qui les obligèrent tout par finesse d'entrer dans le bourg & là s'en saisirent vn desquels se defendant Contre Mr le barbier qui se trouuoit trop foible pour larrester mit La main a lepee & frappa le dit Agnieronon de la pointe qui ne fit qu'effleurer la peau. les 5 cy dessus sont logez chez Mr Cousture & ont les fers aux pieds deux a deux.

3 En mesme temps nous aprismes, que les alguonquins 9 en Nombre qui estoient allez en guerre contre les Onontageronons vers les isles de Richelieu, estoient de retour avec vne Cheuelure d'Onontageronon.

4 a 7. heures du matin Mr d Alliboust Gouverneur me donna aduis de ceste Nouuelle: me dit qu il estoit d'aduis d'Enuoyer 2 agnieronons des 11 prisoniers en leur pais pour aduertir leurs gens de leur detention et du subiet qui estoit du meurtre de 3 francois par les sauvages Et pour scouoir distinctement les meurtriers. Sur les 11 heures du matin il assembla les principaux habitans (aucun de nos peres ny fut appellè non plus was only 15 years old. She was buried the next day, Sunday, at the hospital, by Monsieur The abbé.

At 9 o'clock in the evening, sieur la Meslee brought 5 Agnieronons from three Rivers to Monsieur the Governor, in order to learn from them who were the murderers of the three frenchmen killed at Montreal. These 5 agnieronons, with 6 other agnieronons, were taken by the french of three Rivers, who had obliged them all by subtlety to enter the village, and seized them there. One of them defended himself Against Monsieur le barbier, who, finding himself not strong enough to stop him, laid hold of his sword and struck the said Agnieronon with the point, which merely grazed the skin. The 5 mentioned above are lodged with Monsieur Couston, and are shackled together, two by two.

3. At the same time, we learned that the alguonquins, 9 in Number, who had gone to war against the Onontageronons, toward the islands of Richelieu, had returned with an Onontageronon Scalp.

4. At 7 o'clock in the morning, Monsieur d'Alliboust, Governor, gave me word of this News. He told me that he was of opinion that 2 agnieronons of the 11 prisoners should be Sent into their country, to warn their people of their detention and of the cause of it,—which was the murder of 3 frenchmen by the savages,—And to learn definitely who were the murderers. About 11 o'clock in the morning, he assembled the principal habitans qu’aux autres assemblees) leur exposa le subjet de leur assemblee. La Conclusion fut qu’il failloit enuoyer deux Agnieronons &c. Vt Supra

5 6. 7. Mr le gouuerneur fait scauoir au fort aux sauuages le dessein qu’il a pris d enuoyer a agnièe deux des prisoniers pour faire entendre a leur gens la cause de l’emprisonement de leur Compagnons les sauuages approuuent ce dessein. 6. on mene deux prisoniers Chez nous, on leur dit qu’on les enuoye a Agnie. 7 le lendemain Ils partirent pour les trois Riuieres dans vne chalouppe.

17 Arriua de trois Riuieres vne chalouppe pleine de sauuages des terres qui apportent nouvelle que leur gens y sont arriuez. Ils venoient scauoir Ce qui se passoit a quebec.

19 Mr le gouuerneur prend dessein avec les sauuages de les enuoyer querir pour venir hyuerner a quebec.

A Midy vn canot tourna deuant quebec vn des deux francois qui estoit dedans fut noyë.

20 nous aprismes par lettres des trois Riuieres que les trois Agnieronons qu’on enuoyoit en leur païs pour les affaires cy dessus partirent le 13 de novembre des trois Riuieres en Compagnie des francois qui les escorterent dans vne chalouppe iusques au premier sault de la Riuiere de Richelieu, crainte de mauvais rencontre.
(none of our fathers was called, any more than to the other assemblies), and set before them the purpose of their meeting. The Conclusion was, that it was necessary to send two Agnieronons etc.,—Ut Supra.

5, 6, 7. Monsieur the governor communicates to the savages at the fort his resolution to send two of the prisoners to agniée, in order to apprise their people of the reason for the imprisonment of their Companions. The savages approve this design. 6. Two prisoners are brought to us; they are told that we are sending them to Agnié. 7. The next day they started in a shallop for three Rivers.

17. A shallop arrived from three Rivers, full of savages from the inland, who bring news that their people have arrived there. They came to learn what was going on at Quebec.

19. Monsieur the governor takes counsel with the savages, to send for them and invite them to come and winter at Quebec.

At Noon, a canoe capsized before Quebec; one of the two Frenchmen who were in it was drowned.

20. We learned by letters from three Rivers that the three Agnieronons, whom we were sending to their own country in behalf of the above-mentioned affairs, left three Rivers on the 13th of November. They went in Company with some Frenchmen, who escorted them in a shallop as far as the first sault in the River of Richelieu, for fear of a hostile encounter.
Ce même jour 13. de Nou. arrièrent aux trois Riuieres 60 Canots des terres & 30 des alguonquins ordinaires. dont i ay escrit cy dessus. on en attend encor 30 canots deuant les glaces.

22 La Vigne sergent nous apporta au P Richard dans nostre Maison de quebec vn exploit pour comparoistre a l'audiance le mardy Ensuiuant 27 dudit mois et respondre a la raqueste presentée par Mr d'allet au nom de Mr L abbè quelus, a Mr Chartier lieutenent General de quebec, par laquelle requeste il demande que les PP Jesuites ayent a quitte leur maison pour y loger ledit abbè comme Cure de la paroisse de quebec ou de rem- bourse 6000l a eux donnés par la Cômunauté pour faire vn presb etere.

18 Il y eut disputé entre Les messieurs du Conseil de quebec et mrs de la Justice, ceux- cy voulans aller les premiers a la procession & avoir le pain benist les premiers. contre le Reglement qui auoit esté gardé iusques icy au Contraire.

23 Mr le gouuerneur fit aduertir Mr Seuestre de payer 15000l en castor quil debuoit au magazin. Auquel sieur seuestre nous debuions 8000 et tant en castors que nous ne pouuions payer presentemt. audit sieur & cependant se voyant pressé de Mr le gouuerneur nous pressoit de son cotè.
This same Day, the 13th of November, 60 Canoes from the interior and 30 of ordinary alguonquins arrived at three Rivers,—the same of whom I have written above. 30 more canoes are expected before freezing weather.

22. La Vigne,14 sergeant, brought to us—to Father Richard, in our House of Quebec—a writ to appear in court on the Following Tuesday, the 27th of the same month, and to make reply to the petition presented by Monsieur d'alllet, in the name of Monsieur The abbé quelus, to Monsieur Chartier, lieutenant-General of Quebec.15 In this petition, he asks that the Jesuit Fathers be obliged to leave their house, in order that the abbé might lodge there as Curé of the parish of Quebec; or to refund the 6000 livres, given to them by the Community for building a clergy-house.16

18. There was a dispute between messieurs of the Council of Quebec and messieurs of the court of Justice,—the latter wishing to march first in the procession, and to be the first to receive the blessed bread, counter to the Regulation which had been hitherto observed to the Contrary.

23. Monsieur the governor sent notice to Monsieur Sevestre to pay the 15000 livres in beaver which he owed to the warehouse. To this sieur sevestre we owed 8000 [livres], and an equal amount in beavers, which we could not pay just then to the sieur,—who, meanwhile, seeing himself hard pressed by Monsieur the governor, on his part continued to press us.
Apres avoir Enuoyé querir les sauvages des trois Riuieres [il] fit arrester toutes les marchandises des marchands de quebec &c.

25 L'abbè en son prosne dit qu'il feroit le salut du st Sacrement tous les Ieudis de l'année, et les samedis de l'aduent en l'honneur de N dame.

25. The abbé said in his sermon that he would have benediction of the blessed Sacrament every Thursday in the year, and on Saturdays in Advent, in honor of Our Lady.

27. The shallop returned from three Rivers without the savages; they were detained there by the French.

DECEMBER.

3. We received a second summons to appear in court for the lawsuit about the 6000 livres.

2. St. Francis Xavier's feast falling on the 1st Sunday in Advent, the office for the same was postponed till Monday, the 3rd of the month. On Sunday, the 2nd of the month, we had benediction, beginning with iste Confessor, Magnificat, the anthem Alma, etc. On Monday, the 3rd of the month, Father Claude Pijart said high Mass at 9 o'clock, and preached; the mass was sung with music. At half past 2, vespers were said with music. Collation. All went well.

8. Monsieur Sevestre died happily at noon, and was buried next day in the church.

25. The Father Superior said the midnight mass; it was sung with music, which was worth nothing. They forgot to sing the Te Deum at the beginning. Our chapel was quite full of people; many received Communion; the Algonquins were present. The Hurons la messe de minuit à l'hospice qui fut dite par le P Mercier. Le P Piiart la dit aux Ursulines, on sonna chez nous le 1er coup à onze. Le 2 à onze heures et demi & le dernier à onze heures 3 quarts. heard midnight mass at the hospital, which was said by Father Mercier. Father Pijart said It at the Ursulines'. We rang the 1st bell at eleven, the 2nd at half past eleven, and The last at a quarter to twelve. Our chapel was quite full of Lights, well arranged, and was very warm, both because the weather was mild, and on account of the fire that had been provided.

Antoine Waboukima gave me some letters from three Rivers. He had arrived on the evening before Christmas.

26. 2 frenchmen arrived from three Rivers, la perle and la motte.

On the 9th of December, a tavern was set up at three rivers, at which wine was sold to the savages,—two pots for a winter beaver, and one pot for a summer beaver. . . . This tavern was opened by Monsieur de la poterie, with the consent of some of the habitants; but, as disorderly acts were not stopped by this device, complaints were raised against that tavern, insomuch that Monsieur de la poterie was obliged to send to Quebec, in order to learn the will of Monsieur the governor with regard to that tavern. The Conclusion was, that it must not be continued. Nevertheless, it was Continued.

31. I went to greet Monsieur The abbé, who is Sick, and wished him good day, and, in advance, a happy new-year.

MON R. P. Pax Christi,

De cinq ou fix vaisseaux qui ont esté ce Printemps dernier en la Nouvelle France, celui qui en est retourné le premier, m'a apporté des Lettres du Pere Iean de Quen Superieur de nos Missions en ces Contrées; qui m'aprennent qu'il devoit envoier à V. R. la Relation entière de ce qui s'est passé depuis un an dans nos Missions, dont il m'a adressé, par avance quelques cahiers. Or le Nauire auquel on l'avoit confié, ayant esté pris par les Espagnols, & toutes les Lettres qui s'y sont trouuées ayant esté iettées dans la Mer, i'ay esté obligé de ramasser dans le Liure que ie presente à V. R. ce qu'on a pu recouurer de ces Lettres, & de quelques autres Memoires qui nous furent rendus trop tard l'année precedente. Ceux qui s'interessent pour la gloire de nostre Seigneur en la conversion des Infidelles, feront bien aises de voir comme nos Peres marchant sur les pas de ceux de nostre Compagnie, qui ont esté grillés, rostis, & mangés depuis quelques années par les Iroquois, sont entrés dans le pais de ces Anthropophages, avec moins de peur de leurs trahisons, & de leurs cruautés, que d'amour & de zele pour les gagner à IESVS-CHRIST. Le Pere qui a dresse ces Memoires que i'ay receus, affure que qui voudroit agir parmi ces peuples, selon la prudence purement humaine, ne feroit iamais
To the Reverend Father, Father Louis Cellot, Provincial of the Society of JESUS in the Province of France.

MY REVEREND FATHER,

Pax Christi.

Of the five or six ships which sailed to New France last Spring, the first that returned brought me Letters from Father Jean de Quen, the Superior of our Missions in those Countries, which inform me that he was to send to Your Reverence the complete Relation of what has occurred during the past year in our Missions, some sheets of which he forwarded me in advance. Now, the Ship to which it had been confided was taken by the Spaniards, and all the Letters on board were thrown into the Sea; and this has compelled me to gather together, in the little Book which I present to Your Reverence, all that could be recovered of those Letters and of some other Memoirs which reached us too late last year. Those who, for the sake of our Lord's glory, take an interest in the conversion of the Infidels, will be glad to see that our Fathers, following in the footsteps of those of our Society who for some years past have been broiled, roasted, and eaten by the Iroquois, have made their way into the country of the Cannibals, with less fear of their treachery and cruelty than love and zeal for gaining them to JESUS CHRIST. The Father who has drawn up these Memoirs which I have received asserts that he, who should attempt to be guided by purely human prudence, in whatever he does among these peoples, would never effect much for their salvation. "It rien de fort avantageux pour leur salut. Il faut se mettre dans les dangers du feu de la terre, pour les deliurer des feux de l'Enfer. Il faut jeter dans la captivité, pour les mettre en liberté. Il faut endurer la faim, la soif, la nudité, pour les nourrir, & pour les reuejler de Iews-Christ. On ne saurait se figurer tout ce que nous ayons souffert dans un voyage fort long, tres-rude, & remplit à tous moments de divers dangers de la mort; en suite duquel nous mismoes pied à terre au bord d'un bois, qu'il fallut faire reculer à grands coups de haches, pour donner place à l'habitation que nous voulions dresser. Mais ces grandes forefts étant gardées pendant l'Efté des petits Dragons volans, ie veux dire par un million d'escadrons de Mousquittes, de Mari[n]goins ou de Cousins tres-avides d'un sang, qu'ils n'auoient jamais gousté: nous estoions contraints de leur ceder la place pendant la nuit, & de nous aller coucher sur des roches au bord d'un lac, exposé à l'air, au vent & souuent à la pluye. Ces travaux soufftenus feuement d'un peu de buillie faite de farine de bled d'Inde, cuite dans la belle eau claire, nous abatirent presque tous. Plus de quarante huit personnes de nostre monde, tomberent malades: il nous fallut loger tous des roches fi à l'eftroit, que nous estoions presque entasser les uns fur les autres. Pendant que l'un brufoit dans l'ardeur de la fievre, l'autre trembloit de froid: & pour nous confoler, on nous venoit souuent dire de divers endroits qu'on nous alloit egorger, que nous ferions bien-toft deliurez de tous nos maux. Quotidie morimur, & ecce viuimus, nous mourions tous les iours, & nous voilà encore graces à Dieu tous viuans: il est vrai que ceux qui font alterez du salut des Ames, qui ne s'opere jamais que par la croix, trouveront icy dequoy se satisfaire: mais il ne faut rien craindre, Dieu est partout; c'est icy qu'on le gousté plus is necessary to expose oneself to the dangers of earthly fires, in order to deliver them from the fires of Hell; it is necessary to cast oneself into captivity, in order to secure their freedom; it is necessary to endure hunger, thirst, and nakedness, in order to nourish and clothe them with Jesus Christ. It is impossible to conceive all that we suffered on a very long and very rough journey, during which we were continually beset with dangers of death in divers ways; finally, we landed on the edge of a forest which we had to cut away by dint of many heavy blows of our axes, in order to make room for the settlement that we wished to establish. But these great forests were guarded, during the Summer, by little winged Dragons,—I mean, by innumerable legions of Mosquitoes and Gnats, all very thirsty for a blood that they had never tasted; we were compelled to give way to them during the night, and to sleep on the rocks, on the shore of a lake, exposed to the air, to the wind, and frequently to the rain. These labors—during the performance of which our only sustenance consisted of a little meal of Indian corn, boiled in clear water—prostrated nearly all of us. More than forty-eight of our people fell sick. We had to lodge under rocks, where we had so little room, that we lay almost in a heap, one upon another. While one was burning in the heat of fever, another shivered with cold; and, to console us, we were often told, by people from various places, that men were coming to kill us, and that we would soon be delivered from all our ills. Quotidie morimur, et ecce vivimus,—we were dying daily, and behold, we are still alive, thanks to God! It is true that they who thirst for the salvation of Souls, which is never effected except through the cross, will find here something wherewith to satisfy themselves. But one must fear nothing; God is everywhere; here his presence is felt more clearly, with purement, & quasi sans mélange des creatures. Enfin falutem ex inimicis nostris & de manu omnium qui oderunt nos. Il nous a saucis par nos ennemis mesmes & par les mains de ceux qui nous haïssoient à mort. Nous marchons la teste levée, ils nous ont secourus dans nos besoins, nous prêchions, nous catechisions, nous baptissons publiquement dans leurs bourgades: on y dresse des Chapelles, on y prie Dieu, on y dit la sainte Messe; on y reçoit les Sacremens. Un grand nombre d'Iroquois y fait hautement profession de la Foy de IESVS-CHRIST: En un mot Deus Dominus illuxit nobis, c'est Dieu qui a fait ce grand iour. Voilà mon R. P. ce que vous verrez en détail dans cette Relation, & qui sans doute portera V. R. & tous ceux qui ayment l'Eglise de I. C. à prier pour ces pauvres peuples, & pour ceux qui travaillent à leur conversion, comme aussi pour celuy qui est de V. R.

Le tres-humble & tres obeyffans serviteur en nostre Seigneur, PAVL LE IEVNE, de la Compagnie de IESVS.

scarcely any alloy of created things. Finally, salutem ex inimicis nostris, et de manu omnium qui oderunt nos,—'he has saved us through our enemies themselves, and by the hands of those very men who hated us unto death.' We walk with heads erect; they succored us in our needs; we preached, we catechized, we baptized publicly in their towns. There, Chapels are built; there, God is invoked; there, holy Mass is said; there, the Sacraments are received; there a great many Iroquois openly profess the Faith of Jesus Christ. In a word, Deus Dominus illuxit nobis,—it is God who is the author of this great light.' This, my Reverend Father, is what you will see detailed in this Relation; and, doubtless, it will induce Your Reverence, and all who love the Church of Jesus Christ, to pray for those poor peoples, and for those who labor for their conversion, as also for him who is

CHAPITRE I.

AMBASSADE DES IROQUOIS SONNONTEROONNONS TRAVERSÉE PAR L’IROQUOIS AGNIERONNON.

Nous avons souvent remarqué dans nos Relations des années passées, qu’il y a cinq Nations Iroquoïfes, dont les trois principales [2] sont les Sonnonteroonnnons, qui sont les plus nombreux & les plus éloignés des Français. Les Onnontoeronnnons, où nous avons depuis peu commencé vne bonne Mission. Et les Agneronnnons qui ont commerce avec les Hollandois voisins de la nouvelle Angleterre. Le 19. de Septembre de l’année 1655. le P. Iofeph Chau-mont, & le P. Claude d’Ablon partirent de Quebec pour aller reconnoître le pays des Sonnonteroonnnons, qui nous préfèrent de les aller instruire, & d’aller établir en leur pays vne habitation François. Leur voyage est amplement décrit dans la Relation de l’année dernière. Peu de temps après leur départ de Quebec trois personnes considérables arrivèrent de Sonnontoan pays des Sonnoteroonnnons, qui nous donnèrent aduis que les esprits de leur nation estoient

EMBASSY OF THE SONNONTIOERONNON IROQUOIS THWARTED BY THE AGNIERONNON IROQUOIS.

We have frequently stated in our Relations of the past years that there are five Iroquois Nations, of whom the three principal ones [2] are the Sonnontoeronnons, who are the most numerous, and the most distant from the French; the Onnontoeronnons, among whom we have lately commenced a good Mission; and the Agnieronnons, who trade with the Dutch, neighbors to new England. On the 19th of September of the year 1655, Father Joseph Chaumont and Father Claude d'Ablon started from Quebec, to reconnoiter the country of the Sonnontoeronnons, who urged us to go and teach them, and to establish a French settlement in their country. Their journey was fully described in last year's Relation. Shortly after their departure from Quebec, three personages of importance arrived from Sonnontoan, the country of the Sonnontoeronnons; they informed us that the minds of their nation were inclined to peace, and that next winter they would

Ces deux Ambaffadeurs furent tuez à leur retour, ainſi que nous l’aprouuam par la rencontre qui fe fit d’vn des cadavres que l’on trouua à trois ou quatre lieues au deflus de Montreal, tout couuert de playes & de fang. Le foufçon de ce meurtre ne pât tommber que fur les Iroquois Agnieronmons, qui jaloux de l’amitié dont les autres nations Iroquoifes nous recherchent, la veulent empescher par toutes fortes de moiens.

Cela n’empescha pas que dés le commencement du mois de Ianuier 1656. nous ne vifmes icy l’Ambaffade dont nous auions parole.

Ils eftoient dix de compagnie, dont le chef eftoit vn des premiers Capitaines de tout leur pays, âgé de cinquante [4] à foixante ans, homme fage & adroit dans les affaires, eloquent au delà de ce qu’on en peut croire, dont le cœur eftoit tout François, & defia gagné à la foy.

De vingt & vn prefens qu’il fit, le plus riche & le plus éclatant, fut celuy par lequel il nous tefmoigna hautement que toute fa nation vouloit fe faire inſtruire; qu’elle demandoit pour cet effet des Peres come in good number to contract an inviolable alliance with us, and with the Hurons and Algonquins. A mutual interchange of presents took place, according to the custom of [3] these peoples, after which one of the three resolved to spend the winter with us, to serve as a hostage for their fidelity. The two others set out at the beginning of November of the same year, 1655, in order to carry more promptly to their own country the happy news of the welcome that they had received.

These two Ambassadors were killed on their return journey, as we learned when, three or four leagues above Montreal, one of the dead bodies was found, all covered with wounds and blood. Suspicion of this murder could fall on none but the Agnieronnon Iroquois, who are jealous of the friendship which the other Iroquois nations seek to form with us, and endeavor to thwart it by every possible means.

This did not prevent us from seeing here, at the beginning of the month of January, 1656, the Embassy of which word had been sent us.

It consisted, altogether, of ten men, the chief of whom was one of the leading Captains of their entire country, from fifty [4] to sixty years of age,—a wise man, and one skilled in such matters, eloquent beyond expectation, whose heart was entirely French, and who was already won over to the faith.

Of the twenty-one presents that he gave, the richest and most striking was the one by which he loudly proclaimed that his entire nation wished to be instructed; that, for that reason, they asked for some of the Fathers of our Society, and desired those blessings which are enjoyed only after death, and of which the many Christian Hurons who were living de notre Compagnie, & qu'elle souhaitoit les biens qui ne se voient qu'après la mort, dont les Chrétiens Hurons captifs en grand nombre chez eux, leur parloient avec tant d'estime, que plusieurs d'entre eux auraient déjà le cœur Chréétien, avant que de l'estre.

Les deffeins du Ciel ne nous font pas moins adorables que cachez. Ce Capitaine qui après Dieu appuyoit le plus nos esperances, nous fut rauy en vn moment. Ces Ambassadeurs pour le diuertir, eftoient allez à la chaffe du Castor entre les trois Rivieres & Quebec, en attendant la fin de l'hyuer pour leur retour. Vne troupe d'Iroquois Agnieronnons, [5] qui venoient en même temps à la chaffe des hommes, rencontrent leurs pitfes, & ayant furpris à l'effcart ce Capitaine, sans l'auoir reconnu de plus pres, ils le tuerent d'vn coup de fuzil, qui luy perça le cœur.

Après ce coup, capable de mettre la guerre entre ces deux Nations Iroquoises, ils continuèrent les vns & les autres dans la confiance qu'ils auoient en nous, n'ignorants pas que nous auons le cœur ouvert pour tous les peuples de ces contrées, & nous considerans comme vne Nation neutre, & comme vn lieu de feu-reté. En effet vne bande de guerriers Algonquins, s'eûtant trouuee en même temps dans les trois Rivieres, avec l'Agnieronnon leur ennemy mortel, ils s'y parlerent avec douceur, ils s'y regalerent avec ioye, & à les voir, on eust cru qu'ils eftoient amys. Ce n'est pas vn mauvais presage, quand le Loup & l'Agneau habitent sous le meme toit. Quand le Lion & la Brebis paifsent ensemble, c'est vne marque que IESVS-CHRIST veut eftre leur Pafteur.
as captives with them spoke with such esteem that the hearts of many among them were already Christian before they themselves had become Christians.

The designs of Heaven are no less adorable than they are hidden. This Captain—upon whom, after God, our hopes were resting—was snatched from us in an instant. These Ambassadors had gone, for sport, to hunt the Beaver between three Rivers and Quebec, while awaiting the end of the winter to set out on their return journey. A band of Agnieronnon Iroquois, [5] who came at the same time to hunt men, chanced upon their tracks, and, surprising that Captain in a lonely place, without approaching him closely enough to recognize him, killed him with a gunshot which pierced his heart.

After this blow, which was sufficient to cause war between those two Iroquois Nations, they both retained the confidence which they had in us; for they knew that our hearts were open to all the tribes of these countries, and they regarded our French as a neutral Nation and our settlement as a place of safety. In fact, a band of Algonquin warriors happening to be at three Rivers at the same time as the Agnieronnon, their mortal enemy, they conversed peaceably with each other, joyfully regaled themselves together, and, to behold them, one would have thought that they were friends. It is not a bad omen when the Wolf and the Lamb dwell under the same roof. When the Lion and the Sheep feed together, it is a sign that JESUS CHRIST wishes to be their Shepherd.

DESSEIN DES IROQUOIS AGNIERONNONS SUR LA COLONIE DES HURONS DANS L’ISLE D’ORLEANS.

Le vingt-cinquième jour du mois d’Auril 1656, deux Iroquois Agnieronnons, s’étant coulez par les bois au dessous de Quebec, en un lieu où la chasse des oyseaux de riuier eft en abondance; deux Hurons qui y aborderent en un canot, y furent fauffiez chacun d’un coup de fusil: l’un tomba roide fur la place; l’autre, quoy que blessé griefuement, eut toutesfois asiez de courage & de force pour pouffer fon canot en l’eau, & fe sauuer heureusement.

Vingt Hurons s’embarquerent promptement à cette nouvelle, pour couper chemin en quelque lieu, aux meurtriers, qui auoient pris la fuite par terre. A plus de vingt lieües de là, ayant [7] apperceu quelques pistes fur le riuage de noftre grande Ruiiere, ils atteignirët leur proye; mais comme ces deux fugitifs ne marchoient qu’esloignez l’un de l’autre, il n’y en eut qu’un de prise, qui eftant mené à l’Isle d’Orleans, y fut condamné à la mort & au feu, qu’il auoit sans doute bien merité.

Nous auions fait aque douceur tout ce qui fe pouvoit, afin qu’on lui accordaft la vie & que l’on peuf fë reruir de lui, pour destourner vne troupe de trois cens Iroquois Agnieronnons, dont nous fçauiions que la Colonie Hurone de l’Isle d’Orleans estoit menacée: mais les esprits estoient trop eschauffez dans le

DESIGN OF THE AGNIERONNON IROQUOIS AGAINST THE HURON COLONY ON THE ISLAND OF ORLEANS.

On the twenty-fifth day of the month of April, 1656, two Agnieronnnon Iroquois slipped through the woods below Quebec, at a place where there is an abundance of water-fowl; two Hurons landed from a canoe, and were each received with a gunshot. One fell dead on the spot; the other, though severely wounded, had nevertheless sufficient courage and strength to push his canoe into the water, and was fortunate enough to escape.

On hearing news of this, twenty Hurons embarked at once, to cut off at some place the murderers, who had fled by land. At a distance of over twenty leagues from there, [7] they found some tracks on the bank of our great River, and overtook their prey; but, as these two fugitives had separated from each other, only one was captured. He was taken to the Island of Orleans, where he was condemned to death and to the fire, which doubtless he richly deserved.

We did, by gentle means, all that could be done to have his life spared, in order that he might be made use of to turn away a band of three hundred Agnieronnnon Iroquois, by whom we knew that the Huron Colony on the Island of Orleans was threatened. But their minds were too hot with resentment at a crime which they had so recently seen committed before their very eyes, and for which the father and reffentiment d’un crime qu’ils auoient vu tout fraîchement devant leurs yeux, & dont le pere & la mere du defunt demandoient instamment justice. C’ estoit les plus riches de tout le bourg Huron, & qui pleuroient leur fils unique, qui estoit un homme plein de belles qualitez, destine à la charge de Capitaine, & qui auoit depuis deux ans donne la vie à cinq Agnieronons, qu’il auoit fait prisonniers de guerre.

[8] Le même jour qu’on brulloit ce captif Iroquois, heureux dans son mal-heur, en ce qu’il receut le Baptesme, & qu’il mourut Chrestien: Quelques François des trois Rivieres rencontrerent à dix ou douze lieues de là ces trois cents Agnieronons, qui venoient fondre sur les Hurons. Ces guerriers traiterent doucement nos François, ils leur firent part de leur chasse, & en les congédiant leur firent un present de Pourcelaine, afin qu’on ne donnast point des trois Rivieres aduits à Quebec de leur marche.

Le lendemain trois de leurs Capitaines vinrent eux-mêmes aux trois Rivieres, fçauoir où on devoir qu’ils campassent, & protester de la continuation de la Paix avec nous.

Pour les arrester en chemin par les voyes de douceur, le Gouverneur des trois Rivieres leur fit trois beaux présens, les conjurant de retourner en leur pays, puis qu’ayants la paix avec nous, & les Hurons étant aussi nos alliez, nous deuions efpargner le sang & la vie des vns & des autres.

Leur Chef faifiant paroifindre un grand collier de mother of the deceased urgently demanded justice. They were the wealthiest people of all the Huron village, and were weeping at the loss of their only son, who was a young man, full of good qualities, destined for the office of Captain; within two years he had spared the lives of five Agnierononns, whom he had made prisoners of war.

[8] On the same day, while they were burning that Iroquois prisoner,—who was fortunate in his misfortune, inasmuch as he received Baptism and died a Christian,—some Frenchmen from three Rivers met, at a distance of ten or twelve leagues from there, the three hundred Agnierononns who were coming to fall upon the Hurons. Those warriors treated our French kindly; they gave them some of their game, and on parting they presented them with some Porcelain beads, in order that information of their expedition might not be sent from three Rivers to Quebec.

On the following day, three of their Captains came themselves to three Rivers, to learn where it was desired that they should camp, and to protest that they wished to continue the Peace with us.

In order to check them on the way by gentle means, the Governor of three Rivers gave them three fine presents, begging them to return to their own country, because, as they were at peace with us, and as the Hurons were likewise our allies, we must spare the blood and the lives of both.

[9] The Iroquois replied with eight presents of Porcelain beads, the four most remarkable of which were as follows.

Their Chief showed a great collar of Porcelain beads, and said: "Here is an iron chain, larger Pourcelaine: c'est icy, dit-il, vne chefne [sc. chaîfne] de fer, plus groffe que les arbres qui naissent en nos forefts, qui liera les Hollandois, les François, & les Agnieronnons ensemble. Le tonnerre & la foudre du ciel ne rompront jamais cette chaîfne.

Par vn autre present, ie connois, dit-il, l'efprit d'Onnontio, ie fçay que le François est veritable en ses promefses. Si ie voy quelqu'vn de mes gens tué fur la Riuiere, ie n'auray aucun foupçon que ce foit par la trahifon des François. Je te coniure auflï de croire le mefme de moy; & s'il fe trouve quelque François tué à l'efcart, n'en accufe pas l'Iroquois Agnieronnen; nos mains en feront innocentes, & ne trahiront pas noftrre cœur, qui ne refpire que la Paix.

Quand quelque malheur, dit-il, par vn autre present, arriuera au François, ou à l'Agnieronnon, nous mefferons ensemble nos pleurs & nos larmes; & [10] nos coeurs auront les mefmes fentimens: car ie n'ay plus qu'vn cœur avec toy.

Par le dernier de ces prefens, i'obey a Onnontio, dit-il, ie m'en retourne en mon païs, & ma hache pour cette fois ne fera pas rougie dans le fang des Hurons. Mais ie defire auflï que le François m'obeïffe en vne chofe, c'est qu'il ferme la porte de fes maifons & de fes forts à l'Onnontageronnon, qui veut eftre mon ennemy, & qui couue des penfées de guerre contre moy.

Ces prefens eftoient acheuez, mais l'assemblée n'eftoit pas encore feparée, lors que l'on apperceut trois canots qui venoient d'en haut. C'eftoit Jean-Baptifte Ochionagueras Capitaine Onnontageronnon, qui ayant embraffé la foy depuis deux ans; & dés-lors ayant pris vn cœur tout François, procura around than the trees that grow in our forests, which shall bind the Dutch, the French, and the Agnieron- nons together. The thunder and lightning of heaven shall never break that chain.''

With another present he said: "I know Onnontio's mind. I know that the Frenchman is truthful in his promises. If I see any one of my people killed on the River, I will have no suspicion that it was through the treachery of the French. I beg thee also to believe the same of me; and, if any Frenchman be found killed in a secluded place, do not accuse the Agnieronnon Iroquois of it. Our hands will be innocent of it, and will not betray our hearts, which breathe but Peace."

"Whenever any misfortune," he said with another present, "shall happen to the French or to the Agnieronnon, we will mingle our weeping and our tears, and [10] our hearts shall have the same sentiments; for I have henceforth but one heart with thee."

With the last of these presents he said: "I obey Onnontio. I return to my own country, and this time my hatchet will not be reddened with the blood of the Hurons. But I also wish the Frenchman to obey me in one thing; that is, to close the doors of his houses and of his forts against the Onmontage- rnonnon, who wishes to be my enemy, and who is hatching some plot of war against me."

The giving of these presents was over, but the meeting had not yet dispersed, when three canoes were observed coming from above. It was Jean Baptiste Ochionagueras, an Onmontageronnnon Captain, who had embraced the faith two years before, and, as his heart had become quite French, had puissamment la Paix que nous avons avec les Nations Iroquoises d’en-haut.

Le iour fuiuant, nous receuîmes aduis à Quebec de tout ce qui fe paifoit aux trois Riuieres: ce fut par des hommes enuoyez exprez, qui firent trente lieues en vn iour avec tant de bon-heur qu’ils trom- perent toutes les diligences des Iroquois Agnieron- nons, qui auoient mis partout fur les chemins des corps de garde pour fermer le paffage.

Il fut iugé neceffaire pour le bien public, d’en- uoyer quelqu’vn de nos Peres au deuant de ces trois cents Agnieronmons, pour arrefter leur courfe, nous doutans bien que contre leur parole, ils auoient continué leur deffein de pouffer iufques à l’Isle d’Orleans, pour fe vanger de la mort de l’Iroquois Agnieronnon, qui venoit d’y estre brûlé depuis fi peu de iours.

Le Pere Simon le Moyne qui aime & est aimé tendrement des Iroquois, fe trouuant à lors à Quebec, par vne heureufe rencontre, fut pref en moins d’vne heure pour partir fans delay. Il [12] fait rencontre en fon chemin, au milieu de la nuit, des canots Iroquois qui estoient aux auenuês, pour découvrir ce qui pourroit paffer. On le conduit dans vne paliffade, enviiron à demie-lieu de là, où leur gros estoit campé. Il leur fait dix prefens, pour rompre leur desfein, & les faire retouner fur leurs pas. Apres vigorously aided in securing the Peace between us and the upper Iroquois Nations.

When the Agnieronnon Iroquois saw that captain — whom they knew to be a man of great renown, and a distinguished warrior — they begged our French not to let him know anything of the present which they had just made, — [11] asking us to close our doors against the Onnontageronnons and not to enter into an alliance with them.

On the following day, we received information at Quebec of all that was passing at three Rivers through special messengers, who accomplished thirty leagues in one day, with such good luck that they eluded all the vigilance of the Agnieronnon Iroquois, who had stationed pickets on all the roads to bar the way.

It was considered necessary for the public welfare, to send one of our Fathers to meet those three hundred Agnieronnons, in order to check their advance; for we suspected that, contrary to their word, they would persist in their design to push on as far as the Island of Orleans, and would avenge the death of the Agnieronnon Iroquois who had been burned there within the past few days.

Father Simon le Moyne, who loves the Iroquois and is tenderly beloved by them, was fortunately in Quebec at the time, and in less than an hour he was ready to start without delay. [12] At midnight, he meets on his way some Iroquois canoes which guard the approaches and watch for whatever may happen. He is taken into a palisade, about half a league distant, where the main body are camped. He gives them ten presents, to induce them to abandon their design and retrace their steps. After protracted de longues deliberations ils luy tefmoignent que fa voix eft toute-puiffante fur eux, & pour l’en affeurer par effet, plus que de parole, ils font vn cri dans le camp, qui congedie toutes les troupes: C’eft à dire que les petites bandes, de dix ou douze hommes pour l’ordinaire, aient à fe feparer. Les vns vont d’vn costé, prenans parti pour la chaffe de l’orignac: les autres vont d’vn autre costé à la chaffe du castor: quelques-vns au nombre de trois ou quatre font mine d’aller à la petite guerre, pour faire quelque coup à l’efcart. La plufpart retournent, difent-ils, en leur païs.

deliberations, they tell him that his voice has an all-powerful effect on them; and, to convince him of it by deeds more than by words, they utter a yell in the camp which disbands all the troops,—that is to say, it is a signal for the small bands, which usually consist of ten or twelve men, to scatter. Some go one way, to hunt for moose; others go in another direction, to hunt for beaver; some, to the number of three or four, pretend to go on a hostile raid, to strike a blow in some isolated spot. The majority, they say, return to their country.

This news caused joy in Quebec, and gave some assurance to the Hurons on the Island of Orleans; it did not, however, dispel all their fears. They still felt some distrust of the treacherous spirit of the Agnieronnon; would to God that it had been greater. See the tenth Chapter.

LES HURONS DE L'ISLE D'ORLEANS ATTAQUEZ PAR LES IROQUOIS AGNIERONNONS.

Le 18. de May 1656. ces perfides s'estans cachés dans les bois, à dix ou douze lieues au deffus de Quebec, où ils voyoient fans être veus, laifferent passer vne escoiade de François & de Sauuages, qui montoient au païs des Onnontoeronnons. Mais les mains leur demangeans, & leur accouftumance au maffacre les follicitant, ils se iettent fur quelques canots qui faifoient l'arriere-garde: Ils bleffent, ils prennent, ils pillent, ils mal-traitent ceux qui les conduifent. Mais enfin les Onontoeronnons & les François les menançants, ces traîtres firent semblant de s'etre mépris, [14] comme nous verrons au Chapitre fuyant, ils rendirent les prifonniers; mais à condition qu'ils pourfuiuroient tous leurs route, fans que pas vn fuft obligé de descendre à Quebec.

Cette tempefte estoit effuyée, nos Gens eftant paſſez outre fur le grand Fleuue de Sainct Laurens. Mais la nuiſet du dix-neuf au vingtième du meſme mois de May, ces mal-heureux couuerts des tenebres de cette nuiſet tres-obſcure, descendirent fans bruit, passant devant Quebec fans être apperceuz. Ils aborderent auſſit le iour au deſſous de la bourgade Huronne, & ayant caché leurs canots dans le bois, ils fe répandirent de tous coſtez aux auenuës des terres, que l'on enfemençoit pour lors de bled d'Inde.
CHAPTER III.

THE HURONS ON THE ISLAND OF ORLEANS ATTACKED BY THE AGNIERONNON IROQUOIS.

On the 18th of May, 1656, those perfidious foes concealed themselves in the woods, ten or twelve leagues above Quebec, where they could see without being seen. They allowed a band of French and Savages to pass, who were on their way to the country of the Onnontoeronnons. But their hands itched, and, their habituation to massacre goading them on, they fell upon some canoes that formed the rear-guard; they wounded, they captured, they pillaged, they ill-treated those who were in the canoes. But, finally, when the Onnontoeronnons and the French began to threaten them, those treacherous assailants pretended that they had made a mistake. [14] As we shall see in the following Chapter, they gave up their prisoners, but on the condition that they should continue their journey, and that not a single one of them should be allowed to go down to Quebec.

When this storm had passed, our People pursued their voyage along the great River Saint Lawrence. But, on the night of the nineteenth to the twentieth of the same month of May, those wretches, under cover of that very dark night, descended the river noiselessly, and passed before Quebec without being perceived. They landed, before daylight, below the Huron village; and, after hiding their canoes in the Le matin tous les Chrétiens Hurons ayant assisté à la Messe, selon leur coutume, & par bon-heur la pluspart s’estant confessez, vne partie fortit pour le trauail. Les ennemis qui estoient en embuscade, fe jetterent fur eux, en massacrèrent quelques-vns fur la place, & en emmenerent quelques autres captifs, le [15] reste fe sauuant dans nostre Maison ceinte d’vne paliffade de bonne deffence, fortifiée pour de femblables occasions.

Après cette deffaite les ennemis fe retirèrent fur le Midy. Ils aoient enviroy quarante canots, qui parurent fur noftrre grand fleuve, prenant la meffe route pour leur retour, qu’ils aoient prise la nuict pour faire ce mal-heureux coup. Noftrre perte a été de foixante & onze perfonnes, auc vn grand nombre de ieunes femmes, qui estoient la fleur de cette Colonie.

Les François de l’Isle d’Orleans qui furent rencontrez par ces Barbares, ne furent point faits captifs, les Iroquois disant qu’ils aoient la Paix avec nous. Ce qui n’empecha pas qu’ils ne pillaissent quelques maifons abandonnées, dont ils ont fait depuis leurs excuses, condamnans d’vne part l’infolence de leur ieunesse, qui par toute la terre est difficile à retenir dans la chaleur de la victoire, & accusans d’autre part ceux de nos François qui aoient quitté leurs maifons; ayant pris, disoient-ils, l’espouuante [16] mal à propos. Il est vray que les Iroquois ont refpecté les lieux qu’ils ont trouvé habitez mêmes par de simples femmes, s’y comportant avec toute la douceur possible.

Ce mal-heur arriva vn Samedi, le vingtiefme iour de May, si toutefois les maux de cette vie font des woods, they scattered in all directions, stationing themselves at the approaches to the fields that were then being sown with Indian corn.

In the morning, all the Christian Hurons attended Mass according to their custom, and, happily, most of them confessed themselves. A party issued forth to work; the enemies in ambush fell upon them, massacred some on the spot, and carried off others as prisoners. The [15] remainder took refuge in our House, which is surrounded by a palisade, easily defended, and fortified for such emergencies.

After this defeat, the enemies withdrew toward the South. They had about forty canoes which appeared on our great river, taking, on their return, the same route that they had followed during the night to strike that unfortunate blow. Our loss consisted of seventy-one persons, including a large number of young women who were the flower of that Colony.

The French on the Island of Orleans, who were encountered by those Barbarians, were not made prisoners; for the Iroquois said that they were at Peace with us. This did not prevent them from pillaging some abandoned houses, for which they have since offered excuses, condemning on the one hand the insolence of their young men, who throughout the earth are difficult to restrain when heated by victory; and, on the other hand, accusing those of our French who had abandoned their houses, because, they said, they had taken fright [16] unnecessarily. It is true that the Iroquois respected the places which they found inhabited, even by women alone, and behaved there with all possible gentleness.

This misfortune happened on Saturday, the twentieth day of May,—if, indeed, the ills of this life be malheurs, lors que Dieu en tire sa gloire & le salut de ses eleus.

Il se trouva entre ces Hurons captifs onze Congre-ganistes qui n'ont pas perdu l'esprit de la pieté dans l'extremité de leurs misères, du nombre desquels fut Jacques Oachonk, alors Prefet de la Congregation & le plus feruent de tous nos Chretiens.

Ce bon Chretien se voyant captif, au lieu de chanter ses proieffes de guerre selon la coutume, prit pour fuiet de sa chanfon ce qu'il auoit plus dans le cœur. Ne me plaignez point, difoit-il, ne m'estimez pas malheureux, je feray heureux dans le ciel.

Le ne crains point les feux que mon sang est capable d'exteindre, je crains le feu d'enfer qui jamais ne s'exteindra. Cette vie ne m'est rien, quand [17] mes penfées me portent au Ciel. Il pouffoit ce chant d'une voix si puiffante, qu'il le faifoit entendre presque de demie lieue, l'eau & le vent portant sa voix jusques à nous. Il confoloit les autres, & les animoit aux fouffrances, & se voyant brulé en toutes les parties du corps, avec des haches toutes rouges de feu, & des trifons ardens; sans jetter aucun cry, ny se plaindre des cruautez qui le faifoient mourir mille fois, auant que d'en mourir vne feule; il prit Dieu au milieu des flammes, & difoit hautement que jetant les yeux vers le Ciel, avec cette parole, I E S V S ayez pitié de moy, il fentoit chaque fois l'allegement de fes douleurs, & vn furcroift de force & de courage.

Nous en auons fceu toutes les particularitez par vn autre Chretien qui eftoit captif avec luy, nommé Ioachim Ondakont, qui s'est veu dans les flammes avec luy, y ayant admiré fa confiance & fon esprit vraiment Chretien dans les tourmens.
misfortunes when God derives from them his glory and the salvation of his elect.

Among the captive Hurons there were eleven members of the Congregation who, in the extremity of their misery, did not lose the spirit of piety. One of them was Jacques Oachonk, then the Prefect of the Congregation, and the most fervent of all our Christians.

When that good Christian found himself a prisoner, instead of singing of his warlike achievements, according to custom, he took for the subject of his song what he had most at heart. "Do not pity me," he said; "do not consider me unfortunate; I shall be happy in heaven. I fear not fires which my blood can extinguish; I fear the fire of hell which never dies out. This life is nothing to me, when [17] my thoughts carry me to Heaven." He sang this chant in so powerful a voice, that he made himself heard at a distance of nearly half a league, and the water and wind bore his words to our ears. He consoled the others, and encouraged them to bear their sufferings. While he was being burned in every part of the body — with hatchets heated red-hot in the fire, and with blazing firebrands — he uttered not a cry, or any complaint of the cruelty which made him suffer death a thousand times before dying once. He prayed to God in the midst of the flames, and said aloud that, when he raised his eyes to Heaven with the words, "JESUS, have pity on me," he felt each time an alleviation of his pains, with an increase of strength and courage.

We have learned all the particulars from another Christian who was a captive with him, named Joachim Ondakont. He was himself in the flames with Ce Ioachim estoit le plus considerable de tous ceux qu'on auoit fait captifs, [18] grand guerrier, & d'ot la vie n'eft qu'une fuitte de victoires & de rencontres, d'où fon courage l'a bien founent retiré contre toute efpérance. Cette derniere fois ayant desia esté brûlé à demy corps, ayant les doigts couppez, & estant tout couvert de fang; la nuit qui deuoit eftre fa derniere, n'attendant que le point du iour auquel deuoit acheuer fon fupplice, la cabane où il auoit esté brûlé, estant pleine d'autant de bourceaux qu'il y auoit là d'Iroquois, qui estoient plus de cinquante à le garder; le fommeil les ayant abbatus, il fut afzez heureux pour rompre fes liens, & pour trouver passage: & s'estant veu en liberté, le corps nud & déchiré, fans provisions, fans armes, & fans fecours, il marcha quinze iours entiers par des routes égarées, pour fe sauuer, en fe perdant, & n'ayant plus de forces, estant arriué fur les riuages du grand lac des Iroquois; par bonneur il y fit rencontree de la bande des François qui alloient à Onnontage: fans eux, il estoit mort, & par leur moyen il recouura la vie. On luy donna des viures, vn canot, [19] & vn ieune-homme Huron detaché de leur compagnie, avec lequel il peoft acheuer fon voyage, & venir à Quebec.

Cet homme auant fon mal-heur s'estoit relaflé de fa fereur, & ne paroiffoit qu'à demy Chreftien, faifiant mefme gloire de teffmoigner qu'il ne faifoit pas eftime de la Foy, ny des Chreftiens: Mais ayant veu que c'eft en Dieu feul qu'on trouue la confolation, la patience, & la ioye, mefme dans les tourmens, il a fi heureufement changé de fentiment, qu'il ne peut affez le benir, ny affez louer les Chreftiens, Jacques, and admired his constancy and his truly Christian spirit amid the tortures.

This Joachim was the principal man among all those who had been taken captive; [18] he was a great warrior, and his life had been but a series of victories and combats, in which his bravery had very often saved him, contrary to all expectations. On this last occasion, he had already been burned up to the waist, his fingers had been cut off, and he was all covered with blood. On the night which was to be his last, he was awaiting the dawn of the day on which his torture was to be ended. The cabin in which he had been burned was filled with as many executioners as there were Iroquois in it, of whom more than fifty were guarding him. Sleep overcoming them, he was fortunate enough to break his bonds, and to make his way out. Finding himself at liberty, with his body all naked and torn, without food, without weapons, and without assistance, he walked for fifteen entire days, through devious paths, to find safety in losing himself. His strength was exhausted when he reached the shores of the great lake of the Iroquois, where, by good fortune, he met the band of French who were going to Onnontagé. Had it not been for them, he would have died; with their help, his life was saved. They gave him some food, a canoe, [19] and a young man, a Huron, whom they detached from their party, and with whose assistance he was enabled to finish his journey and come to Quebec.

Previous to his misfortune, this man’s fervor had relaxed, and he seemed to be only half a Christian, even glorying in showing that he had no esteem for the Faith or for the Christians. But, when he saw dont il a vu dans l'occasion des exemples d'une vertu qui ne peut avoir de reproche.

Un des Pères de notre Compagnie s'étant trouvé aux Trois-Rivières, lors que les Iroquois y repassaient, & ayant été heureusement engagé d'aller visiter ces bons Chrétiens, dans les liens de leur captivité au camp de l'ennemy, en recevant une consolation si sensible, qu'il en écrivit en ces termes.

Bene omnia fecit. En vérité, mon Reuerend [20] Pere, les iugemens de Dieu font eftonnans. L'ay vu la fleur de la Congregation Huronne emmenée captive par des Infidèles, avec quantité d'autres, dont la deuotion passerait même dans les Cloîtres, pour extraordinaire. Qu'il en fût beny à jamais, puisque bene omnia fecit; lugez combien cela m'a été sensible, par la grande affection que j'auois pour cette pauvre nation. L'ay eu le bon-heur de les visiter trois fois dans le camp des Iroquois, éloigné des Trois-Rivières d'une demie lieue. Je les confessez là tous, après leur avoir fait prier Dieu. Certes la foy regne dans leurs cœurs: jamais ils n'ont témoigné de plus grands sentimens de deuotion, ny plus hardiment qu'ils ont fait en cette occasion, en presence de tous les Iroquois, qui ne furent paroître aucune aversion de la prière: Car ayant pris l'occasion par cinq ou six fois dans diverses cabanes, de dire vn petit mot du Paradis & de l'Enfer, ils m'ecouterent tousjours avec grand respect.

L'ay trouué parmy eux vne ieune femme de dix-huit ans nommée Agnes [21] Aoendoens baptifée par le defunt P. Ieâ de Brebeuf laquelle j'ouïs en Confessiôn. En vérité ie n'ay jamais rien veu de plus innocent: vne personne enfermée dans vn Cloître that in God alone can consolation, patience, and joy be found, even in the midst of tortures, his sentiments became so happily changed that he cannot sufficiently bless God, or sufficiently praise the Christians, in whom he has observed, in this emergency, examples of a virtue beyond reproach.

One of the Fathers of our Society happened to be at Three Rivers when the Iroquois passed on their return, and was fortunately impelled to go and visit those good Christians in the bonds of their captivity in the enemy's camp. He was so greatly consoled thereby, that he wrote of it in the following terms:

"Bene omnia fecit. In truth, my Reverend Father, the judgments of God are wonderful. I have seen the flower of the Huron Congregation carried away into captivity by the Infidels, with many others whose devotion would appear extraordinary even in a Cloister. Praise be to him forever, since bene omnia fecit. You may judge how deeply this has afflicted me, since I had so great an affection for that poor nation. I had the happiness of visiting them three times in the Iroquois camp, about half a league from Three Rivers. I confessed them all, after making them pray to God. Assuredly, faith reigns in their hearts; never have they been more fervent or bold in manifesting their devotion, than on that occasion, in the presence of all the Iroquois. And these showed no aversion to prayer; for, when I seized the opportunity on five or six occasions, in various cabins, to say a word about Paradise and Hell, they always listened to me with great respect.

"I found among them a young woman, eighteen years of age, named Agnes Aoendoens, who was ne fe feroit pas mieux conferuee dans la pieté. En vn mot ie n'ay point de termes pour vous expliquer tout ce qui s'est passé dans ce rencontre. Voilà ce que le Pere nous a escript.

Il n'y auroit pas huit iours qu'il auroit quitté ces bons
Chreftiens à l'Ifle d'Orleans, où il auroit demeuré avec eux depuis vn an, fon obeiffance ne l'en ayant detaché que pour le joindre à la trouppe de ceux qui font allez à Onnontaghe.
baptized by the late Father Jean de Brebeuf, and whom I heard in Confession. Truly, I have never seen any one more innocent; a person shut up in a Cloister could not preserve her piety better. In short, I cannot find words which would express to you all that passed on that occasion.' That is what the Father has written to us.

Not more than eight days had elapsed since he had left those good Christians on the Island of Orleans, where he had dwelt with them for a year; and his obedience took him away from them solely that he might join those who were going to Onnontaghe.

VOYAGE DES PERES DE NOSTRE COMPAGNIE & DE QUELQUES FRANÇOIS AU PAYS DES IROquois SUPE-RIEURS APPELLÉS ONNONTOERONNONS.

CES peuples nous ayant désirés, on envoia l'année 1655. deux Peres de noftrre Compagnie en leur pays, pour decouvrir leurs dispositions pour la [22] Foy & leurs inclinations pour les François. Apres qu'ils les eurent pratiqués environ fix mois, comme il fe voit dans la Relation de l'année precedente, l'vn des deux defcendit à Quebec. Quoy qu'il nous parlaft auantageusemët de la bonne volÔté de ces Iroquois, il n'effaça pas neantmoins de noftrre efprit les defiances que nous auions pris raifonnable-ment de leurs déloiautës & de leurs trahifons. Si bien que lors qu'il fallut, comme on dit, fendre la cloche, & conclure l'establissement d'vne Mission & d'vne demeure en leur païs, nous nous trouuafmes merueilleusemënt en peine, außi bien que Monfieur noftrre Gouverneur, duquel dependoit l'affaire en premier reffort. On examina meurement les raifons de part & d'autre: Et on en trouuoiit de tres-fortes & de tres-puiffantes des deux costës. Nous fauiôs bien que le menfonge, les fourbes, les déloiautës efteoient presque außi naturelles â ces peuples que la vie. Nous les cognoiffions tres-portës & tresaccouftumës au fang, au feu & au carnage. Nous nous souuenions de la destrudtion de [23] nos pauures CHAPTER IV.

JOURNEY OF THE FATHERS OF OUR SOCIETY, AND OF SOME FRENCHMEN, TO THE COUNTRY OF THE UPPERIROQUOIS, CALLED ONNONTOERONNONS.

As these people had asked for us, we sent, in the year 1655, two Fathers of our Society to their country, to ascertain their dispositions toward the Faith and their inclinations toward the French. After associating with them for about six months,—as set forth in the Relation of last year,—one of the two came down to Quebec. Although he spoke favorably of the good will of those Iroquois, nevertheless he did not efface from our minds the distrust of their perfidy and treachery that we had, with reason, conceived. Thus, when it became necessary to cast the bell, as the saying is, and to decide upon the establishment of a Mission and a residence in their country, we found ourselves extremely perplexed, as also did Monsieur our Governor, upon whom the matter devolved at the very start. We fully examined the reasons both for and against; and found very strong and forcible arguments on both sides. We were aware that falsehood, deceit, and treachery were almost as natural to those people as life itself. We knew how much they were addicted and accustomed to bloodshed, fire, and carnage. We remembered the destruction of our poor Huron Churches, and the cruelties which Eglifes Huronnes, & des cruautés qu'ils auoient exercées fur nos braues Algonquins. Nous auions deuant les yeux les horribles tourmens qu'ils ont fait souffrir à plusieurs de nos Peres, les brûlant à petit feu, leur appliquant des haches toutes rouges fur les endroits les plus fenfibles du corps, verfant dans leurs playes des chaudieres d'eau bouillante, en derifion du Baptefme, coupant de grands lambeaux de leur chair grillée, qu'ils mangeoient en leur prefence. La fureur qui anime ces Barbares nous difoit tout bas à l'oreille qu'on nous en preparoit autant.

Vn Huron captif échappé du bourg d'Onôtaghe paroiffant au fort de nos deliberations, nous affeura qu'il auoit étudié l'esprit de ces peoples, qu'il eftoit entré dans leurs penfées, & qu'ils n'auoient autre deflein que de faire venir en leur pays le plus de François & de Hurons qu'ils pourroient pour en faire vn masfacre general. Il appuia fon aduis de raifons fi fortes, que les Hurons fes compatriotes ayans refolu & promis aux Onmontoeronnons d'aller en leur païs, & de [24] nous y accompagner, retirèrent leur parolle, & nous dirent que l'ardeur de la Foy nous feroit égorger; nous coniurant par l'amitié qu'ils nous portoient, de ne point nous precipiter dans vn danger fi manifefte.

Outre ce fujet de crainte les Iroquois Agnionrons avec lefquels nous auons traicté de la Paix depuis peu, faifoient paroîftre vne ialoufie qui alloit prefque iufqu'à la rage de ce que nous vouions habi-ter parmy ces peoples, ayant vn grand interefl pour leur commerce, que les Onmontoeronnons fussent toufjours obligez de passer par leur païs.

Nous voyons encore que ces Nations n'ayant aucun
they had practiced on our worthy Algonquins. We had before our eyes the horrible tortures which they had inflicted upon several of our Fathers, whom they had burned at a slow fire, applying hatchets heated red-hot to the most sensitive parts of their bodies, pouring upon their wounds kettlefuls of boiling water in derision of Baptism, and cutting off great strips of their roasted flesh, which they ate in their presence. The fury that animates those Barbarians whispered in our ears that they were preparing the same for us.

A captive Huron, who had escaped from the village of Onontaghe, made his appearance while we were in the midst of our deliberations. He assured us that he had studied the minds of those people and had penetrated their thoughts, and that their sole design was to attract to their country as many French and Hurons as possible, and then to kill them in a general massacre. He advanced such strong arguments in support of his opinion, that his Huron countrymen, who had resolved, and had promised the Onnontoeronnons, to go to their country and to [24] accompany us thither, retracted their word. They told us that zeal for the Faith would cause our death, and conjured us, by the love that they bore us, not to cast ourselves into so manifest a danger.

In addition to this cause of fear, the Agnieroronon Iroquois, with whom we had recently concluded a treaty of Peace, manifested a jealousy almost verging on fury, because we wished to dwell with those people; for it was greatly to the benefit of their trade, that the Onnontoeronnons should always be compelled to pass through their country.
befoin des François, ny aucune retenue du costo de Dieu, qu'ils ne cognoisssent pas, ny du costo de la Police humaine, qui n'a autre pouuoir parmy eux que celuy de leur interef; ils nous pouuoient mettre à mort impunément par vne boutade.

Tout cela joint aux dangers & à la difficulté des chemins, & aux défences excessiues & effroyables qu'il falloit faire [25] pour commencer cette entreprife & pour la conferuer, nous mettoit dans vne extreme inquietude; si jamais l'axiome fut veritable qu'il y a vne crainte capable d'ébranler vne Ame conffante; tous ces sujets de crainte ne pouuoient nous cause[r] vne mediocre terreur. On passa toutesfois outre, & la resolution fut prife d'accorder à ces peuples ce qu'ils demandoient si instamment, & de s'aller etablir au coeur de leur pays, quoy qu'il en pût arriuer. Voicy les raisons qui nous y porterent.

L'vne estoit fondée sur l'authorité & sur le raifon-nement de Monfieur noftrre Gouverneur, qui voyoit bien qu'il falloit perir pour ne pas perir, & qu'il falloit s'exposer à toutes fortes de dangers pour euiter tous les dangers. Nous auïës nouvelles que fi nous rebutions ces Barbares, leur refusant ce qu'îls demandoient auec tant d'ardeur, qu'ils auoient deflein de s'vnir derechef auec les Agnieronnons, & de venir fondre fur les François pour leur faire vne guerre immortelle, & pour les exterminer entiere-ment, s'il leur estoit possible. Nous [26] n'eftions pas en ce temps-là dans la posture de fouftenir la revoile de toutes ces nations, fans encourir vn danger plus grand que n'estoit celuy d'exposer vne efcoiade de François, dont la resolution pourroit donner quelque retenue à ces peuples dans leur pays mefme.
Moreover, as those Nations have no need of the French, and are under no restraint, either as regards God, whom they know not, or human Authority,—which has control over them only so far as it serves their own interest,—we saw that they might put us to death with impunity in a fit of passion.

All this, added to the dangers and difficulties of the road, and to the excessive and frightful expenses that would have to be incurred [25] to commence and maintain this undertaking, caused us extreme anxiety. Even if the axiom were ever true, that there is one fear capable of shaking a constant Soul, all these causes for dread could not inspire us with the slightest terror. However, we paid no heed; we resolved to grant to those people what they so urgently asked, and to establish ourselves in the heart of their country, whatever might betide. Here are the reasons that induced us to do so.

One was grounded upon the authority and the opinion of Monsieur our Governor, who saw very well that it was necessary to perish in order not to perish; and to expose oneself to dangers of all kinds, in order to avoid all dangers. We had been warned that, if we rebuffed those Barbarians by refusing what they so urgently demanded, they intended to unite at once with the Agnieron nons, to fall upon the French, to wage endless war against them, and, if possible, to exterminate them entirely. We [26] were not at that time in a position to withstand the revolt of all those tribes, without running a greater danger than that of exposing a handful of French, whose resolution might exercise some restraint over those peoples in their own country.
L'autre raison estoit tirée d'une politique plus divine qu'humaine. Les Peres de noftra Compagnie qui iufques à prefent n'ont point blefmy à la veue de leur fang, qui n'ont point encore redouté les feux & la rage des Iroquois dans leurs plus horribles tourmens, difoient qu'ils baptiferoient bien deuant leur mort autant de moribôds qu'ils feroient de perfonnes, & qu'en ce cas donnant leurs corps pour des Ames, ils ne perdroient rien au change. Ils alleguoient l'exemple des Apoftres qui s'attendoient bien de perdre la vie dans les pays infideles où ils alloient precher leur Maiftre, & ne laiffroient pas pourtant d'y aller. Ils produifoient cet Axiome commun:

_Sanguis Martyrum femen est Christianorum_, le fang refpandu pour la Foy par les Iroquois crie, difoient-ils, deuant [27] Dieu, non pas vengeance, mais bene[di]ction & pardon pour les mesmes Iroquois. Il fe faut confier en celuy qui n'abandonne jamais ceux qui s'abandonnent fainement pour fa gloire: Et la rage & la perfidie des Barbares, ny les dépences excesfives ne doiuent point retarder le premier de tous les emplois, qui eft la conuerfion des Ames. Dieu qui eft le Maiftre des Grands & des petits, des François & des Iroquois, flechira les cœurs des Infideles pour leur faire receuoir l'Euangile; & ceux des Infideles [sc. Fideles] pour en faciliter la publication.

Enfin la conclusion fut prife fur ces raifons & fur plusieurs autres, qu'il fe falloit mettre en campagne, & donner aux Onnontoeronnons la fatisfa&tion qu'ils demandoient.aussi-toft dit, aussi-toft fait. Voilà vn bon nombre de François qui s'équippent pour s'embarquer avec le Pere René Menard, le Pere Claude d'Ablon, le Pere Iacques Fremin, le Frere
The other reason arose from a consideration more divine than human. The Fathers of our Society—who thus far have never paled at the sight of their own blood, or feared the fires and the fury of the Iroquois in their most horrible tortures—said that they would surely, before their death, baptize a number of dying persons equal to their own; in such case, they said, by giving their bodies for Souls, they would lose nothing by the exchange. They cited the example of the Apostles, who fully expected to lose their lives in the pagan countries whither they went to preach their Master, and yet they failed not to go there. They mentioned that common Axiom: Sanguis Martyrum semen est Christianorum. "The blood shed for the Faith by the Iroquois," they said, "cries out to [27] God, not for vengeance, but for blessing and pardon for those very Iroquois." We must confide in him who never abandons those who holily abandon themselves for his glory; and neither the fury nor the treachery of the Barbarians, nor the excessive expense should delay that foremost of all occupations, the conversion of Souls. God who is the Master of the Great and of the lowly, of the French and of the Iroquois, will touch the hearts of the Unbelievers to make them receive the Gospel, and those of the Believers to facilitate the preaching thereof.

Finally, the conclusion was reached, in consideration of the above and of many other reasons, that it was necessary to take the field and to give the Onnontoeronnons the satisfaction which they demanded. No sooner said than done. A goodly number of French prepared to embark, with Father René Menard, Father Claude d'Ablon, Father Jacques Ambroise Broar, & le Frère Ioseph Bourfier, que le R. Pere François le Mercier Supérieur des Missions de notre Compagnie en ces contrees, [28] prit avec foy pour aller faire la guerre aux Demons jusques dedans leur Fort, & pour confacer ces peuples & tout leur pays à IESVS-CHRIST: Mais fuiuons de l'œil & de la penfée celuy qui nous a tracé leur voyage fur le papier & qui eftoit de la partie.

Nous partîmes de Quebec le 17. de May 1656. Noftre Gros eftoit compofé de quatre Nations, de François, d'Onnontoeronnons, qui nous eftoient venus querir, de Sonnontoeronnons, qui eftoient venus rechercher noftre alliance, & de quelques Hurons. Nous rempliffions deux grandes chalouppe & plusieurs canots. Sortant du port, nous fuiuons fuiués des acclamations de quantité de peuples differents qui bordoient le riuage dont plusieurs nous regardoient d'vn œil de compassion & d'vn cœur tremblant, nous croyans autant de victimes destinées aux feux & à la rage des Iroquois.

Ce malheur nous penfa arriuer dès le lendemain de noftre depart. Nos chalouppe ayans mouillé l'ancre sur le foir à douze lieues ou enuiron au defsus de Quebec, proche d'vn lieu appellé la Pointe de Saincë Croix. Nous prîmes révolution d'y descendre tous le lendemain matin, pour y celebrer la Saincë Mefle. Nos Matelots s'oubliant de cette révolution, leuerent l'ancre deuant le iour & nous firent pourfuire noftre route. Le danger eftoit tres-grand, y ayant en ce même endroit trois cents Iroquois Agnieronons cachés qui nous auroient pu prendre fans combat & fans résistance, pource que Fremin, Brother Ambroise Broar, and Brother Joseph Boursier,—whom Reverend Father François le Mercier, Superior of the Missions of our Society in these countries, [28] took with him to wage war against the Demons in their very Stronghold, and to consecrate those peoples and the whole of their country to Jesus Christ. But let us follow with eye and mind him who has traced their journey for us on paper, and who was one of the party.

We started from Quebec on the 17th of May, 1656. Our Main body comprised four Nations,—some French; some Onnontoeronnons, who had come for us; some Sonnontoeronnons, who had come to contract an alliance with us; and some Hurons. We filled two large shallops and several canoes. As we left port, we were followed by the acclamations of a multitude, from various peoples, who stood on the bank. Many of them looked upon us with compassion and with trembling hearts, considering us as so many victims destined to the fires and the fury of the Iroquois.

Such a misfortune nearly happened to us on the day following our departure. Our shallops had anchored at night, twelve leagues or thereabout above [29] Quebec, near a place called the Point of Sainte Croix. We all resolved to land there on the following morning, for the purpose of celebrating Holy Mass. Our Sailors forgot this resolution; they raised anchor before daylight and thus obliged us to continue our journey. The danger was very great; for, at the same spot, three hundred Agnieronon Iroquois lay hidden, who could have captured us without a fight and without resistance, because our nos Gens feroient descendus fans armes, croyant que ces Traîtres estoient retournez en leur pays, comme ils en auoient donné la parole à nos François au Lac Sainct Pierre, au deffus des trois Riuieres. Nous eutîâmes ce danger fans le fçauoir; ces Barbares ne s’eftants point produits, quoy qu’ils nous euffent bien apperceuz. Mais ils fe jetterent fur nos canots qui fe trouuerent feparez de nous: Ils en renuerferent vn dans la Riuiere, ils blefferent légerement vn de nos Freres de deux coups de fuzils: ils lierent & garotterent les Hurons: ils traitterent mal les Onnoteronnons de parole & d’effet, [30] ne pouuant supporter noftre alliance avec eux. Mais enfin la crainte d’entrer en guerre avec ces peuples qui témoignoïët leurs iuftes reffentimens, appaïfa leur colere & les obligea de recourir aux excuses, difant qu’ils croioient d’abord que ces canots ne fussent remplis que de Hurons avec lesquels ils n’ont point de paix. Ensuitte de quoy ils mirent tout le monde en liberté, fans en excepter les Hurons. Ceux qui s’eftoient faueuz dés le commencement du choc courant tous nudis par les bois, & r’attrapant nos chalouppes, nous donnerent aduis de ce qui fe passoit: auffi-toft chacun fe mettant fous les armes, on apperceut douze canots qui tiroient vers nous à force de rames. Nous creümes que c’etoit l’Auant-garde de l’ennemy, & comme nous nous preparions à les receuoir, nous recognoûmes que c’etoient nos Gens, qui n’auoient pas fujet d’être fort satisfaits de s’être feparez de nos chalouppes.

Eftans arrués aux Trois-Riuieres le 20. de May, nous les quittâmes le 29. & le 31. nous entrâmes dans l’habitation [31] de Montreal, d’où on fit partir
People would have landed unarmed, believing that those Treacherous foes had returned to their own country, as they had promised to our French at Lake Saint Pierre, above three Rivers. We escaped that danger without knowing it. The Barbarians did not show themselves, although they saw us very well; but they fell upon our canoes that were separated from us. They upset one into the River; they slightly wounded one of our Brethren with two gun-shots; they tied and bound the Hurons; they ill-treated the Onnontoeronnons, both by word and deed, [30] for they could not brook our alliance with them. But, in the end, fear of becoming involved in a war with that people, who manifested their just indignation, cooled their anger, and compelled them to have recourse to apologies; they alleged that they thought at first that the canoes were filled only with Hurons, with whom they are not at peace. Afterward, they set every one at liberty, including the Hurons. Those who had escaped at the beginning of the fray, ran naked through the woods, overtook our shallops, and informed us of what was passing. Every one immediately rushed to arms. We observed twelve canoes, rapidly paddling toward us, and thought that they were the Advance-guard of the enemy; but, as we were preparing to receive them, we saw that they were our own People who had not much reason for satisfaction at having separated from our shallops.

We reached Three Rivers on the 20th of May, and left there on the 29th. On the 31st, we arrived at the settlement [31] of Montreal, whence a canoe was despatched on the first day of June, to give notice of our coming to the Village of Onnontaghé.
vn canot le premier jour de Juin, pour aller donner aduis de nostre marche au Bourg d‘Onnontaghé.

Le huitième de Juin nous nous embarquâmes dans vingt canots, les chaloupes n‘éant plus de service au delà de Montreal, à cause des endroits rapides & des Sauts qu‘on rencontre au fortir de cette habitation. Nous n‘auions pas encor fait deux lieuës qu‘une escoiade d‘Iroquois Agnieronons nous ayant appereus de loing, & nous prenâs pour des Algonquins & pour des Hurons, faisie de frayeur, fe ietta dans les bois; mais nous ayant reconneuz à la veuë de nostre paullon, qui estoit vn grand Nom de IESVS peint sur vn beau taffetas blanc voltigeant en
l‘air; ils nous aborderent. Nos Americains Onnonteronnons les recurent avec mille iniures, leur reprochât leurs trahifons & leur brigandage: & fe iettans sur leurs canots, ils pillerent leurs armes & prirent ce qu‘ils auoient de meilleu dans leur équipage, vfans, difioient-ils, de reprefailles; eux mëfmes ayant eût pillez [32] peu de iours auparauant par ces mêmes peuples: voilà toute la conflation que remporterent ces pauures miferables de nous estre venus falüer.

Paffant dans le Lac Sainct Loïis vn de nos canots fe brifa, ce qui nous est encor arriuë d‘autresfois dans nostre voyage; mais nous iettans à terre, nos Char-pentiers de Nauires trouuoient par tout dequoy baftir vn vaiffeau en moins d‘vn iour: c‘est à dire que nos Sauuages rencontroient facilement des chofoes propre
pour faire les gondoles qui portoient nostre bagage auec nous. Les Architectes de ce pays ont bien plufoit bafty leurs Maifons, leurs Palais & leurs Nauires que ceux d‘Europe: que si on n‘y est pas
On the eighth of June, we embarked in twenty canoes; the shallops could no longer be of use beyond Montreal, on account of the rapids and Falls which are encountered on leaving that settlement. We had not proceeded two leagues, when a band of Agnienon Iroquois saw us from afar. Mistaking us for Algonquins and Hurons, they were seized with fear, and fled into the woods; but, when they recognized us, on seeing our flag— which bore the Name of J E S U S in large letters, painted on fine white taffeta— flying in the air, they approached us. Our Onnontae-ronnon Americans received them with a thousand insults, reproaching them with their treachery and brigandage; then they fell upon their canoes, stole their arms, and took the best of all their equipment. They said that they did this by way of reprisal; for they themselves had been pillaged [32] a few days before by the same tribe. That was all the consolation gained by those poor wretches in coming to greet us.

Entering Lake Saint Louis, one of our canoes was broken, an accident which happened several times during our voyage. We landed, and our Ship Carpenters found everywhere material enough wherewith to build a vessel in less than a day,—that is, our Savages had no difficulty in procuring what was needed to make the gondolas which carried our baggage and ourselves. The Architects of this country build their Houses, Palaces, and Ships much more rapidly than those of Europe; and, if one be not lodged there so sumptuously, still one often dwells there in greater comfort and gladness.

We killed a number of Elk, and of the Deer which our French call "wild Cows." On the thirteenth of logé si superbement, on y habite souuuent plus à l'aife & plus ioyeusement.

Nous tuaîmes quantité d'Elans & de Cerfs que nos François appellant des Vaches fauvaiges: mais le treizième de Iuin & les trois iours suivans nous nous trouûâmes dans des courans-d'eau si rapides & si violents, qu'il falloit fe mettre à l'eau pour traîner quelquefois, [33] & quelquefois porter fur nos efpaules nos batteaux & tout noftre bagage. Nous nous moûillions de tous costez, car nous auions vne partie du corps en l'eau, & le ciel arrofoit l'autre d'vne grosse pluye. Nous employons toutes nos forces contre le vent & contre les torrens, portant autant ou plus de ioye dans nos coeurs que de fatigue fur nos corps.

Le dix-jeptième du meême mois nous nous trouûâmes au bout d'vn Lac que quelques-vns confondent avec le Lac de Sainct Louis, nous luy donnâmes le nom de Sainct François, pour le diſtinguer de celuy qui le precede. Il a bien dix lieues de long & trois ou quatre de large en quelques endroits: il est remply de quantité de belles îles en fes emboucheures. Le grand fleuue de Sainct Laurens s'elargissant & repandant fes eaux d'espaces en espaces fait ces beaux Lacs, puis en les refarrant il reprend le nom de Ruuiere.

Le vingtième de Iuin nous passâmes le grand Saut: la mort de cinq fans de biches maffacrez par nos chaffeurs, & [34] cent Barbuës prifes par nos pêcheurs, addoucirent nos peines. Noftre boucherie & noftre poiffonnerie furent iufques à lors auſi bien garnies qu'elles furent depourueuës de tout fur la fin de noftre voyage.
June and the three following days, we found ourselves in currents of water so rapid and strong that we were at times compelled to get into the water, in order to drag behind us, [33] or carry on our shoulders, our boats and all our baggage. We were wet through and through; for, while one half of our bodies was in the water, the sky saturated the other with a heavy rain. We exerted all our strength against the wind and the torrents, with even more joy of heart than fatigue of body.

On the seventeenth of the same month, we found ourselves at one end of a Lake which some confound with Lake Saint Louis. We gave it the name of Saint François, to distinguish it from the one that precedes it. It is fully ten leagues long and three or four leagues wide in some places, and contains many beautiful islands at its mouths. The great river Saint Lawrence, widening and spreading its waters at various points, forms those beautiful Lakes, and then, narrowing its course, it once more assumes the name of River.

On the twentieth of June, we passed the grand Saut. Five fawns killed by our hunters, and [34] a hundred Catfish taken by our fishermen, made our troubles easier to bear. Our larder was as well stocked with meat and fish at that time, as it was deficient in everything at the end of our journey.

On the twenty-fifth, after celebrating holy Mass, we baptized a child, of which the wife of one of our Onnontoeronnnon guides was delivered on the way; this did not prevent her from proceeding with the rest through a downpour of rain, which accompanied us all day and the whole of the following night.
Le vingt-cinquième, nous baptisâmes, après avoir célébré la sainte Messe, un enfant dont la femme d’un de nos guides Onnontoeronnons accoucha en chemin : ce qui ne l’empêcha pas de pourluiire comme les autres par une grosse pluie qui nous accompagna tout le jour & toute la nuit suivante.

Sur le soir quelques chasseurs nous ayant découverts & nous voyant bon nombre de canots de compagnie, s’enfuirent, & laissèrent de quoy piller à nos Gens, qui fe faiirent de leurs armes, de leurs caftors & de tout leur bagage: mais l’un de ces chasseurs ayant été pris nous reconnaîmes qu’il estoit de la nation des Andaftaeronnons avec lesquels nous n’ayons point la guerre : ce qu’il pûrent nous Français leur rendirent ce qu’ils avoient butiné ; ce qui n’obligea pas nos Sauages d’user de la même civilité.

[35] Le 26. fur les neuf heures du soir entendant une voix d’homme assez forte, mais assez lamentable, Nous nous doutâmes bien que c’etoit quelque prisonnier échappé : Monsieur du Puis braue Gentilhomme, qui commandoit nos soldats François, fit battre le tambour pour luy faire connoître que nous étions François. Ce pauvre homme n’ayant osé nous approcher, accourut à ce bruit le mieux qu’il pût. C’etoit un Huron nommé Ioachim Ondakont, duquel nous avoions parlé au Chapitre troisième. Il n’avoit que la peau & les os, s’etant fauëu du pays des Agnieron-nons à demy brûlé : il avoit marché dix-sept jours parmy les bois & parmy les rochers, sans manger autre chose que quelques petits fruictes sauvages. Nos gens luy firent prendre un certain breuvage pour disposer son estomach à prendre sa nourriture sans danger, après une si longue famine. Nous luy Toward evening some hunters perceived us, and, on seeing so many canoes in our company, they fled, leaving behind them some booty for our People, who seized their weapons, their beaver-skins, and all their baggage. But, capturing one of those hunters, we found that he belonged to the tribe of the Andastaeronnons, with whom we are not at war. Our French, therefore, gave back to them what they had plundered; this, however, did not induce our Savages to display the same civility.

[35] On the 26th, at about nine o'clock in the evening, we heard a human voice, loud, indeed, but wailing. We suspected that it must proceed from some escaped captive. Monsieur du Puis, a brave Gentleman who commanded our French soldiers, ordered the drum to be beaten, to show him that we were French. The poor man, who had not dared to approach us, ran toward us as fast as he could, on hearing the noise. He was a Huron, named Joachim Ondakont, of whom we have spoken in the third Chapter. He was nothing but skin and bones. He had escaped half burned from the country of the Agnieronnons, and had walked for seventeen days amid the woods and rocks, with no other food than some small wild fruits. Our people made him drink a certain beverage to prepare his stomach, that he might eat without danger after starving so long. We gave him a canoe and some provisions, to enable him to go down to the French settlements.

On the 27th of June, we passed the last rapid, which is half-way [36] between Montreal and Onnotage,—that is, at a distance of forty or fifty leagues from both places.
donnâmes vn canot & des viures pour descendre vers nos habitations Françoises.

Le 27. de Juin nous passâmes le dernier rapide qui se trouve au milieu du [36] chemin de Montreal à Onnontagé, c'est à dire à quarante ou cinquante lieues de l‘vn & l‘autre.

Le 29. voguant la nuit aussi bien que le iour, pource que nos prouisions diminuoient fort, nous rencontrâmes trois canots d‘Annieronnons qui venoient de la chaffe aux hommes, rapportans les cheuelures de quatre Sauuages de la Nation des Neds-percez, & tenant captiue vne femme & deux enfans.

Le premier de Iuillet nous donnâmes la chaffe à vn canot qui parut, l‘ayant attrapé comme il estoit du bourg d‘Onnontaghé: il nous dit qu‘on nous y attendoit, & que le Pere Iofeph Chaumont qui y estoit resté feul, fe portoit bien.

Le troisième iour la famine commençant de nous presser, nous fismes nos efforts pour arrier à vn lieu nommé Otiatannehengué, qui est lieu fort recommandable pour la grande pêche de poisson qui s‘y fait chaque année. Nous esperions y rencontrer bon nombre de pêcheurs & en tirer quelque foulagement: Monsieur du Puis fit tirer [37] deux petites pieces de canon embarquées dans nos canots deuant que d‘y aborder, pour leur donner aduis que nous n‘estions pas loing: mais la faison de la pêche estoit passée en ce quartier-là, nous n‘y trouuâmes personne. Ce qui obligea nos Guides de depecher vn homme pour aller iour & nuit porter la nouvelle de nostre marche à Onnontaghé, & pour faire apporter des viures au deuant de nous. Ce Courier ne deuant pas si-toft retourner, parce qu‘il luy restoit encore trente lieues
On the 29th, after traveling night and day because our stock of provisions was getting very low, we met three canoes of Annieronnons returning from man-hunting, who brought back with them the scalps of four Savages of the Neds-percez Nation, and a woman and two children as captives.

On the first of July, we perceived and gave chase to a canoe; when we overtook it we found that it belonged to the village of Onnontaghé. We were told that we were expected there, and that Father Joseph Chaumont, who had remained there alone, was in good health.

On the third day, we began to be oppressed by hunger, and endeavored to reach a place called Otiatannehengué,—a locality greatly renowned for the large quantities of fish that are taken there every year. We hoped to meet a good number of fishermen there, and to obtain some relief from them. Monsieur du Puis, before arriving there, ordered [37] two small pieces of cannon to be mounted in the canoes and discharged, to give notice that we were not far off; but the fishing season was over in that quarter, and we found no one there. This compelled our Guides to send a man in advance, traveling night and day, to carry the news of our arrival to Onnontaghé, and to have provisions sent to meet us. As this Courier could not return very soon, because he had still a distance of thirty leagues to go, we sent some French to a nearer place; but the fish had gone, and so had the fishermen, and neither the nets that we cast into the water, nor all our industry, could avail us aught. Meanwhile, hunger held us by the throat; and, to crown our affliction, our de chemin à faire, nous enuoyâmes quelques François en vn autre lieu plus proche: mais le poisson s'estant retiré, les pescheurs s'en estoient alléz, si bien que ny nos filets que nous iettâmes à l'eau, ny nos induftries n'eurent presque aucun effet. La famine cependant nous tenoit à la gorge, & pour comble de nostre affliction nostre Pere Superieur estoit tombé malade depuis quelque temps: nous n'auions autre liët à luy donner que la terre, ny presque autre abry que le ciel. Nous ne trouuios en toutes nos Hostelleries ny pain, ny vin, ny chair, ny poisson. Dieu [38] nous dôna vn petit fruict sauuage qu'on nomme icy AtoKa; La ieunesse en alloit ramafer dans les prairies voisines, & quoy qu'il n'eût presque ny gouft ny substânce, la faim nous le faisoit trouver excel-lent: il est presque de la couleur & de la groffeur d'vne petite cerife.

Nos Sauuages, quoy qu'accoustumez à pâsser les deux & trois iours fans manger, ne se contentant pas d'vne viande si mince & si legere, se defiloient tous les iours: si bien que de quarante qu'ils estoient à nostre depart, il n'en refta que cinq qui nous assu-rerent que jamais ils ne nous abandonneroient. Les Sonmontoeron nons prenant icy leur congé, nous leur fismes deux prefens de mille grains de Pourcelaine, l'vn pour nous preparer le chemin en leur pais, l'autre pour mettre en oubly les peines & les fatigues qu'ils auoient prifes, venant rechercher l'alliance des François; & pour les porter à nous témoigner bon visage, quand nous les irions voir. Nous donnâmes en particulier deux capots & quelques autres petits prefens aux principaux pour les gagner.

[39] Le cinq & sixième de Juillet nous peschames
Father Superior had fallen ill some time before. We had no other bed to give him than the earth, and no other shelter than the sky. In all our Hostelries, we found neither bread, nor wine, nor meat, nor fish. God [38] gave us a small wild fruit, called here Atoka. The young people went to gather it in the neighboring meadows, and, although it is neither palatable nor substantial, hunger made us find it excellent. It is almost of the color and size of a small cherry.\(^\text{18}\)

Our Savages, although accustomed to remain for two or three days without food, were not content with such slender and light repasts, and their number decreased daily. Thus, out of the forty with whom we had started, there remained only five, who assured us that they would never abandon us. The Sonnontoeronnons left us here. We gave them two presents of a thousand Porcelain beads; one, to prepare the way to their country for us; the other, to enable them to forget the trouble and fatigue that they had undergone in coming to seek the alliance of the French, and to induce them to receive us well when we should go to see them. We privately gave two coats and some other small presents to the chief men, to gain their good will.

[39] On the fifth and sixth of July, we caught some fish; but they were so few, that we could give only a rather small pike as a meal for sixty men.

On the seventh, about ten o'clock at night, we reached the mouth of the River which forms Lake Gannentaa, on the shores of which we intended to establish our residence. When we awoke on the following day, we encountered currents of water so quelques poissans, mais en si petite quantité, qu'on donna pour tous mets vn brochet assés mediocre à foixante hommes.

Le septième nous arrivaîmes sur les dix heures du soir à l'embouchure de la Riuire qui fait le Lac de Gannentaa, sur les riuies duquel nous pretendions establir noftrre demeure; & le lendemain à noftrre réueil nous apperceuîmes des courrans d'eau si rapides, qu'il les falloit furmôter à tour de bras & à force de rames. Je vous auoûte que les vilages de la plupart de nous déja tout havres & tout défâits parurent extraordinairement abbatu. On n'auoit donné le foir à noftrre couche qu'une goutte d'eau de vie à tous ceux de noftrre fuitte, & il falloit partir le matin pour combattre tout le iour contre des brîfants, qui nous faifoient presque autant reculer que nous avancions. En effet, nous ne fîmes qu'une lieuë ce iour là, vne partie de nos gens tombant malades, & les autres perdant courage, faute de forces. La prouidence de Dieu est admirable, [40] deducit ad inferos & reducit. Eftant entierement abbatu nous vîmes paroïftrre vn canot chargé de viures qui venoit à nous plufîoft à force d'aîfles que de rames. Cette vueu guerit quasi tous nos malades, nos forces rentroient par nos yeux, & nos fatigues n'attendoient pas que nous fussions en repos pour s'en aller. Le regard seul nous rendoit la ioye & la fantë. Nous mettons pied à terre, & celuy qui estoit Maïître du connuoy, apres nous auoir fait vn petit compliment, nous prefenta de la part des Anciens & du P. Chaumôt des facs de bled d'Inde & de grand Saumons qui venoîët d'etre cuits. Ce petit canot fut fuiuy de deux autres plus grands, auû bien remplis que le premier. Nous rapid, that we had to exert all our strength and paddle vigorously in order to ascend. I must admit that the faces of most of us, already wan and emaciated, appeared dejected to an extraordinary degree. At night, all our company lay down, having taken nothing but a drop of brandy; and, in the morning, we had to start out and contend all day long against breakers, which made us recede almost as far as we advanced. In fact, we made only a league that day; for some of our people fell ill, and the others lost courage, owing to their weakness. God's providence is admirable; [40] deducit ad inferos et reduct. In this state of complete dejection, we observed a canoe, loaded with provisions, coming toward us, which seemed to be propelled by wings instead of paddles. The sight cured nearly all our sick; our strength returned to us through our eyes; and our fatigue did not wait to disappear until we should have rested. The sight alone restored us to joy and health. We landed; and he who was the Master of the convoy, after a short greeting, presented us, on behalf of the Elders and of Father Chau-mont, with some sacks of Indian corn and some large Salmon that had just been cooked. This small canoe was followed by two larger ones, as well filled as the first. We give thanks to God for granting us a succor so greatly needed. On every side, Kettles are hanging over the fire, and there is naught but rejoicing. One good day effaces the remembrance of ten evil ones. All that remains of our famine, is the glory of having suffered for our Lord, qui facit etiam cum tentatione proventum. Then did he, indeed, make us experience [41] the truth of his promises, by rendons graces à Dieu de ce qu'il nous auoit accordé ce secours si nécessaire. On met par tout les Chaudières hautes, ce n'est que rejoïffance. Un beau jour efface la mémoire de dix mauvais. Il ne reste plus rien de notre famine que la gloire d'auoir fouffert quelque chose pour notre Seigneur, qui facit etiam cum tentatione prouentum. Il nous fit bien alors experimenter [41] la vérité de ses promesses, nous donnant vne abondance plus grande au centuple, que la difette que nous auions ressenti pour fon seruice n'auoit esté pressante. Je pourrois dire qu'il ramena exprès pour nous le poisson dans les Riuieres, l'vn de nos hommes ayant pris la mesme nuiët vingt grands Saumons & quelques Barbuës. Et le dixième du mesme mois de Juillet passant vne fault de cinq lieues, qui est le plus long que nous ayons rencontré, nos gens prirent en chemin faissant trente-quatre autres Saumons à coups d'espées & d'auirons: il y en auoit si grande quantité qu'on les affommoit sans peine. Sur le foir nous trouuafmes au lieu où nous voulions pañer la nuiët l'vn des premiers Capitaines d'Onnontaghé qui nous receut avec vne belle harangue, dans laquelle il témoigna que la joie que tout le pais receuoit de notre arriuée n'estoit pas mediocre. Que toutes les quatre nations y prenoient part, & que tous les Anciens nous attendoient avec impatience. L'onzième de Juillet nous nous trouuafmes fur les trois heures [42] après midy à l'entrée du Lac de Gannentaa, fur les riuës duquel nous auions destîné nostre demeure, où les Anciens fçachant que c'éfoit le lieu que les Peres Chaumont & d'Ablon auoient aggréés, nous attendoient avec vne grande multitude de peuples.
giving us an abundance greater by a hundred times than had been the privations which we had suffered in his service. I might say that he filled the Rivers anew with fish expressly for us; for that very night one of our men caught twenty large Salmon, and some Catfish. And, on the tenth of the same month of July, while passing a rapid five leagues in length,—the longest that we had met,—our people killed on the way thirty-four other Salmon with spears and paddles; there were so many of them, that they were struck without difficulty. In the evening, we found, on the spot where we intended to pass the night, one of the leading Captains of Onnontaghe. He received us with a fine harangue, in which he stated that the joy felt by the whole country at our arrival was not slight; that all the four tribes joined in it, and that all the Elders were impatiently waiting for us. On the eleventh of July, at about three o'clock [42] in the afternoon, we reached the entrance to Lake Gannentaa, on the shores of which we intended to establish our residence. Here the Elders, who knew that this was the spot upon which Fathers Chaumont and d'Ablon had decided, awaited our arrival with a great multitude of people.

In size, the Lake is about two leagues in length, and half a league in width. We have observed three remarkable facts in connection with it.

The first is, that, South of it, there are springs of salt water, although the Lake itself is very far from the Sea,—just as in Lorraine, where there are similar springs. But I do not think that salt can be obtained there with as much facility as here; for it is found ready-made on the soil in the vicinity of La grandeur du Lac est d'environ deux lieues de longueur, & d'une demi lieue de largeur. Nous y avons remarqué trois choses assez considérables.

La première est qu'on trouve du côté du Midy quelques sources ou fontaines d'eau salée, quoiqu'que ce Lac soit fort éloigné de la Mer, aussi bien que la Lorraine, où il s'en trouve de semblables : mais je ne croy pas que le fel s'y face avec la facilité qu'on le pourra faire icy. Car on trouve du fel tout fait fur la terre aux environs de ces sources, & faisant bouillir l'eau, elle se convertit aisément en fel.

La seconde est qu'au Printemps il s'amasse à l'en-tour de ces salines une grande quantité de Tourterelles qu'on en prend quelquesfois jusqu'à sept cents en une matinée.

[43] La troisième chose remarquable est qu'il se rencontre au même endroit certains serpens qui ne se voyent point ailleurs, que nous appelons des serpens à sonnettes, pource qu'en rampant ils font un bruit semblable à celui d'une sonnette, ou plutôt d'une cigale. Ils portent au bout de leurs queues certaines écailles rondes engagées l'une dans l'autre, de telle sorte qu'en les ouvrant & referrant ils font ce bruit qu'on entend de vingt pas. Ces sonnettes ou écailles ne laissent pas de faire du bruit quand on les remué après la mort du serpent ; mais il n'est pas si grand que celui qu'elles font lors que le serpent est en vie. Les originaires du pays disent que ces écailles font excellentes contre le mal de dents, & que fa chair, qu'ils trouuent d'auflfi bon goust que celle de l'anguille, guerit de la fievre : ils en coupent la queue, & la tête qui est toute plate & presque carrée, & mangent le reste. Son corps a those springs, and, when the water is boiled, it is easily turned into salt.

The second is, that, in the Spring, so great numbers of Pigeons collect around these salt-springs, that sometimes as many as seven hundred are caught in the course of one morning.

[43] The third remarkable fact is, that at the same place there are found certain snakes, which are seen nowhere else. We call them rattlesnakes, because, as they crawl along, they make a noise like that of a rattle,—or, rather, of a cicada. At the ends of their tails they have round scales, so joined one with another that, by opening and closing them, they make that noise, which is heard at a distance of twenty paces. These rattles or scales also make a noise when they are shaken after the death of the snake; but it is not so loud as that which the snake makes when alive. The natives of the country say that its scales are an excellent remedy for toothache, and that its flesh, which they find as well flavored as that of the eel, cures fever. They cut off the tail and the head, which is quite flat and almost square, and eat the remainder. The body is about three feet long, thicker than a man’s wrist, and all speckled on the back with black and yellow spots,—except on the tail, [44] which is almost entirely black. It has four teeth, two above and two below, as long as our small needles, but much sharper. It bites like a dog, and injects its poison into the wound through a small black sting, which it draws out of a bag containing the poison. When a person is bitten, he at once swells up, and, unless he receive prompt assistance, he dies in a short time, entirely covered environ trois pieds de longueur, il est plus gros que le poignet d'un homme, & tout marqueté sur le dos de taches noires & jaunes, excepté sur la queue qui est quasi toute noire. Il a quatre dents, deux en haut & deux en bas aussi longues, mais plus aiguës que nos petites aiguilles. Il mord comme un chien, & fait decouler son venin dans la morsure par un petit aiguillon noir qu'il tire d'une bourse où ce poisson est renfermé. Quand quelqu'un en est mordu, il enfle aussi-toit, & si il n'est promptement secouru, il meurt en peu de temps tout couvert de pustules rouges. Aussi-toit que ces Serpens voient un homme, ils sifflent & battent de la queue faisant ioüer leurs sonnettes, soit pour épouvanter leur ennemy, soit pour s'animer au combat, ou plustost parce que Dieu leur a donné cet instinct, afin que les hommes soient fur leurs gardes à l'approche d'un si dangereux animal. Je ne fçay pas si ces Serpens sont attirés par le sel; mais je fçay bien que le lieu où nous avons dressé notre demeure entourré de belles sources d'eau douce, n'en est point infecté, quoi qu'il soit fur les rives du même Lac. Mais reprenons notre route.
with red pustules. When these Snakes see a man, they hiss and shake their tails, sounding their rattles, either to frighten the enemy, or to excite themselves for the fight,—or, rather, because God has given them that instinct in order that men may be on their guard at the approach of so dangerous an animal. I know not whether these Snakes are attracted by the salt; but I do know that the spot whereon we have erected our dwelling, and which is surrounded by fine springs of fresh water, is not infested by them, although it is on the shore of the same Lake. But let us continue our journey.

CHAPTER V.

OUR ARRIVAL AT THE PLACE WHERE WE HAD DETERMINED TO ESTABLISH OUR ABODE, AND THE RECEPTION GIVEN US BY THE PEOPLE OF THE COUNTRY.

I STATED, in the foregoing Chapter, that on the eleventh of July we entered the Lake called Gannentaa, on the shores of which we were to erect our dwelling. When we had advanced to a distance of a quarter of a league from the spot, we ourselves landed five small pieces of cannon, the light thunder of which we made resound along the waters of the lake; this was followed by the discharge of all the arquebuses in the hands of our people. Such was the first salute that we sent over the water, through the air, and through the woods, to the Elders of the country, who were awaiting us with a great multitude of people. The noise rolled over the water, burst in the air, and was most agreeably reechoed by the forests. After this, we advanced in fine order, our canoes or small boats proceeding four by four along this little Lake. On landing, our French fired a second discharge or salvo, so skillfully that they delighted all those poor people.

The Elders had caused two scaffolds to be erected, from which to pay us their compliments aloud, and to deliver to us their harangues. These were interrupted by a downpour of rain, which compelled us paroles se changeant en caresses & en témoignages de joie de part & d’autre.

Si ces pauvres Sauvages nous faisoient tout l’accueil possible, faisans voir dans leurs yeux & leurs gestes les sentiments de leur cœur tout remply de tendresse pour nous; nos actions correspondoient à leur amour, en forte que dans tous ces témoignages de joie & d’affection reciproque, nous benissions Dieu de ce qu’il nous auroit conferuez parmy tant de peines, de dangers & de fatigues, & de ce qu’il nous auroit enfin conduit au bout de nostre pelerinage.

Le lendemain matin douzième de Juillet nous chan-îmes le Te Deum en action de graces de nostre heureuse arriuée, & prîmes possession de tout ce pays au nom deIESVS-CHRIST, le luy dediant & confacrant au fainct Sacrifice de la Messé. Les Anciens nous firent en suite quelques présens pour nous feliciter de nostre arriuée & nous souhaitter vn heureux establissement.

Le Dimanche fuyant, qui eftoit le [48] feizième du meûme mois, nous accomplîmes vn voeu que nous all to seek shelter; the words changed into caresses and manifestations of joy on both sides.

If these poor Savages gave us the best possible welcome,—showing in their eyes and gestures the sentiments of their hearts, which were full of tenderness for us,—our own actions responded to their love; and, in those manifestations of joy and mutual affection, we blessed God for having preserved us amid so many privations, dangers, and fatigues, and for having finally brought us safely to the end of our pilgrimage.

[47] It is the custom of these peoples to entertain during a portion of the night those who come to visit them,—either with compliments, or with speeches seasoned with the graces of the country, and full of polite sayings after their fashion; or, again, with their customary songs and dances. But, when they saw us so fatigued after so long a journey, they told us that they would withdraw, in order that their civilities might not disturb our rest,—to which they said that they wished to contribute, by singing around our cabins the softest and most agreeable airs, and those most capable of sending us to sleep.

On the morning of the following day, the twelfth of July, we chanted the Te Deum in thanksgiving for our happy arrival, and took possession of the whole country in the name of Jesus Christ,—dedicating and consecrating it to him at the holy Sacrifice of the Mass. The Elders afterward gave us some presents, to congratulate us upon our arrival and to wish us a propitious establishment.

On the following Sunday, which was the [48] sixteenth of the same month, we fulfilled a vow that we had made amid the dangers of our journey; we had auions fait dâs les dangers de noftrre voyage, promettant à Dieu de Communier tous ensemble, s’il nous donnoit la grace de nous voir tous dans le païs que nous cherchions: ayant obtenu cette faueur tous nos François receurent le pain sacré en vne Meffe qui fut chantée fort solemnellement: Ce fut-là que nous depliâmes tous nos ornemens, qui feroient pauures en France, mais qui pafferent icy pour tres-magnifiques.

Le Lundy dix-îptième on commença à travailler tout de bon à nous loger, & à faire vn bon Reduit pour les foldats: nous l’auons placé sur vne eminence qui commande sur le Lac & sur tous les endroits circonuoifins. Les fontaines d’eau douce y font en abondance, & en vn mot le lieu paroît aussi beau que commode & aduantageux. Pendant que les hommes de trauail font dans cette occupation, noftrre Pere Superieur à qui Noftrre Seigneur auoit rendu la fanté, s’en alla avec quinze de nos plus leftes foldats au Bourg d’Onnontaghé, [49] éloigné de cinq petites lieuës de noftrre demeure. Le peuple estant auerti de la venuë des François, fortit en foule au deuant de nous. Eftant à vn quart de lieuë du Bourg, quelques Anciens nous prierent de faire alte & de prendre haleine, pour efcopter vne harangue gentille & toute pleine de compliments que nous fit vn Capitaine des plus considerables du païs, lequel marchant enfuite deuant nous, nous fit paffer au trauers d’vn grand peuple qui s’estoit rangé en haye des deux costez.
Nous le fuiuions doucement & en bel ordre fuiuis d’vn autre Capitaine, qui venoit apres nous pour empefcher que ce grâd monde ne nous ferrat de trop près. Nos foldats firent à l’entrée de la Bourgade vne belle faulce qui rauit tous les espectateurs. Nous promised God to receive Communion all together, if he granted us the grace that we might all see ourselves in the country for which we were bound. As we had obtained that favor, all our French received the sacred bread at a Mass that was most solemnly chanted. On that occasion, we displayed all our ornaments, which would be considered poor in France, but which were deemed very magnificent here.

On Monday, the seventeenth, we set to work in good earnest, to build lodgings for ourselves, and a good Redout for the soldiers, which we erected on an eminence commanding the Lake and all the surrounding places. There is an abundance of fresh-water springs; and, in a word, the spot seems as beautiful as it is convenient and advantageous. While the workmen were so employed, our Father Superior, whom Our Lord had restored to health, went with fifteen of our best soldiers to the Village of Onmontaghé, [49] at a distance of five short leagues from our residence. The people, who had been notified of the coming of the French, came forth in crowds to meet us. At a quarter of a league from the Village, some Elders begged us to halt and take breath, in order to listen to a polite harangue, full of compliments, delivered to us by a Captain, one of the leading men of the country. He then walked before us, and led us through a great crowd formed in ranks on both sides. We marched behind him quietly, and in fine order, followed by another Captain,—who came after us, to prevent the great crowd from pressing too closely on us. At the entrance to the Village, our soldiers fired a fine salvo, which delighted all the spectators. We were conducted to the Cabin of one of the principal and most renowned Captains of the fûmes conduits dans la Cabane de l vn des plus notables & des plus fameux Capitaines du pays, où toutes choses estoient bien préparées pour nous recevoir à leur mode: on nous apportoit des fruits de tous côtes, ce n estoient que festins, & dix jours durant toute la pêche & la chaffe de cette bourgade fut [50] employée pour regaler les François; chaque famille nous voulant avoir à l enuy. Quelques temps après vne autre escoiade de François en bonne conche arruant tambour battant, on ne vit jamais tant de visages épanouis, il sembloit que les cœurs des Sauuages fertoient par leurs yeux, & ie ne croy pas qu'on puiſſe conceuoir, sans l'auoir veu, les téſmoiſnages d'amour & de cordialité qu'ils nous donnoient. Si aprés tout cela ils nous trahiſſent & nous maſſacrent, ie les accuſerai non pas de diſſimulation, mais de legereté & d'inconſtance, qui peut changer en peu de temps l'amour & la confiance de ces Barbares en crainte, en haine & en perfidie: Adiouſtez que les Demons cherchent toutes les occasions de nous perdre, & que fi les hommes perfeſtent en plusiers endroits les Iſuïtes, ces malheureux esprits auxquels ils déclarent par tout la guerre, ne les épargneront pas.

Le foir de noſtre enтрée les deputés de quelques nations nous vindrent faluer, & pour montrer l'eſtimo de queſte les Onmontagheron nons faïſoient d'Achi-édafé, [51] c'eft le nom du Pere ſupérieur, ils voulurent par vn prɛſent que la Natte fût le lieu des confeis & des asſembles, c'eft à dire le Palais où on deuoit traier de toutes les affaires du pays. Les Onmontagheron nons nous firent aſſi leurs prefens avec grande ciuiſſité.

Les Annieronnons ne pouuant fe diſpenſer de la country, where everything was prepared for our reception in their fashion. Fruit was brought to us from all sides; there was nothing but feasting; and for ten days all the game and fish of the village were used in regaling the French. All the families vied with one another as to which one should have us. Some time afterward, another squad of French in fine attire marched in, with the drum beating. Never were seen so many bright faces; it seemed as if the hearts of the Savages were leaping out of their eyes; and I do not think that it is possible, without having seen it, to conceive the manifestations of affection and cordiality with which they greeted us. If, after all that, they betray and massacre us, I will accuse them, not of dissimulation, but of frivolity and inconstancy, which in a short time can change the affection and confidence of those Barbarians into fear, hatred, and treachery. Add to this, that the Demons seek every opportunity to bring about our destruction; and that, if men persecute the Jesuits in many places, those wretched spirits, against whom they wage war everywhere, will not spare them.

On the evening of our arrival, the envoys from some nations came to pay us their respects, and to manifest the esteem in which the Onnontagheronnons held Achiendase, that is the name of the Father superior. By means of a present, they expressed their wish that his Mat should be the place for holding councils and meetings,—that is, the Palace where all the affairs of the country should be discussed. The Onnontagheronnons also gave us their presents with great civility.

The Annieronnons, unable to avoid complying loy commune du pays firent à la vérité leurs présents: mais étant piqués au jeu & ne pouvant supporter nostre alliance avec ces peuples, ils firent vne harangue plaine de rîées & de railleries contre les Français, & se voulant excuser de ce qu'ayant reçu des prefens à Quebec pour toutes les nations Iroquois, ils ne les auoient pas distribués, ils dirent que les Français estoient affez stupides pour donner des choses qui ne se pouvoient partager, & qu'ainfi ils auoient efté contraints de donner tous ces prefens à leur nation.

Le Père superior repliqua à leurs impostures d'vnne maniere si pressante qu'ils se repentirent bientoft de leurs fausses accusations. Il leur dit que la memoire ne manquoit jamais aux François qui [52] auoient la plume en main, & que si leur esprit s'oublioit de quelques choses, leur papier les leur fuggeroit au besoin. Il raconta en suite tout ce qui s'estoit passé au Conseil des François & des Iroquois Annieronnons, fit vn denombrement de tous les coliers de porcelaines, de toutes les arquebufes, de tous les capots, & en vn mot de tous les présens qui auoient efté faits par le grand Capitaine des François. Nomma les nations & les personnes mefme de considération à qui chaque present auoit efté destine. Puis demanda au braue Annieronnon si ces choses ne pouvoient pas eftre données séparément. Il s'enquéfta des députés des nations, si du moins la memoire de ces prefens auoit efté portée iufques en leur païs, puis que l'Annierônôn confesfoit les avoir retenus. Ce pauvre homme qui croioit que nous ne faisions que begaier en leur langue, comme les Europeans qui ont commerce avec eux, fut si furpris entendant with the common law of the country, did, indeed, give their presents. But, as they wished to attain their end in spite of every obstacle, and could not bear to see our alliance with those tribes, they delivered a harangue full of jests and raillery against the French. To excuse themselves for not having distributed the presents which they had received at Quebec for all the Iroquois nations, they said that the French were stupid enough to give them things which could not be divided, and that thus they had been obliged to give all those presents to their own nation.

The Father superior replied to their impostures in so emphatic a manner that they soon repented of their false accusations. He told them that memory never failed the French, who [52] had their pens in their hands; and that if their minds forgot anything, their paper reminded them of it when necessary. He then related all that had happened at the Council between the French and the Annieronnon Iroquois; he enumerated all the collars of porcelain beads, all the arquebuses, all the coats,—in a word, all the presents that had been given by the great Captain of the French; he mentioned the nations, and even the persons of rank, for whom each present had been designed. Then he asked the worthy Annieronnon whether such things could not be given separately. He inquired of the envoys from the nations whether at least the remembrance of these presents had been brought to their country, since the Annieronnon admitted that he had retained them. The poor man, who thought that we could only stammer in their language, like the Europeans who trade with them, was so surprised when he heard the Father, that he le Père, qu’il rechercha depuis tous les moyens de se mettre bien dans son esprit.

Après cette assemblée nous employâmes [53] quelques jours à visiter & à gagner les diverses nations qui estoient à Onnontaghe, & qui tous les jours y abordoient pour se trouver à la décision de deux grandes affaires, & au grand conseil de guerre qui se tient ordinairement en cette bourgade.

Les députés de Sonnontoûan & d’Oïogouan étant arrivés, nous les allâmes falâier. Les premiers faisant paroître leur deuil pour la mort de l’un de leurs Capitaines nommé Ahiarantouan tué par les Annien-ronnons au quartier des Trois-Rivières remplissoient l’air de chansons lugubres. Nous leur fîmes présent pour foulager leur douleur: mais quand il fallut répondre, l’Oïogouanronnon prît la parole & dit que la playe que les Sonnontoueronnons auoient receuë, auoit changé leur joie en larmes, & leurs voix en soupirs & en chansons de deuil.

Toutes les nations étant assemblées il fallut deuant que de tenir conseil, expier le Bourg à cause de la mort d’un Capitaine arrivé la nuit précédente, lequel par grand bon-heur pour luy, auoit [54] receu le fainé Baptesme deux iours auparauant, apres vne bonne & fainete instruction. Cette expiation se fit par deux prefens, dont l’un feruit pour essuier les larmes de l’Onnontagheronnon, & pour luy rendre la parolle que cette mort luy auoit rauie, l’autre pour nettoier le fang qui pourroit etre tombé du corps mort sur la Natte du Confeil, L’Onnontagheronnon respondit par deux autres prefens. L’un pour donner parolle qu’on alloit courir ce corps, & l’autre pour affeurer que le Confeil en fuite feroit ouuert.
afterward sought every means to ingratiate himself with him.

After that meeting, we employed ourselves for some days in visiting and winning over the various nations that were at Onnontaghé; they were arriving there daily, in order to be present at the decision of two weighty matters, and at the great council of war which is usually held in that village.

When the envoys from Sonnontouan and Oiogouan arrived, we went to greet them. The former, mourning the death of one of their Captains named Ahia-rantouan, who had been killed by the Annieronnonns in the vicinity of Three Rivers, filled the air with their lugubrious chants. We gave them a present to allay their grief; but, when the time came to reply, the Oiogouanronnon spoke, and said that the wound received by the Sonnontoueronnonns had changed their joy to tears, and their voices to sighs and mournful songs.

When all the nations had assembled, it was necessary, before the council was held, to propitiate the Village on account of the death of a Captain, which had taken place during the previous night. Most fortunately for him, he had received holy Baptism two days before, after good and holy instruction. This propitiation was made by means of two presents, one of which served to wipe away the tears of the Onnontagheronnon, and to restore his speech, of which death had deprived him; the other was to clean away the blood that might have fallen from the dead body upon the Council Mat. The Onnontagheronnon replied with two other presents; one was to promise that the body should be buried, and the other to state that the Council would afterward be opened.
Ces peuples auoient conuqué tous les Estats du pays, ou plustoft toutes les Nations alliées pour reconcilier les Annieronnons avec les Sonnontoueronnons qui estoient sur le point d'entrer en guerre pour la mort du Capitaine dont nous venons de parler: Pour traiter de nof dre eftabliftement au centre de leur pays, & pour inuiter tous ces peuples à mettre quelque chofe dans la chaudière de guerre; c'eft à dire pour auifer aux moyens d'attaquer & défaire leurs ennemis, & fournir à quelques frais communs. [55] Voila les deffeins de ces pauures peuples; mais Dieu en auoit d'autres bien plus releues. Il vouloit eftre annoncé & prefché dans vne assemblée la plus celebre & la plus nombreufe qui fe puiffe prefque faire en ces contrées.

On tint ce grand confeil le 24. du mois de Juillet, où toutes les Nations remirent entre les mains d'Achiendafé (qui eft nof tre Pere Superieur) le different d'entre les Sonnontoüeronnons & les Annieronnons qui fut bien-toft terminé. Elles agréerent en fuitte auec des témoignages d'une bien-veillance extraordinaire nof tre demeure & nof tre eftabliftement en leur pays. Chacun enfin mit fes prefs dans la chaudière de guerre. Or ces peuples étant grands harangueurs & fe fercuant fouuent d'allégories & de metaphores, nos Peres pour les attirer à Dieu, s'accommodent à leur façon de faire: ce qui les rauit, voyant que nous y reuifions aussi bien qu'eux.

Nous auions fi bien eftallé & fi bien dreflé & rangé nos prefs qu'ils paroiffoient à merueille: mais le Pere Iofeph [56] Chaumont qui parle l'Iroquois aussi bien que les naturels du pays, fembla en rehausser le prix, en donnant l'interpretation.
These people had called together all the States of the country, or rather all the allied Nations, to reconcile the Annieronnons with the Sonnontoueronnons, who were on the point of going to war on account of the death of the Captain whom we have just mentioned; to treat of our establishment in the heart of the country; and to invite all those tribes to put something into the war-kettle,—that is, to consult together about the means of attacking and defeating their enemies, and of contributing toward the general expenses. [55] Such were the designs of these poor people; but God had other and higher ones. It was his will to be announced and preached in an assembly, a more notable or more numerous one than which can scarcely be held in these countries.

That great council was held on the 24th of the month of July, when all the Nations placed in the hands of Achiendasé (who is our Father Superior) the settlement of the difficulty between the Sonnontoueronnons and the Annieronnons, which was soon ended. They then, with manifestations of extraordinary good will, agreed that we should establish ourselves and reside in their country. Finally, each one deposited his presents in the war-kettle. Now, as these people are great haranguers, and frequently make use of allegories and metaphors, our Fathers adapt themselves to this custom of theirs, to win them to God. They are delighted when they see that we succeed as well as they.

We had so well displayed, arranged, and disposed our presents, that they made a wonderful show; but Father Joseph [56] Chaumont, who speaks Iroquois as well as the natives of the country, seemed to add to their value in interpreting their meaning.
Il ne fera pas hors de propos de remarquer en passant que ces présents ne font autre chose que des colliers de porcelaine, des arquebuses, de la poudre & du plomb, des capots, des haches, des chaudières & d’autres denrées semblables qu’on achète des Marchands avec des caftors, qui font la monnoie qu’ils demandent pour le payement de leurs marchandises. Que si un Iesuite en reçoit ou en recueille quelques-uns pour aider aux frais immenses qu’il faut faire dans ces Missions si éloignées, & pour gagner ces peuples à IESVS-CHRIST & les porter à la paix, il ferait à souhaiter que ceux-là mêmes qui deuroient faire ces dépenses pour la confération du pays, ne fussent pas du moins les premiers à condamner le zèle de ces Peres, & à les redire par leurs discours plus noirs, que leurs robes; ils deuroient laisser ces fortes de médisance à la basse populace toujours mal informée de ce qui se passe, & [57] dont l’ignorance semble excuser les calomnies. Mais saisons bien, & laissons mal parler: puisqu’aufl si bien les calomnies font le ciment de la vertu. On nous écrit de France qu’on ne fçauroit plus fournir aux grands frais que nous faisons dans ces nouvelles entreprises. Nous y donnons nos travaux, nos sueurs, nostre sang & nos vies: Si faute de secours nous femmes contraints de quitter vn poste si avantageux pour la Foy & pour la confération du pays, ceux qui nous percutent n’en feront pas plus riches, & Dieu en fera moins glorifié.

Retournons, s’il vous plaît, à nos présens. Deuant que d’en donner l’explication, tous nos Peres & nos François fe jetterent à genoux, mirent bas leurs chapeaux, & joignirent les mains entonnant à haute voix
It will not be out of place to observe in passing, that these presents consist entirely of porcelain collars, beads, arquebuses, powder and lead, coats, hatchets, kettles, and other similar articles. These are purchased from the Merchants with beaver-skins, which are the money that they demand in payment for their wares. Now, if a Jesuit receives or collects some of these furs, to help to pay the enormous expenses that have to be incurred in Missions so distant, to win those peoples to JESUS CHRIST, and restore peace among them, it would be desirable that those very persons who ought to incur these expenses for the preservation of the country should, at least, not be the first to condemn the zeal of those Fathers, and, in their tales, to paint them blacker than their gowns. They should leave slanders of that kind to the low rabble, ever wrongly informed about what is going on, and [57] whose calumnies may be excused through their ignorance. But let us do what is right, and allow evil to be said of us; for calumny is also the cement of virtue. They write to us from France that they can no longer provide means for the heavy expenditure that we incur in these new undertakings. We devote to them our labors, our sweat, our blood, and our lives. If, through lack of aid, we be compelled to abandon a post so advantageous for the Faith and for the preservation of the country, those who persecute us will be none the richer for it, and God will be less glorified.

Let us return to our presents, if you please. Before giving an explanation of them, all our Fathers and our French knelt down, removed their hats, clasped their hands, and intoned aloud the Veni le Veni Creator tout au long : ce qui surprit & rauit toute l’assistance à laquelle nous fîmes entendre que nous ne traitions d’aucune affaire importante, fans demander auparavant le secours de l’Esprit qui regit tout l’univers.

Le Père Ioseph Chaumont fe leuant [58] en fuitte expliqua huit ou dix prefens faits pour adoucir les regrets de la mort de plusieurs Capitaines, & pour faire reuivre dans la Foy de leurs enfans & de leurs amis quelques braues Chrétiens & Chrétiennes passées depuis peu de la terre au ciel. Il ioinct les Algonquins & les Hurons dans fes prefens pour ne faire qu’un cœur & un peuple avec toutes ces Nations. Il dit à haute voix que Onontaghe estant comme le Parlement de tout le pays, & Agochiendaguété le plus consideré dans toutes ces contrées, Achiendafé fe venoit ioindre à luy comme la bouche d’Onontio, afin de l’aider à releuer les maisons renuerfées, à refuiciter les morts, à maintenir ce qui estoit en bon estat, & à defendre le pays contre les perturbateurs de la paix. Pendant que le Père expliquoit toutes ces choses en detail, ce n’estoit qu’admirations & acclamations de tous ces peuples rauis de nous voir fi verfés dans leurs facons de faire.

Il fit vn present en action de graces de ce qu’on auoit fait part à Onontio des dépouilles qu’ils auoient remportés [59] fur leurs ennemis, luy ayant enuoié deux enfans qu’ils auoient pris & emmenés de la Nation de Chats.

Il en fit deux autres, l’vn en reconnaissance de ce qu’ils nous auoient receus en leur pays avec autant de courtoisie, qu’ils nous y auoient inuited avec infinité; & l’autre pour leur faire mettre le canot à Creator at full length. This astonished and delighted the spectators, to whom we explained that we never dealt with any matter of importance without first asking the assistance of the Spirit who governs the whole world.

Then Father Joseph Chaumont arose [58] and explained the meaning of eight or ten presents, given to assuage their grief for the death of several Captains, and to obtain that some worthy Christians of both sexes, who had lately passed from earth to heaven, might live again in the Faith of their children and their friends. In distributing these presents he included the Algonquins and the Hurons, that they might form but one heart and one people with all those Nations. He proclaimed that, as Onontaghé was the Parliament of the whole country and Agochiendagueté the most esteemed in all those regions, Achiendasé, as the mouth of Onontio, came to unite with him, to help him in raising up the houses that had been overthrown in bringing the dead back to life, in maintaining what was in good condition, and in defending the country against the disturbers of the peace. While the Father explained all these matters in detail, he was listened to with admiration and with the acclamations of all those peoples, who were delighted to see us so well versed in their ways.

He gave a present to return thanks that they had shared with Onnontio the spoils taken [59] from their enemies; for they had sent him two children, whom they had taken and brought hither from the Cat Nation.

He gave two others; one, in acknowledgment of their reception of us into their country, which was l’eau, pour faire fçauoir à Quebec de nos nouuelles.

Enfin le Pere prenant vn ton de voix plus éleué & animant fa parolle, s’écrit: ce n’est point pour le commerce que vous nous voïés paroïître dans voftre pays, nos pretentions font bien plus releuées: vos pelleteries font trop peu de chofe pour nous faire entreprendre vn fi long voyaie avec tant de travaux & tant de dangers. Gardés vos caf tors si vous le trouués bon pour les Hollandois; ceux mesmes qui tomberoient entre nos mains, feroient emploïés pour voftre fervice, nous ne cherchons point les chofes periffables, c’est pour la Foy que nous auons quitté noftre païs, c’est pour la Foy que nous auons abandonné nos parens & nos amis; c’est pour la Foy que nous auons trauerfé l’oceean; c’est pour la [60] Foy que nous auons quitté les grands Nauires des Fran çois pour nous embarquer dans vos petits canots; c’est pour la Foy que nous auons laiffé de belles maisons, pour nous loger sous vos écorces; c’est pour la Foy que nous auons pruions de noftre nourriture naturelle, & des mets deliciueux dont nous pouuionsioüir en France; pour manger de voftre bouillie & de vos mets, dont à peine les animaux de noftre païs voudroient goüfter: & prenant vn tres-beau colier de pourcelaine artiftement fait: c’est pour la Foy que je tiens en main ce riche prèsent, & que j’ouvre la bouche pour vous fommer de la parolle que vous nous dönaftes lors que vous descendites à Quebec pour nous conduire en voftre pays. Vous auës pro mis folemnellement que vous preftériés l’oreille aux parolles du grand Dieu, elles font en ma bouche, écoutes-les, ie ne fuis que fon organe. Il vous enuoie donner aduis par fes Meffagers que fon Fils as courteous as the invitation had been urgent; and the other, to induce them to place in the water the hcanoe, that it might carry news of us to Quebec.
Finally, the Father assumed a louder tone, and with impassioned words he exclaimed: "It is not for purposes of trade that you see us appear in your country. We aim much higher. Your furs are of too little value in our eyes to induce us to undertake so long, so difficult, and so dangerous a journey.
Keep your beaver-skins, if you choose, for the Dutch;
even those which may come into our hands will be used for your own good. We seek not perishable things. For the Faith, we have left our country; for the Faith, we have abandoned our relatives and our friends; for the Faith, we have crossed the Ocean; for the [60] Faith, we have quitted the great Ships of the French, to embark in your small canoes; for the Faith, we have given up fine houses, to lodge in your bark cabins; for the Faith, we deprive ourselves of our natural nourishment, and the delicate viands that we might have enjoyed in France, to eat your boiled meal and other food, which the ani-imals of our country would hardly touch." Then, taking up a very fine collar of porcelain beads, artist-ically made, he continued: "For the sake of the Faith, I hold this rich present in my hand, and I open my mouth to remind you of the word that you pledged us when you came down to Quebec to conduct us to your country. You solemnly promised to lend ear to the words of the great God. They are in my mouth; listen to them; I am but his spokesman. He informs you by his Messengers that his Son made himself man for love of you; that that Man, the Son of God, is the Prince and the Master of s’est fait homme pour voftre amour, que cét Homme Fils de Dieu eft le Prince & le Maiftre des Hommes; qu’il a préparé dans les [61] Cieux des plaisirs & des delices éternelles pour ceux qui obeïroïët à fes commandemens, & qu’il allume d’horribles feux dans les Enfers pour ceux qui ne voudront point receuoir fa parol. Sa loy eft douce: elle def fend de faire aucun tort ny aux biens, ny à la vie, ny à la femme, ny à la reputation de fon prochain. Y-a-t’il rien de plus raïonné? Elle çômande de porter refpeē, amour & reuerence à celuy qui a tout fait & qui conferue l’vnuiers; Voftre efprit eft-il choqué d’vne verité fi naturelle? IESVS-CHRIST qui eft le Fils de celuy qui a tout fait s’estant fait noftre frere & le voftre en fe reueftant de noftre chair, a préfché ces belles veritez, il les a fait peindre & ecrire dans vn liure, il a ordonné qu’elles fuifent portées par tout le monde: voilà ce qui nous fait paroistre en voftre pays, voila ce qui ouure nos bouches; & nous fommes fi certains de toutes ces veritez, que nous fommes preïts de perdre nos vies pour les fouftenir. Que fi tu les rebutes en ton cœur qui que tu fois Onntagheronnnon, Sonmontoueronnon, Annieronnon, [62] Oneïogoueronnonnon, Onneïoutehronnon, fçache que IESVS-CHRIST qui anime mon cœur & ma voix te precipitera vn iour dans les Enfers. Mais preuiens ce mal-heur par ta conuersion, ne fois point caufe de ta perte, obeïs à la voix du Tout-puïffant.

Ces paroles de feu, & quantité d’autres semblables pouffées d’vne vehemence toute Chréftienne itterent vn tel effonnement dans ces pauures Barbares, qu’ils paroïsoient tous transportez, la ioye & la crainte partageant leurs efprits. Et l’approbation fut fi Mankind; that he has prepared in [61] Heaven eternal pleasures and joys for those who obey his commandments; and that he kindles horrible fires in Hell for those who refuse to receive his word. His law is easy; it forbids doing injury either to the property, or the life, or the wife, or the reputation of one's neighbor. Can anything be more reasonable? It commands that respect, love, and reverence be given to him who has made all and who preserves the universe. Are your minds offended by so natural a truth? Jesus Christ, who is the Son of him who has made all, became our brother and yours by clothing himself with our flesh; he preached those beautiful truths; he caused them to be painted and written in a book; he ordered that they be carried throughout the world. That is what brings us to your country; that is what opens our mouths; and we are so certain of all those truths, that we are prepared to lose our lives in maintaining them. If thou reject them in thy heart be thou Onmontaegeronnon, Sonmontoueronnon, Annieronnon, [62] Oneiogoueronnon, or Onneioutehrnonnon, know that Jesus Christ, who animates my heart and my voice, will one day cast thee into Hell. But avoid that misfortune by thy conversion; be not the cause of thine own ruin; listen to the voice of the Almighty.'

These and many other words, full of fire and uttered with most Christian vehemence, caused those poor Barbarians such astonishment, that they seemed quite beside themselves; their minds wavered between joy and fear. The approval was so general and universal, that one would have said that all wanted to place the Father in their hearts. No endearment, in their opinion, was sufficiently great generalle & si vnuierfelle, qu'on eût dit qu'ils vouloient tous mettre le Pere dans leur cœur, ne fçachant quelle careffe affez grande luy faire. Les larmes tomboient des yeux de nos François voyant nofcre Seigneur fi magnifiquement annoncé en cette extremité du monde. Pour moy i'auouë que ce que j'ay veu & entendu en ce rencontre, paffe tout ce qu'on en peut dire ou efcrire. Si apres cela le demon renuerfant la ceruelle à ces pauures peuples les porte à nous mettre à mort, Iustificabitur in fermonibus fuis. [63] Nous aurons du moins iustifié nofcre Dieu en fes parolles.

Le lendemain qui estoit le 25. de Iuillet, à peine estoit-il iour que les Deputés de toutes les Nations nous vinrent faire des remereminens les plus aimage & les plus cordiaux qu'on puiffe s'imaginer. Je ne fçay fi l'Annieronnon qui cömença, vfa de fes foures & de fes disfimulations ordinaires, ou fi Dieu luy auoit touché le cœur: mais il rapporta fidelement tout ce que le Pere auoit dit de la Loy de Dieu, loïa hautement nos defeins, protesta qu'il ne pouuoit refifter à nos raifons, & qu'il se vouloit faire Chreftien. Il nous fit les prefens aussi bien que les autres Nations qui nous prefferent fort de les aller inftuire en leur pays.

Le 26. les Annieronnons nous demandant des Lettres pour porter aux Hollandois, avec lefquels ils ont commerce, nous loïasmes à la verity leurs Anciens qui paroiffent portés à la paix: mais nous blaftmames extremement leur ieuneffe, de ce qu'elle auoient pillé plusieurs maifons à l'entour de Quebec, [64]
noûs leur dimes que ces defordres les auoient mis en guerre avec les peuples nommés Mahinganak & avec les Andaftahoueronnons, & qu'ils pourroient bien to bestow upon him. Tears fell from the eyes of our French, when they saw our Lord so grandly announced in this extremity of the world. For my part, I must admit that what I saw and heard on that occasion surpasses anything that can be said or written of it. If, after that, the devil should turn the heads of these poor people and lead them to kill us, Justificabitur in sermonibus suis. [63] We shall, at least, have justified our God in his words.

On the morrow, which was the 25th of July, day had hardly broken when the Envoys of all the Nations came to thank us in the most affectionate and cordial manner that can be imagined. I know not whether the Annieronnon, who was the first to begin, employed his usual deceit and dissimulation, or whether God had touched his heart. But he faithfully repeated all that the Father had said, respecting the Law of God; he highly praised our designs; he protested that he could not resist our arguments, and that he wished to become a Christian. He gave us presents, as also did the other Nations, who pressed us to go and instruct them in their country.

When, on the 26th, the Annieronnon asked us for Letters to take to the Dutch, with whom they trade, we in truth praised their Elders, who seem inclined to peace; but we strongly blamed their young men for having pillaged several houses in the neighborhood of Quebec. [64] We told them that such bad conduct had entailed upon them a war with the tribe called Mahinganak, and with the Andastahoueronnon; and that the same misfortune might happen to them with regard to the French.

On the 27th of July, we returned to the shores of the Lake, where a considerable portion of our French tomber dans un même malheur à l'égard des Français.

Le 27. Innlet nous retournâmes sur les rives du Lac où une bonne partie de nos François travaillaient à nous dresser une habitation que nous appelâmes sainte Marie de Gannentaa.

Le 30. veille de saint Ignace les principaux d'Onmontaghé, nous vinrent visiter & nous firent quelques présents pour nous lier si étroitement avec eux, que nous ne fussions plus qu'un peuple; & pour nous donner aduis qu'il ne fallait pas se fier à l'Annieronnnon que cette Nation estoit fourbe & trompeuse, & qu'ils nous priôrent de nous bien fortifier, & de rendre notre maison capable de les recevoir & de les mettre à l'abri de leurs ennemis en cas de nécessité; qu'au reste ils alloient prendre la hache pour faire un canot qui allât porter du nos nouvelles à Quebec.

Le mois d'Aouût nous fut un temps [65] d'exercice en toutes façons nous ayons basti une Chapelle à Onontaghé; une partie de nos Peres y étant attachés, les autres alloient par les Cabanes. On ne cesloit presque depuis le matin jusqu'aux soir de Préfcher, de Catechiser, de Baptiser, d'enfeigner les Prieres, & de répondre aux demandes des vns & des autres: tant ces bonnes gens témoignent d'inclination pour la Foy. Les Français qui estoient à sainte Marie du Lac de Gannentaa, faifoient tous les meftiers d'une ville pour nous loger tous, & nous conférer au milieu de ces Nations barbares. Tout cela ne se faisoit pas sans peine, il fallot beaucoup travailler, peu dormir, coucher sur la terre à l'abri de méfchantes écorces, ne manger pour l'ordinaire que de la boîillie faite avec un peu de farine de bled-d'Inde cuite en l'eau, were engaged in erecting a residence, which we shall call sainte Marie of Gannentaa.

On the 30th, the eve of the feast of saint Ignatius, the chief men of Onnontaghé came to see us; they gave us some presents, to unite us so closely with them that we might be thereafter but one people, and to warn us not to place any confidence in the Annieronnon, because that Nation was deceitful and treacherous. They also begged us to fortify ourselves well, and to make our house large enough to receive and shelter them from their enemies in case of necessity. They also informed us that they were about to take up their hatchets to make a canoe, which should bear news of us to Quebec.

The month of August was a time [65] of exercise for us in every way. We had built a Chapel at Onontaghé, to which some of our Fathers were attached, while the others went through the Cabins. We hardly ever ceased from morning to night to Preach, to Catechize, to Baptize, to teach the Prayers, and to answer the questions put to us on all sides, so great was the inclination manifested by those good people toward the Faith. The French at sainte Marie of Lake Gannentaa, worked at all the trades practiced in a city, in order to provide a lodging for all of us, and to protect us in the midst of those barbarous Nations. All this was done, not without trouble. It was necessary to work hard, to sleep little, to lie on the earth sheltered by miserable pieces of bark, to eat as a rule only a little meal of Indian corn, boiled in water, without bread, without wine, with no other sauce than appetite, and to be pestered night and day by little flies or gnats, which attack one on all sides and at all hours. All that, added to change of air sans pain, sans vin, sans autre ragouft que la faim, & eftre importunés iour & nuit de certains moucherons ou cousins, qui affaillent là de tous costés, & à toute heure. Tout cela ioint au changement d’air & aux grands trauaux du voyage, altera tellement nos [66] constitutions dans les plus grandes chaleurs de l’année que nous tombafmes tous malades: c’estoit chose pitoyable d’en voir quelquesfois iusques à vingt entaffés presque les uns sur les autres, d‘as vn temps & dans vn pays où nous n‘auions autre secours que du Ciel. Mais celuy qui auoit fait noftre playe, y mit bien-toft vn bon appareil. Il enuoia dans le fort de noftre difette tant de gibier & tant de poiffon dans noftre Lac, auant la faifon ordinaire, que les malades furent foulagés, les conualefcens fortifiés, & ceux qui estoient gueris, fouftenus dans leur trauail. Il tou- cha tellement le cœur de ces peuples qu‘ils nous apportoient avec grand amour de leurs bleds & de leurs douceurs qui font des faifolles & des citrouüilles du pays qui font plus fermes & meilleures que celles de France. Ils nous prefentoient aussi des espîcs de leur bled nouueau, qui ne font pas mauuais. En forte que nous en fumes tous quittes pour quelques accez de fievre tierce, qui nous fit efprouuer toutes les marques possibles de bonte, que nous donnerent les fauauages pendant noftre maladie.

and the great fatigues of the journey, so affected our [66] constitutions, at the hottest season of the year, that we all fell sick. It was pitiful to see sometimes as many as twenty heaped almost one on top of the other, at a time and in a country where we had no other succor than that of Heaven. But he who had caused our wounds soon applied a good dressing to them. At the height of our misery and privations, he sent us so much game and so many fish into our Lake, before the usual season, that the sick were relieved, the convalescent were strengthened, and those who were cured were sustained in doing their work. He so touched the hearts of those people that they brought us, with great affection, some of their corn and their dainties, such as the beans and squashes of the country, which are firmer and better than those of France. They also gave us fresh ears of their corn, which are not disagreeable. Thus, we all escaped with a few attacks of tertian fever, which caused us to experience every possible kindness at the hands of the savages during our illness.

[67] They came to us from all sides; some brought us fish, others reproached us that we did not send often enough to their fishing-place to take some according to our needs. One of the chief men of Onontaghé came to reside near us for a short time. He gave presents to our Father Superior for the good treatment that his son had received at Quebec. He wished to contract a brotherly friendship with him, and to bind it closely he presented him with a collar of porcelain beads.

A Sonnontoueronnon, who was considered a great hunter, came and offered him a covering to preserve qu’auoit receu fon fils à Quebec, il voulut lier avec luy vne amitié de frere, & pour la noüier eströtement il luy présenta vn colier de porcelaine.

Vn Sonnontoüeronnon estimé grand chaffeur, luy vint offrir vne couuerture pour conferuer la chaleur de l’amitié qu’il venoit contracter avec luy.

On nous a rapporté iuques icy que les Hollandois nous vouloient amener des cheuxaux & quelques autres commodités, se réjouffant de noôtre demeure en ces contrées.

Vn ancië Capitaine d’Oïogoen homme intelligent & emploïé dans les affaires publiques, nous est venu voir de la part de toute sa Nation, pour prier Achien-dafé de luy accorder quelques-vns [68] de nos Peres, l’asseurant qu’on leur feroit dresser vne Chapelle & que le peuple demandoit d’estre instruit en noôtre creance. On luy a donné le Pere René Menard, & deux François nonobstant noôtre grande disette d’ouuriers. Le Pere Ioseph Chauumont le doit accompa-gner iuques à Oïogoen, & de là passer à Sonnontouan pour ietter de loing les fondemens d’vne belle Mission, & d’vne grande moiffon qu’on espe re recueillir, s’il plaît à Dieu de nous conferuer la paix, & de nous enuoier des ouuriers.
the warmth of the friendship that he had just contracted with him.

News has come to us here that the Dutch wish to bring us some horses and other commodities, as they are glad that we dwell in these countries.

A former Captain of Oiogoen, an intelligent man engaged in public affairs, came to see us on behalf of the whole of his Nation. He requested Achien-dasé to give them some [68] of our Fathers, assuring him that they would erect a Chapel for them, and that the people desired to be instructed in our belief. He was given Father René Menard and two Frenchmen, notwithstanding our great scarcity of workmen. Father Joseph Chaumont is to accompany him as far as Oiogoen; from there he will go to Sonnontouan, to lay from afar the foundations of a fine Mission, and to sow the seeds of a great harvest, which we hope to gather, if it please God to preserve peace for us and to send us workmen.
CHAPITRE VI.

VNE PARTIE DES HURONS VA DEMEURER À AGNIE.

PRES la defaite des Hurons dans l'Île d'Orleans dont nous avons parlé au Chapitre troisième; ceux qui restoient demandèrent la paix à l'Iroquois Agnieronnon, qui leur fut accordée, l'Automne dernier, à condition [69] que le Printemps prochain ils monteroient tous à Agné (c'est le nom du pays des Iroquois d'en-bas) pour n'habiter d'oreînauant qu'vne terre, & ne faire qu'vn peuple entr'eu. Le Contrat en fut passé: Et pour le ratifier trois Hurons le portèrent aux anciens du pays des Iroquois qui le signèrent à leur façon, par de beaux présens qu'ils firent faire à tous les Hurons par leurs Ambassadeurs: ils leurs promirent de les aller querir dans leur petites gondoles, & donnerent commission de les aduertir de se tenir prêts pour cela, sans citer plus long-temps d'excuses ou de remises. Le temps déterminé étant échu, vne troupe de cent ieunes soldats bien résolus, partit du pays pour executer ce deffein. Le gros s'arrêstant à trois ou quatre journées de Quebec, trente s'en détachèrent pour se préfenter aux Hu- rons, & les sommer de leur parole. Le Capitaine de cette escoïade ayant demandé audience le lende- main de fon arriuée, il exposa dans l'assemblée des François & des Hurons le sujet de fon Ambassade, & difant franchement qu'il [70] venoit querir les Hu- rons, il les harangua en ces termes. Mon frere, c'est CHAPTER VI.

A PORTION OF THE HURONS GO TO DWELL AT AGNIÉ.

AFTER the defeat of the Hurons on the Island of Orleans, which we related in the third Chapter, those who remained sued the Agnieronnon Iroquois for peace. It was granted to them last Autumn, on condition [69] that, in the following Spring, they should all go up to Agnié (that is the name of the country of the lower Iroquois), in order that in future they might inhabit but one land, and be but one people with them. The Agreement was concluded, and, to ratify it, three Hurons bore it to the elders of the Iroquois country. They signed it in their fashion with fine presents, which they gave to all the Hurons through their Ambassadors; they promised to come and get them in their little gondolas, and sent word to warn them to be prepared for it without any further excuse or postponement. When the time specified had elapsed, a band of a hundred young and very resolute warriors started from their country to carry out that design. The main body halted three or four days' journey above Quebec, and thirty were detached to present themselves before the Hurons and summon them to keep their word. On the day following his arrival, the Captain of this band asked for an audience, at which he explained to the assembly of French and Hurons the object of his Embassy, and frankly stated that he [70] had come for the à toy que i'adresse ma parolle: Il y a quatre ans que tu m'as prié que ie te prisse par le bras pour te leuer & t'enmener en mon pays, tu l'as retiré quelquesfois quand ie l'ay voulu faire, c'est pour cela que ie t'ay frapé de ma hache fur la teste. Ne le retire plus, c'est tout de bon que ie te dis leue toy. Il est temps que tu vienne, tien prends ce collier pour t'ayder à te leuer, (c' estoit vn prefent de porcelaine qu'il luy faifoit.) Ne crains point, ie ne te regarde plus comme ennemi, mais comme mon parent, tu feras cheri de mon pays, qui fera aussi le tien: Et afin que tu n'en doutes pas, prend cét autre collier de porcelaine pour affeurance de ma parolle.

Puis retournant les yeux & la parolle vers Monsieur le Gouuerneur les prefens à la main, il luy dit: Onontio ouure tes bras & laiffe aller tes enfans de ton fein, si tu les tiens plus long-temps si ferrez, il est à craindre qu'on ne te bleffe, quand nous les voudrons frapper lors qu' ils l'auront merité. Reçoy cette porcelaine [71] pour élargir tes bras. Ie fçay que le Huron ayme la priere, qu'il inuoque celuy qui a tout fait, qu'il ioint les mains quand il luy demande quelque chose; ie veux faire comme luy, agréé que le Pere OndefonK vienne avec nous pour nous inftruire en la Foy: Et puis que nous n'auons pas affez de Canots pour emmener tant de monde, preffe nous tes chalouppes. Voila pour attirer la robe noire, & pour mettre les canots à l'eau: c'estoit des beaux colliers dont il fit prefent à Monsieur le Gouuerneur. Le confeil fini, chacun se retira chez foy pour penfer à ce qu'il deuoit respondre. Le Huron euft fans doute bien voulu fe dédire, mais il n'y auoit plus de moyen, il auoit fait la faute, il la luy falloit Hurons. He harangued them in these terms: "My brother, it is to thee that my words are addressed. Four years ago, thou didst beg me to take thee by the arm, to raise thee and bring thee to my country; thou didst sometimes withdraw it when I wished to comply with thy request; that is why I struck thee on the head with my hatchet. Withdraw it no more; for I tell thee in earnest to get up. It is time for thee to come. Here, take this collar to assist thee to arise" (this was a present of porcelain beads that he gave him). "Fear not; I no longer look upon thee as an enemy, but as my relative; thou shalt be cherished in my country, which shall also be thine. And, that thou mayst not doubt it, take this other collar of porcelain beads as a pledge of my word."

Then, turning his eyes and addressing himself to Monsieur the Governor, with presents in his hand, he said: "Onontio, open thine arms and allow thy children to leave thy bosom; if thou shalt hold them so closely any longer, it is to be feared that thou mayst be wounded when we wish to strike them when they deserve it. Receive these porcelain beads [71] to open thine arms. I know that the Huron loves prayer, that he invokes him who has made all, that he clasps his hands when he asks anything of him. I wish to do as he does. Permit Father Ondesonk to come with us and instruct us in the Faith. And, since we have not enough Canoes to carry so many people, lend us thy shalloops. Here is something with which to attract the black gown, and to put the canoes in the water." These were fine collars which he presented to Monsieur the Governor. When the council was over, each withdrew to his own quarters to think over the answer that boire. Il n'estoit plus temps d'vfer de remise, il falloit marcher ou mourir de la main de l'Iroquois. Toute la nuit fe passa à consulter: les advis étant partagez, la Nation de la Corde qui estoit l'vne des trois dont la Colonie Huronne estoit compoſée, refufa de quitter Quebec, & les Françoïs: la Nation du Rocher iettoit fa penfée vers Onontaghé: [72] & la Nation de l'Ours, fe resolut de fe mettre entre les mains de l'Agnieronon. La conclusion donc en eftant prife, & le Capitaine de cette Nation appelle le Plat l'ayant dit à fes gens, le matin, on affembla derechef le Confeil, & le Pere le Moyne en fit l'ouverture au nom de Monsieur le Gouuerneur à peu près en ces termes. Onontio ayme les Hurons, ce font des enfans qui ne font plus au maillot, ils font afiez grands pour être hors de tutelle. Ils peuvent aller où ils voudroient sans qu'Onontio y mette aucun emphewed. Il ouvre fes bras pour les laffer aller. Pour moy ie fuis tout préf d'accompagner mon troupeau, quand celuy qui me gouuerne, me l'aura permis: ie te montreray auſſi à toy mon frere Agnieronon comme il faut obeir à Dieu, & comme il le faut prier: mais eftant de l'humeur dont ie te connois, tu ne feras pas eſtat de la priere. Pour nos chalouppes on ne t'en peut pas préfèr, tu voys bien qu'il n'y en a pas vne dans nos ports, chacun en a beſoin pour la traite, & pour aller au devant d'vn nouueau Gouuerneur que nous attendons. [73] Ce difcours fut reçu par les Iroquois auec des acclama-tions de ioye & mille remercimens.

Le Capitaine de la Nation de l'Ours fe voyant obilgé de parler, & de dire la conclusion qu'il auoit prife la nuit avec ceux de fa Nation, commença fa
he should give. The Huron, doubtless, would have liked to retract his word; but it was no longer possible to do so,—the fault had been his, and he had to bear the consequences. It was no longer time to delay; he must go, or die by the hand of the Iroquois. The whole night was passed in consultation. Opinions were divided; the Nation of the Cord, one of the three who composed the Huron Colony, refused to leave Quebec and the French; the Nation of the Rock turned its thoughts toward Onontaghe; [72] and the Nation of the Bear resolved to place itself in the hands of the Agnieronon. When this decision had been reached, and when the Captain of that Nation, called le Plat ['the Dish'], had informed his people of it in the morning, the Council once more assembled, and Father le Moyne opened it in the name of Monsieur the Governor, somewhat in the following terms: "Onontio loves the Hurons. They are no longer children in swaddling-clothes, but are old enough to be out of tutelage. They can go where they wish, without being hindered in any way by Onontio. He opens his arms to let them go. For my part, I am quite ready to follow my flock, when he who governs me permits me to do so. I shall teach thee also, my Agnieronon brother, how to obey God and how to pray to him; but, knowing what thy nature is, I know also that thou wilt not care for prayer. As for our shallops, we cannot lend thee any; thou seest very well that there is not one in our ports; they are all needed for the trade, and for proceeding to meet a new Governor whom we expect." [73] This discourse was received by the Iroquois with joyful acclamations and a thousand thanks.

When the Captain of the Nation of the Bear found

Je me jette à yeux clos dans ton Canot, sans ſçauoir ce que ie fais: mais quoy qu’il en puiſſe arriver, ie fuis refolu de mourir. Que tu me caffe la teste lors que nous ferons à la portée du canon d’icy, il n’importe, i’y fuis tout refolu, ie ne veux pas que mes cousins des deux autres Nations s’embarquent à cette fois avec moy, afin qu’ils voyent auparauant comme tu te comporteras à mon égard.

Vn autre Capitaine grand amy de celuy qui acheuoit de parler, ietta incontinent trois prefens au milieu de la place pour prier l’Iroquois de bien traiter fon ami en chemin: prend garde, luy dit-il, que mon frere Atfena qui fe donne à toy, ne tombe pas dans la Vafe en [74] débarquant, voilà vn collier pour affermir la terre où il mettra le pied: Et quand il fera débarqué, ne permets pas qu’il foit affis à platte-terre: voilà dequoy luy faire vne Natte où il fe repoſera: Et afin que tu ne te mocques pas des femmes & des enfans quand ils pleureront fe voiant en vn pays esftranger, voilà vn mouchoir que ie te donne pour effuyer leurs larmes, & la fueur de leur front.

Vn troifieme Capitaine qui n’auoit pas enui de s’embarquer, & qui ne s’offroit pas à l’Iroquois, ne luy cacha pas sa penſée. Je voy toute la Riuier, dit-il, bordée de grandes & grosses dents, ie me mettrois en danger de me faire mordre, fi ie m’embarquois à prefent. Ce fera pour vne autre fois.

L’Iroquois fe voyant frustré de l’esperance d’auoir des Chalouppes, fe refolut de faire des Canots, & haſta fi fort fon travaul, qu’en moins de cinq ou fix that he was called upon to speak and to state the decision that he had made during the night with his Nation, he began his short harangue in a loud tone and a powerful voice. "My brother," he said to the Agnieronon, "it is decided; I am at thy service.
I cast myself, with my eyes shut, into thy Canoe, without knowing what I am doing. But, whatever may betide, I am resolved to die. Even if thou shouldst break my head as soon as we are out of range of the cannon here, it matters not; I am quite resolved. I do not wish my cousins of the two other Nations to embark this time with me, in order that they may first see how thou wilt behave toward me."

Another Captain, a great friend of the one who had just spoken, forthwith cast before them three presents, to beg the Iroquois to treat his friend well on the road. "Take care," he said to him, "that my brother Atsena, who gives himself to thee, does not fall into the Mud in disembarking; here is a collar to make the earth firm where he will set foot on it. When he disembarks, do not allow him to sit on the bare ground; here is something wherewith to make a Mat for him on which he may rest. And, that thou mayst not laugh at the women and children when they weep at seeing themselves in a strange country, here is a handkerchief that I give thee to wipe away their tears, and the sweat from their brows."

A third Captain, who was unwilling to embark, and who did not offer himself to the Iroquois, did not conceal his thought from him. "I see the whole River," he said, "bristling with long and great teeth; I would put myself in danger of being bitten, were I to embark at present. It will be for another time."
iours il en eut suffisamment pour embarquer ceux qui s'estoient donnez à luy.

Pendant qu'on travaillaient le jour aux Canots, les nuits se passoient à faire des [75] feftins d'adieu, dont le plus magnifique fut celui que le Capitaine de la Nation des Ours fit pour prendre congé de Monfieur le Gouverneur, des Robes Noires & des Sauuages. Ce fut pour lors que ce Capitaine faifiant paroifte fon efprit & fon eloquence, monôtra encore plus l'affection qu'il portoit aux François. Prends courage, difoit-il, Onontio, prens courage, Ondefonk. Je vous quitte, il est vray: mais mon cœur ne vous quitte pas. Je m'en vay, il est vray, mais je vous laiffe mes cousins qui valent mieux que moy. Et pour vous tefmoigner que mon pays est toujours à Quebec; Je vous laiffe la grande chaudiere où nous faifons les actes de nos plus grandes réioiiissances.

Les autres difcours dont il vfa pour cet adieu feroient trop longs à rapporter.

Le Père Ondefonk luy fit fon petit compliment à la façon des Sauuages: En luy difant: Mon frere, mon cœur est triste de te voir partir, & n'estoit que l'esperre de te reuoir bien-toft au lieu où tu vas, il n'y auroit point de breuage capable de guerir mon affliction, & i'aurois [76] toute ma vie le cœur de trauers, & le vifage abbatu. Pour toy prend courage, tu me verras durant tous les chemins de ton voyage, dans tous les lieux où tu cabaneras, dans tous les endroits où tu debarkeras: Car Ondefonk a esté par tout, il a fait du feu par tout, il a fait fon gifte par tout, si le feu eft efeint, tien voilà pour le r'allumer, si la Natte eft ofte, voilà pour en mettre vne autre, & fe coucher mollement. When the Iroquois saw himself frustrated in his hope of obtaining Shallops, he resolved to make Canoes; and he pressed the work so well, that, in less than five or six days, he had enough to embark all those who had given themselves up to him.

While they worked at the Canoes in the daytime, the nights were passed in holding farewell feasts. The most splendid was the feast given by the Captain of the Bear Nation, to take leave of Monsieur the Governor, of the Black Gowns, and of the Savages. On that occasion, the Captain gave proof of his wit and eloquence, and showed still more the affection that he had for the French. "Take courage, Onontio," he said; "take courage, Ondesonk. I leave you, it is true; but my heart does not leave you. I am going away, it is true; but I leave you my cousins, who are better than I am. And, to show you that Quebec is ever my country, I leave you the large kettle, which we use in our greatest rejoicings." It would take too long to repeat the other discourses that he pronounced in bidding farewell.

Father Ondesonk also paid him his little compliment, in the fashion of the Savages, by saying to him: "My brother, my heart is sad at seeing thee depart; were it not that I hope to see thee soon in the place to which thou art going, there would be no potion fit to cure my affliction; and throughout my life my heart would be cast down, and my countenance depressed. As for thee, take courage; thou shalt see me at every stage of thy journey, in every place where thy cabin will be erected, at every spot where thou wilt disembark. For Ondesonk has been everywhere; he has kindled a fire everywhere; he has set up his camp everywhere. If the fire be Les festins & les adieux ayant été longs, on se coucha fort tard, ce qui n'empêcha pas qu'on ne vît de bon matin sur le bord de la Rivière tous les Hurons prêts de s'embarquer avec l'Iroquois, commençans dès-lors à ne faire qu'un même peuple avec luy.
extinguished, here is something with which to rekindle it; if the Mat be removed, here is wherewith to replace it by another, on which thou mayst repose softly." These were so many presents, which the Father gave him to alleviate the sorrow of that good man. The feasts and farewells lasted a long time, and all went to bed very late; but this did not prevent them from seeing, at an early hour next morning, all the Hurons on the bank of the River ready to embark with the Iroquois, commencing from that moment to form but one people with them.
CHAPITRE VII.

L'AUTRE PARTIE DES HURONS VA DEMEURER À ONONTAGÉ.

LES Iroquois Superieurs que nous appelons Onontageronons ont voulu avoir part au debris des Hurons de Quebec, aussi bien que les Iroquois d’en bas. Tous deux pour venir à bout de leur deffein ont pris la même route, & se sont servis de mêmes machines, employans la force, où l’adresse leur manquoit. Il y auroit trois ans que l’Onontageronon follicitoit le Huron à prendre fon parti, & à se retirer dans fon pays pour ne faire qu’un peuple avec luy. L’année 1655. il descendit pour ce deffein iusqu’à Quebec, fit au Huron en presence des François & des Sauuages de tres-beaux prefens qui furent acceptez de bon cœur, & promit d’aller faire fa demeure pour toujours dans le bourg d’Onôtaghé, pourueu qu’il y manat aussi les Robes-Noires. Les Peres [78] y allèrent en effet: Mais le Huron gagné par les prefens & les menaces de l’Agnieronnon fe donna à luy, manquât à la promeffe qu’il auroit faite à l’Onontageronon. Ce traict de finesse & de politique barbare de l’Agnieronnon qui auroit ainsi couru fur le marché de fon voisin, & l’imprudence du Huron à se donner à deux Maiftres fit naître de la jaloufie dans l’esprit de l’Onontageronon, & luy fit prendre refo-}

ANOTHER PORTION OF THE HURONS GO TO DWELL AT ONONTAGÉ.

THE Upper Iroquois, whom we call Onmontaghe-ronnons, wished to have, as well as the lower Iroquois, a share in the remnant of the Hurons of Quebec. To carry out their ends, both took the same way, and made use of the same devices, employing force where address failed them. For three years the Onontageronon had urged the Huron to side with him, and to retire to his country, in order to form but one people with him. In the year 1655, he came down to Quebec for that purpose, and gave the Huron, in the presence of the French and the Savages, very fine presents, which were heartily accepted. The Huron promised to go and take up his residence forever in the village of Onontaghé, provided he could also bring the Black Gowns there. The Fathers [78] did, in fact, go there. But the Huron, yielding to the presents and threats of the Agniernonnon, gave himself up to him, thereby breaking the promise which he had given to the Onontageronon. This stroke of cunning and of barbarian policy on the part of the Agnieronon, who had thus outbidden his neighbor, and the imprudence of the Huron in giving himself to two Masters, aroused jealousy in the mind of the Onontageronon, and made him resolve to prevent that which he thought he already possessed from being snatched fe vanger du Huron qu'il croyoit l'auoir trompé. Ce deffein fit partir d'Onnontaghe cent guerriers resolus d'enleuer de Quebec les Hurons ou de gre ou de force. Ils parurent fur nos frontieres au commencement du Printemps. Ils rodoient de tous costez pour faire quelque mauvais coup. Mais comme chacun se tenoit fur ses gardes; ne pouuans venir à bout de leur deffein, apres dix iours de peine & de fatigue, quelques-vns de la trouppe pressiz par la faim, fe jetterent dans le fort de Sillery, & demanderent à parler [79] à Ondefonk, c'est à dire au Pere le Moyne & aux Hurons pour tenir conseil avec eux d'une affaire d'importance. Le Pere leur fait entendre que les Hurons sont à Quebec, que c'est le lieu du Conseil, qu'il y faut aller pour traiter d'affaire; qu'au refte il les menera en affurance, leur promettant qu'ils y feront veus de bon œil. Ils y vont, avec ce fauf-conduit, & fans differer au lendemain, le Conseil s'assemble, où ces Messieurs faifant d'abord leurs excuses, de ce qu'ils estoient venus querir les Hurons leurs freres à main armée, dirent que la nouvelle qu'ils auzoient appris l'Hyuer dernier, que le Huron s'estoit dédit & auzoit changé de pensée, les auzoit obligez de fe comporter de la forte. Mais qu'ayant appris depuis de la bouche d'Ondefonk la fausseté de ce bruit, ils estoient tous presz de mettre les armes bas, & de fe comporter en freres avec les Hurons. Ondefonk repliquant à l'Onontageronon au nom d'Onontio luy dit. On doit te lotier mon frere, de ce que tu parois icy fans armes, & avec vn esprit de paix; mais [80] tu deuois estre parti de ton pays dans cet équipage & dans cette disposition; tu as cru trop legere-ment les faux rapports qu'on t'a fait du Huron, cette from him; at the same time, it inspired him with a desire for revenge upon the Huron, by whom he thought that he had been deceived. With this design, one hundred warriors set out from Onnontaghé, resolved to remove the Hurons from Quebec, either with their consent or by force. They made their appearance on our frontiers at the beginning of Spring. They prowled about in every direction to strike some evil blow; but, as all were on their guard, they could not accomplish their design. After enduring toil and fatigue for ten days, some of the band, pressed by hunger, entered the fort at Sillery, and asked to speak [79] to Ondesonk—that is, to Father le Moyne—and to the Hurons, to hold a council with them on a matter of importance. The Father explained to them that the Hurons were at Quebec, that that was the place of Council, and that they must go there if they wished to transact any business; that, moreover, he would take them there in safety, promising them that they would be favorably received. They went there with that safe-conduct, without delaying till the following day. The Council met, at which they first excused themselves for having come for the Hurons, their brothers, with arms in their hands; the news which they had heard last Winter, that the Huron had retracted his word and had changed his mind, had compelled them to take these measures. But, having since learned from the mouth of Ondesonk that this rumor was false, they were quite prepared to lay down their arms, and to behave as brothers toward the Hurons. Ondesonk replied to the Onontage-ronon in the name of Onontio, and said to him: "Thou art to be praised, my brother, for appearing creance precipitée t'a fait prendre les armes trop toft, il falloit t'informer auparavant des François qui font avec toy, qui t'euffent fait connoistre par les Lettres qu'ils reçoivent, la fauffeté de la nouvelle qui court dans ton pays. Que puis-ie penser quand ie te voy la hache à la main, fans aucune Lettre de nos François, paffer en cachette pardeuant nos habitations, finon que nous ayant mal-traité au pays haut, tu viens aussi pour nous mal-traiter icy bas? As tu mis en oubly ce beau présent que ie te fis en ton pays il y a trois ans, qui te disoit que le Huron, l'Algonquin, & le François n'eftoient plus qu'une tete, & que qui frappoit l'un, blessoit l'autre. Le Pere finissant ces reproches, luy donna vn beau collier de Porcelaine pour les luy faire receuoir plus paisiblement, & pour affermir la promesse qu'il auoit faite de ne penser plus à la guerre.

En effet l'Onnontagheronnon prenant [81] en bonne part ce qu'on luy auoit dit en ami, & fe fiant sur ce qu'on l'auoit afeuré que le Huron n'auoit point changé de pensée; il ne luy dit que deux mots par deux presens qu'il luy fit dans l'assemblée du lendemain. Mon frere, luy dit-il, puis que tu as refolu de venir avec moy, il ne faut pas que ie t'inuite dauantage. Je lie cette corde à ton Canot pour t'ayder à le tirer: Ie fçay bien que Onontio ne te retiendra pas: voilà vn collier pour luy faire ouvrir les bras & te laiffer aller. A cela le Huron n'eut que des remercimens à faire; tu me confoles mon frere, de ce que tu as pitié de moy, de nos femmes, & de nos enfans. Ne te fasche pas neantmoins si ie ne m'embarme point aujourd'hui dans ton Canot: c'eft vn Canot de guerre qui me fait peur; le coufteau que tu here unarmed and with a mind inclined toward peace; but thou shouldst have started from thy country with the same equipment and in the same disposition. Thou hast too readily believed the false reports made to thee against the Huron; that hasty belief has led thee to take up arms too soon. Thou shouldst first have sought information from the French who are with thee, and who, by means of the Letters that they receive, would have shown thee the falseness of the rumor that has spread in thy land. When I see thee stealthily pass by our settlements, with a hatchet in thy hand, without any Letter from our French, what else can I think but that, after ill-treating us in the upper country, thou comest to ill-treat us also down here? Hast thou forgotten the fine present that I made thee in thy own country three years ago, which said to thee that the Huron, the Algonquin, and the Frenchman were no longer more than one head, and that whosoever struck one, wounded the other?" When the Father had finished these reproaches, he gave him a fine collar of Porcelain beads, to make him receive them more peacefully, and to strengthen the promise which he had given to think no longer of war.

In fact, the Onmontagheronnon took [81] in good part the friendly words which had been said to him; and, relying upon the assurance which he had received that the Huron had not changed his mind, he said but two words to him with two presents. These he gave him at the meeting on the following day. "My brother," he said to him, "since thou hast resolved to come with me, I need not invite thee any more. I tie this cord to thy Canoe, to help thee to haul it. I know well that Onontio will not detain as laissé dedans, pourroit bleffer mes enfans, & nos femmes trembleroient à la veie de la hache que tu n'as pas encore oftée. Estant venu & t'en retournant les armes à la main, on diroit que tu emmenes des prisonniers, & non tes amis & tes frères: mais ausi-toft que quelque Canot [82] des François qui font en ton pays descendra icy bas, ie fuis à toy, mene moy où tu voudras.

L'affaire estant en ces termes, il furuint vn accident qui penfa rompre tout le traité. Vn ieune Onontageronon frappant vn Huron de fa hache & le jettant mort fur la place, la nouuelle de ce meurtre allarme les Hurons, qui retiennent prisonniers dans vne cabane deux Onontageronnons qui y estoient allez rèdre vište: L'Onontageronon d'autre-part fait fon possible pour empefcher que les esprits ne s'ai-griſſent, & désapprouuant le fait du meurtrier, il le condamne de folie, & en fait satisfaction. Mais enfin voyant que le Huron, qui fe vouloit rendre au plus fort, vouloit faire le mauvais, il attrape deux Canots de fes gens qui retournoient de la chaffe, les meine dans fon fort & les tient comme prisonniers. L'affaire alloit prendre vn mauvais train, fî le Pere le Moyne ne s'y fut interpoſé heureuſement & n'en eût arresté le cours par fes foins & fa diligence. Il fit fi bien par fes allées & fes venuës, qu'il mit toutes les chofes en [83] leur premier eſtat, fit rendre les prisonniers de part & d'autre, & remit le calme dans les esprits. En fuitte l'Onontageronnon reître fa demande, Il preffe le Huron de s'embarquer avec luy; & le Huron perfeuere à s'excufer, fur ce qu'il n'eft pas bien ſeant qu'il s'ébarque dans vn Canot de guerre, & qu'il faut attendre vn Canot de paix. Je fuis à toy dés ce thee; here is a collar, to make him open his arms and let thee go." To this the Huron had nothing but thanks to return. "Thou consolest me, my brother, because thou hast pity on me, on our women, and on our children. Be not offended, however, if I do not embark to-day in thy Canoe. It is a war-Canoe, and it frightens me; the knife that thou hast left in it might wound my children, and our women would tremble at the sight of the hatchet that thou hast not yet removed. As thou hast come, and art about to return, with arms in hand, it would be said that thou art bringing prisoners, and not thy friends and brothers. But, as soon as some Canoe [82] belonging to the French who are in thy country comes down here, I am at thy service, and thou mayst take me wherever thou wilt."

At this stage of the proceedings, an incident occurred which nearly ruptured the treaty. A young Onontageronon struck a Huron with his hatchet and killed him on the spot; the news of this murder alarmed the Hurons, and they detained in a cabin, as prisoners, two Onontageronnons who had gone there to pay a visit. On the other hand, the Onontageronon did his best to prevent any bad feeling on this account; he disapproved of the murderer's deed, condemned him as insane, and made satisfaction. But, finally, seeing that the Huron, who would yield only to force, was seeking a quarrel with him, he seized two Canoes full of his people, who were on their return from hunting, and took them into his fort, where he detained them as prisoners. Matters would have become serious, had not Father le Moyne happily intervened and checked their course by his care and diligence. He managed so well in his moment, luy dit-il, voilà des arres de ma parolle, & de mon affection, qui font les prefens que ie te fais: Et si cela ne suffit pour te tefmoigner que ie me fuis donné à toy, trois de mes gens te tiendront compagne, & porteront aux anciens les afeurances de ma bonne volonté. Nous irons à Montreal pour t’y attendre: Enuyoe nous, quand tu feras arriué dans ton pays, ta ieunessfe pour nous venir querir. L’Onontageronon content de cette parolle, s’embarque dans sa petite gondolle, & fait ioier fes auirons, pendant que les Hurons de la Nation du Rocher qui est celle qui fe donne à l’Onontageronon, fe prepaurent pour leur voyage de Montreal, & font leurs adieux à Onontio, aux Peres [84] & aux Sauuages qui refent encore à Quebec: Et puis le 16. de Iuin fe iettent dans trois Chalouppes Françoifes qui les rendent en peu de iours à la faueur d’vn petit vent de Nort-eft à Montreal, où ils attendent ceux qui les doiuent enleuer.
interviews with both parties, that he restored everything to [83] its former condition; he caused the prisoners to be surrendered on both sides and calmed the minds of all. Then the Onontageronnon repeated his demand. He urged the Huron to embark with him, while the Huron persisted in excusing himself, on the ground that it was not becoming for him to embark in a war-Canoe, and that he must wait for a peace-Canoe. "From that moment, I am at thy disposal," he said to him. "Here is an earnest of my word and my affection, in the presents that I give thee. And, if this be not sufficient to prove that I have given myself to thee, three of my people shall keep thee company and bear to the elders the assurance of my good will. We shall go to Montreal to await thee. When thou hast reached thy own country, send thy young men for us." The Onontageronnon was satisfied with his promise; he embarked in his little gondola and paddled away, while the Hurons of the Tribe of the Rock, the one which had given itself to the Onontageronnon, prepared themselves for their journey to Montreal, and bade adieu to Onontio, to the Fathers, [84] and to the Savages who still remained at Quebec. Then, on the 16th of June, they embarked in three French Shallops, which, favored with a light wind from the Northeast, landed them in a few days at Montreal. There they awaited those who were to take them away.

DU VOYAGE DU P. SIMON LE MOYNE, AUX AGNIE-RONNONS.

À Mission des Iroquois d’en haut, [sc. d’en bas] que nous appelons des Martyrs, n’est encore qu’vne Missiion volante, dans l’esperance de la voir vn iour fixe, comme les autres Missions. Le Pere Simon le Moyne y donna commencement l’année 1655. par le premier voyage qu’il y fit, & qu’il recommença l’année 1656. Et pour lequel il fe prepare encore cette année. Ses Superieurs pourroient luy dire avec verité quand ils l’y envoient chaque année, ce que noftrer Seigneur disoit à fes Apoîtres, lors qu’il [85] les enuoyoit precher fon Euangile par tout le monde; qu’ils l’enuoient comme vne Brebis au milieu des Loups: Puis qu’vn Iefuite, vn Predicatør, vn Missionnaire parmy des Iroquois, ç’eft vn Agneau parmy des Loups caraffiers. Ç’eft vne merueille de voir vn Agneau au milieu des Loups, fans eftre mangé des Loups: mais ç’eft vne merueille plus furprenante de voir des Loups changez en des Agneaux par des Agneaux. Nous auons vœu cette premiere merueille en la personne du Pere le Moyne: ie ne fçay quand nous verrons la feconde. Nous eſperons que Dieu nous la fera voir par fon inﬁnie miʃericorde quand il rangeera tous les Iroquois dans le bercaîl de IESVS-CHRIST. Nous allons dans leur pais tous les ans vne fois, pour preparer le CHAPTER VIII.

OF THE JOURNEY OF FATHER SIMON LE MOYNE TO THE AGNIERONNONS.

The Mission of the lower Iroquois, which we call that of the Martyrs, is as yet but a flying Mission; we hope some day to see it stationary, one like the other Missions. Father Simon le Moyne began it in the year 1655, when he made his first journey thither; he recommenced it in the year 1656, and is preparing for it again this year. His Superiors might truly have said to him each year when they sent him thither, what our Lord said to his Apostles when he [85] sent them to preach his Gospel throughout the world,—namely, that they were sending him like a Lamb among Wolves; for a Jesuit, a Preacher, a Missionary among the Iroquois is a Lamb among ravenous Wolves. It is a marvel to see a Lamb among Wolves without being eaten by the Wolves; but it is a greater marvel to see Wolves changed into Lambs by Lambs. We have witnessed the first marvel in the person of Father le Moyne; I know not when we shall see the second. We trust that God, through his infinite mercy, will enable us to see it when he shall bring all the Iroquois into the fold of Jesus Christ. We go to their country once every year, to prepare the way for the Gospel, gently to dispose the hearts of those Barbarians to receive the seed of Christian doctrine, and to apply the blood of Jesus Christ by chemin à l’Evangile, pour disposer doucement les cœurs de ces Barbares à recevoir lasemence de la doctrine Chrestienne, & pour appliquer le sang de IESVS-CHRIST, en baptisant les enfans, les vieillards, & les moribonds. Nous y allons pour la conferuation du bien public, & de la paix qui [86] est si delicate parmy ces peuples, que le feul defaut d’une visite qu’ils attendent de leurs alliez, est capable de la rompre. Nous y allons pour chercher tous les moyens de rendre cette paix commune à toutes les Nations: Enfin nous y allons pour empecher la ialoufie qui fe pourrait gliffer entre les Iroquois d’en bas & d’en-haut, [sc. d’en haut & d’en bas] si demeurant avec les premiers, nous manquions à visiter les derniers.

Tout cela joint ensemble ne merite-t’il pas bien que nous expions nos vies aux travaux, à la peine, & aux dangers de la mort?

Le Pere Simon le Moyne dans le premier voyage qu’il fit à Agnié l’an 1655. promit qu’il en feroit vn l’année suivante, si la commodité s’en présentoit: il s’eftoit obligé de parolle, il la falloit garder: car vn homme qui est trouué menteur, perd fon credit & fon authority parmy ces peuples, aussi bien que parmi les plus honnestes gens de l’Europe. Mais le Pere étant sur le point de partir; vn accident furuit qui rendit le voyage douteux. Vne trouppe d’Iroquois descendus [87] à Quebec attaqua les Hurons. Vne autre bande ayant attendu dans vne embuscade les Algonquins superieurs qui remontoient de Quebec en leur pays, fit vne decharge sur eux, les mit en déroute, & tua d’vn coup de fusil vn des deux Peres qui les accompagnaient pour s’en aller hyuerner avec baptizing the children, the aged, and the dying. We go there in the interest of the public welfare, and for the preservation of the peace, which [86] is so frail a matter among these peoples, that the mere omission to pay a visit which they expect from their allies is sufficient to break it. We go there to seek every means to make that peace general among all the Nations. Finally, we go there to prevent the jealousy which might arise between the upper and the lower Iroquois, if, while residing with the former, we failed to visit the latter.

In view of all those considerations, should we not expose ourselves to labors, to sufferings, and to dangers of death?

When Father Simon le Moyne made his first journey to Agnié in the year 1655, he promised to make another in the following year, if the opportunity presented itself. He had pledged his word, and it must be kept; for a man who is found to be a liar loses his credit and his authority among those peoples, as he does among the most honest in Europe. But, just as the Father was about to start, an incident happened which made it doubtful whether the journey could be undertaken. A band of Iroquois, who had come down [87] to Quebec, attacked the Hurons. Another band prepared an ambush for the upper Algonquins when they were returning from Quebec to their own country, fired a volley at them, routed them, and killed with a gunshot one of the two Fathers who accompanied them that he might pass the winter with them and show them the way to Heaven. This misfortune placed us in a rather disagreeable perplexity; by not making the journey, we would irritate the arrogant minds of eux, & leur montrer le chemin du Ciel. Ce malheur nous jetta dans vne irresolution affez fafscheufe; parce que rompant le voyage, on eut irrité les esprits orgueilleux des Iroquois, qui eussent fouçonné que le François eut eu deffin de venger la mort de fon frere, & l'eussent voulu prevenir: d'autre-part aller avec eux, c'estoit ce fembloit aller chercher vne mort presque affeurée. On mépris ce danger pluftoft que

the Iroquois, who would suspect that the Frenchman intended to revenge the death of his brother, and would try to forestall him; on the other hand, to go there seemed to be seeking almost certain death. We preferred to undergo the danger rather than break our word; the Father undertook the journey, and arrived in the country with presents in his hand, for one never speaks otherwise on matters of importance among these peoples. He assembled the Council, and spoke to the elders as follows: "My brother, I know not where thou hast placed thy mind; it seems that thou hast lost it completely. I come [88] to see thee with presents in my hand, and thou always visitest me in anger, and with a face full of fury. Quite recently, thou hast killed the Huron at Quebec, and thou hast just broken with gunshots the head of my brother, the Black Gown. Thou didst promise that thou wouldst come for me, and thou hast not kept thy word. Thou shamest me everywhere, and I am reproached that I love a man who causes our death. Of what thinkest thou? Here is something to recall thy mind which has wandered away. Thou sayest that Onontio detains the Huron at Quebec, that he prevents him from coming to thee to form but one country. Thou complainest that the Huron will not speak to thee when thou goest to Quebec to negotiate with him. I come here to undeceive thee. Onontio has already opened his arms to let his children go where they wish; they are free; he detains them not by force. If the Huron will not speak to thee, it is through thine own fault. How can he speak to thee, when he sees thee always with a club in thy hand to break his head? Lay aside thy hatchet, la têste? quitte ta hache, & tu verras qu'il a les oreilles ouvertes pour t'écouter, & le cœur pour te fuire: & [89] afin que tu n'en doutes pas, voylà vn collier qu'il te presente par mes mains.

Vn des anciens prit la parolle, & dit au Pere, ne te faffe pas Ondefonk, ie suis ton frere, noftrre ieneffe n'a point d'esprit, elle frappe à l'aueugle & à l'estourdi: prend cette emplafftre que ie te donne (c'eftoit vn collier de porcelaine) mets-le deffus ton cœur, & ta colere fe paffant, tu feras guery: affure le Huron de ma bonne volonté, & dy luy que i'ay defia estendu fa Natte pour le receuoir dans ma Cabanne, & que ie luy envoye ce collier pour attirer fon Canot. En fuitte de ce difcours la ieneffe qui auoit refolu de defcendre à Quebec pour faire vn dernier effort pour enleuer le Huron, quitte le deflein de la guerre, pour prendre celuy de la chaffe.

Cependant Ondefonk comme vn bon Pafteur, visite fon troupeau qui foupiroit apres luy, confole les affligez, instruit les ignorans, entend les Confessions de ceux qui fe prefentent à luy, baptife les enfans, fait prier Dieu tout le monde, exhorte vn chacun à perfeuerer en la Foy, & dans la fuitte du peche. [90] Et s'il fe prefente quelque Iroquois, le Pere ne le laiffe pas aller fans luy donner vn mot d'instruction fur l'Enfer & fur le Paradis, fur la puiffance d'vn Dieu qui void & coegnoit tout, qui chaftie les mefchants & recompenfe les bons.

Vn iour vn Iroquois s'entretenant avec ce Pere, luy raconta avec efestion la couftume d'vn Huron Chriftien dans les suppliques qu'on luy auoit fait fouffrir; depuis peu de temps dans le village. C'eftoit vn ancien Chriftien qui auoit veritablement and thou shalt see that his ears are open to listen to thee, and his heart to follow thee; and, [89] that thou mayst not doubt it, here is a collar which he presents to thee through my hands."

One of the elders addressed the Father and said to him: "Be not angry, Ondesonk; I am thy brother. Our young men have no sense; they strike blindly and heedlessly. Take this plaster which I give thee" (this was a collar of porcelain beads); "place it on thy heart, and, as thy anger will pass away, thou shalt be cured. Assure the Huron of my good will; tell him that I have already spread out his Mat to receive him in my Cabin, and that I send him this collar to draw his Canoe hither." After this discourse, the young men, who had intended to go down to Quebec to make a last effort to carry off the Hurons, abandoned their warlike designs, and resolved to go hunting.

Meanwhile Ondesonk, like a good Shepherd, visited his flock which longed for him. He consoled the afflicted; he taught the ignorant; he heard the Confessions of those who came to him; he baptized the children; he made all pray to God; he exhorted all to persevere in the Faith and in avoiding sin. [90] When any Iroquois presented himself, the Father did not allow him to depart without giving him a word of instruction on Hell and Paradise, or the power of a God who sees and knows all, who punishes the wicked and rewards the good.

One day an Iroquois, while conversing with the Father, related to him with wonder the conduct of a Christian Huron in the tortures that he had been made to suffer, a short time before, in the village. He was a Christian of long standing, who really la Foy, & dans le cœur & dans la bouche. Il estoit plein d’améhction enuers la saincte Vierge, dont il estoit vn feruent Congreganiste. Cet Iroquois donc qui auoit aidé à le brûler, disoit à Ondefonk: Nous n’auons jamais veu personne qui ayme la priere comme cét homme. Il prioit Dieu continuellement fur l’échafaut, & exhortoit avec amour ses concaptifs de penfer fouent au Ciel, & à Dieu qui les y attendoit. Mes freres, crioit-il tout haut, parlant aux Hurons Chrestiens: Souuenez-vous que les François s’assemblent aujourd’hui tous dans l’Eglise [91] pour offrir le sacrifice à Dieu. Ils prient Dieu pour nous, faifons le mesme de noftrre costé: que si nos ennemis ne permettent pas que nous faifions noftrre priere à noftrre ordinaire, comme nous faifions à l’Ile d’Orleans à voix haute; au moins que chacun de nous prie en fon particulier dans fon coeur. Pour moy ie ne crains ny leurs tifons, ny leurs haches toutes rouges de feu: ils ne m’empefcheront iamais de parler à Dieu, pour le prier d’auoir pitié d’vn pauvre garçon qui l’a tant & fi fonvent offensé. En effet adiouftoit l’Iroquois, cet homme auoit quelque chose de plus qu’humain, nous l’auons tourmenté dans le dofftein de tirer de fa bouche quelques cris; mais au contraire il ne ceffoit de foupirer doucement, & tenoit tousjours les yeux fichez au Ciel, comme s’il eufait parlé à quelqu’vn, nous n’entendions pas distinctemént ce qu’il disoit: Mais il reïteroit fonvent ces paroles: mes freres ie m’en vay au Ciel où ie prieray celuy qui a tout faict pour voftre salut. Enfin iufqu’au dernier foupir que nous luy arrachafmes par la violence des tourmens, [92] il ne parla que du Paradis.

Cet exemple & ces discours & plufieurs autres possessed the Faith both in his heart and on his lips; he was full of affection for the blessed Virgin, of whose Congregation he was a fervent member. That Iroquois, who had helped to burn him, said to Ondesonk: "We have never seen any one who loves the prayer like that man. He prayed to God continually on the scaffold, and lovingly exhorted his fellow-captives to think often of Heaven and of God, who awaited them there. 'My brothers,' he called out aloud, speaking to the Huron Christians, 'remember that all the French assemble to-day in the Church, [91] to offer the sacrifice to God. They pray to God for us; let us do the same on our side. If our enemies do not permit us to say our prayers aloud in our usual way, as we did on the Island of Orleans, let us all at least pray in secret in our hearts. For my part, I fear neither their firebrands nor their hatchets heated red-hot; they shall never prevent me from speaking to God, to beg him to have pity on a poor man who has so greatly and so frequently offended him.' In fact," added the Iroquois, "there was something more than human in that man. We tortured him, to force a cry out of his lips; but, on the contrary, he never ceased to sigh gently, and always kept his eyes fixed on Heaven, as if he were speaking to some one. We could not distinctly understand what he said; but he often repeated these words: 'My brothers, I am going to Heaven, where I will pray to him who has made all for your salvation.' In short, up to the last sigh that we drew from him by the violence of the tortures, [92] he spoke of nothing but Paradise.'"

Such an example, and such and many other similar discourses that the Iroquois have frequently seen and femblables que les Iroquois ont veu & entendu fou-vuent feroient capables d'amollir leurs cœurs, & de les disposer à la Foy, s'ils n'estoient plus durs que les rochers: Nous eusperons neantmoins que la continuation des foins qu'on a de leur salut, aura fon effet en temps & lieu: Et que la grace distillant fur ces cœurs de pierre, y fera enfin l'impression que nous souhai-tons, puisque comme dit le Poëte, gutta cauat lapidem.
heard, would be sufficient to soften their hearts and to incline them to the Faith, were they not harder than stones. We hope, nevertheless, that the continual efforts which are made for their salvation will have their effect in due time, and at the proper place; and that grace, falling drop by drop on those hearts of stone, will finally produce the impression that we desire; for, as the Poet says, gutta cavat lapidem.

DE LA RESIDENCE DE SAINCT IOSEPH, EN L’ANCE DE SILLERY.

A Foy & la Religion ayant pris leur naissance en la Croix, il est impossible de les bien prêcher, & de les bien établir, que par la Croix. C’est ce qui ne nous a pas manqué, depuis plus de trente ans, que nous travaillons [93] en cette extrémité du monde, pour amener des peuples à IESVS-CHRIST, & luy dreffer vne nouvelle Eglise. L’eau a quelquesfois englouti par des naufrages quelques-vns de nos braues Neophytes; l’air a causé de temps en temps, par fa corruption des epidimies, qui ont enleué vne partie de ces peuples. Les guerres ont exterminé quantité de bourgades, & confommé des Nations toutes entières. Les ennemis de la Foy ont tué & massacré, brûlé & mangé les peres & les enfans, ie veux dire, les Predicateurs de l’Euangile, & ceux qui l’auoient receu.

Si bien que ce n’est pas sans raison, qu’on a quelquesfois appelé ce pays-cy, le pays des Croix. Dieu nous en a enuoié cette année de precieuses; qu’il en foit beny à iamais. Je n’en toucheray qu’vne en passant, pour venir à la consolation que nous ont donné quelques bons Neophytes. Le 13. de Juin de cette année 1657. le feu s’estant jetté dans vn bucher, fans qu’on ayt pû fçauoir comment, on vit en peu de temps en la residence de saint Ioseph, noître
CHAPTER IX.

OF THE RESIDENCE OF SAINT JOSEPH AT THE COVE OF SILLERY.

As Faith and Religion have sprung from the Cross, it is impossible to preach them well and to establish them properly otherwise than by the Cross. It has not failed us for over thirty years in which we have been working [93] at this end of the world, to bring nations to Jesus Christ, and to erect a new Church to him. The waters have at times swallowed up some of our worthy Neophytes in shipwrecks; the tainted air has from time to time caused epidemics, which have carried off a portion of these peoples; wars have exterminated a number of villages, and wiped out entire Nations; the enemies of the Faith have killed and massacred, have burned and eaten the fathers and the children,—I mean, the Preachers of the Gospel, and those who had received it.

Such were these trials that, not without reason, this country has sometimes been called "the land of Crosses." God has sent us this year some precious ones; may he be forever praised for it. I will allude only to one in passing, in order to speak of the consolation given us by some good Neophytes. On the 13th of June of this year, 1657, fire burst out in a pile of wood, without our being able to find out how it originated; we saw in a short time, at the residence of saint Joseph, our house [94] and that of a good maison [94] & celle d’un bon fauvage Chrétien toutes en flammes, & pour comble de nostré infortune, le feu les pouffa si violemment, & si promptement vers l’Eglise, dans laquelle vne bonne partie de ces peuples a pris naissance en I E S V S - C H R I S T, qu’il fut impossible de la sauver. Son Maître Autel enrichi d’or, & de ce beau rouge de corail, qui frappoit si doucement les yeux de ces bons Neophytes, & qui leur donnait des tendresses pour leur Aïamihimikioap, c’est à dire pour leur maison de prières, fut presque en un moment reduit en cendres.

Cette Eglise estoit dediée à Dieu sous le nom de S. Michel, suivant le desir de celuy qui auoit donné vne bonne partie des deniers pour la bâtir. C‘estoit la premiere de tout le pays erigée pour les nouveaux Chrétiens. On la pouuoit appeller la Matrice de tout le Christianisme de ce nouveau monde, pour ce que les Montagnais & les Algonquins s‘étoient convertis en ce lieu, donnerent enuie à toutes les autres Nations, qui depuis ont reçu I E S V S - C H R I S T, d’écouter sa parole, à l‘exemple [95] de leurs Compatriotes. C‘estoit l‘azyle & le refuge des François voisins qui déplorent c‘ét incendie autant que nos bons Neophytes. Et les vns & les autres nous preffent de releuer ces ruines: mais nous n‘auons pas les bras assez forts sans vn secours plus grand que celuy qu‘ils nous pourroient donner pour refaire de nous mesmes vne perte si notable.

Le braue Neophyte, de qui la maison & tout le petit bagage fut deuore par ces flammes, estant interrogé si ce desastre ne l‘auoit pas beaucoup touché, respondit fainetement: Si la Foy ne m‘auoit appris que celuy qui a tout fait, est le Maître de fes
Christian savage all in flames; and, to crown our misfortune, the fire drove them so violently and so rapidly toward the Church, in which a good portion of these people have been born to Jesus Christ, that it was impossible to save it. The High Altar, enriched with gold and that beautiful coral red which so agreeably attracted the gaze of those good Neophytes, and inspired them with tender affection for their Aiámihimikioap,—that is, their house of prayer,—was reduced to ashes in an instant.

That Church was dedicated to God under the name of St. Michael, in accordance with the desire of him who had contributed a good portion of the money wherewith to build it. It was the first that had been erected in the whole country for the new Christians. It might have been called the Mother of the entire Christianity of this new world, because the Montagnais and the Algonquins had become converted on this spot, and had inspired, in all the other Nations who have since received Jesus Christ, the desire of hearing his word after the example [95] of their Countrymen. It was the asylum and refuge of the French of the neighborhood, who deplore the fire as much as our good Neophytes. One and all urge us to raise those ruins; but our arms are not strong enough, without greater help than they can give us, to retrieve so serious a loss by ourselves.

The worthy Neophyte, whose house and the whole of whose petty effects were destroyed by the flames, was asked whether that disaster had touched him deeply; he piously replied: "Had not Faith taught me that he who has made all is the Master of his works and wisely disposes of them as he pleases, that blow would have caused me sorrow. But why ouurages, & qu'il enatif fagement comme il luy plaif, ce coup m'auroit attrifté: mais pourquoi le quereller & fe facher d'unefoche qui luy appartient, puis qu'en nous donnant la Foy, il ne nous promet pas les biens de la terre, mais ceux du ciel, que le feu ne fçauroit conffomer?

Vne bonne femme appelée Liduuiine, ayant efté inftruite dans cette méfme Eglife, fit paroiftre das unefpace fahceufe [96] rencontrent unefon confiance en Dieu tres-remarquable: car renconfrant en fon pays avec quelques-vns de fes compatriotes vne trouppe d'Iroquois qui forfoient d'une embufcade pour venir fondre fur eux, Liduuiine épouuante fe iettant dans l'espais de ces grâdes forefts, y entraîna apres foy quatre de fes enfans, & s'y voyant abandonnée de tout fecours humain, elle s'adrefsa à Dieu les genoux en terre & les larmes aux yeux. Mon IESVS, dit-elle, nous femmes mors fî vous n'auez pitié de nous. Fe fuis malade, & à peine puis-je mettre vn pied deuant l'autre, & ces enfans ne fçauront marcher: Où irons nous? Que ferons nous fans viures & fans force? C'eft de vous feul que nous attendoés du fecours? Vous eftes infinimement bon & tout puiffant: Vous aimez les enfans qui font innocens, & ceux qui vous veulent feruir de bon cœur: Ne laiffez-pas mourir ces petites creatures: N'abandonnez point la mere, qui vous demande pardon de fes pechez, & qui vous promet de fe confefser à la premiere habitation des François qu'elle rencontrera, fî elle [97] y peut arriuer deuant que de mourir. En deffus elle auance dans ces grands bois, fans autre prouifion que de l'esperance en Dieu, fe nourrifant l'espace de dix iours qu'elle marcha, de cette penfée, qu'elle auoit blame him, and be angry about a matter which belongs to him, since, in giving us the Faith, he promises us not the good things of the earth, but the blessings of heaven, which fire can never consume?"

A good woman named Liduvine, who had been instructed in that same Church, manifested, in a perilous [96] emergency, a most remarkable confidence in God. While in her own country with some of her compatriots, they were surprised by a band of Iroquois, who rushed from an ambush to fall upon them. Liduvine in her fright threw herself into the thickest of the great forest, dragging her four children after her. Finding herself abandoned by all human aid, she knelt on the earth, and with tears in her eyes addressed this prayer to God: "My JESUS," she said, "we shall die if you have not pity on us. I am ill; I can hardly put one foot before the other, and these children cannot walk. Where shall we go? What shall we do without food and without strength? From you alone do we expect help. You are infinitely good, and all-powerful. You love innocent children, and those who wish to serve you sincerely. Allow not these poor little creatures to die. Abandon not the mother, who begs you to pardon her sins, and who promises to go to confession at the first French settlement that she shall meet, if she [97] can reach it before she dies." Thereupon, she continued her wanderings through those great woods, with no other provision than hope in God, nourishing herself, through the ten days of her march, with this thought, which she ever had in her heart, and which sometimes was uttered by her lips: "JESUS, you are good; you can toujours au cœur, & quelques fois en la bouche:
IESVS vous êtes bon, vous me pouuez donner la vie, you seul donnez de la force à mes enfants pour les faire marcher, vous seul les empechez de pleurer & de mourir de faim. Enfin laissée de travail & de fatigue, elle arriua heureusement aux trois Rivieres:
Et ce qui accreut sa joie, fut qu'elle y rencontre son mary qu'elle croyoit mort au combat. Il ne faisoit que d'arriver par un autre chemin. Et pour comble de benediction cet homme qui passoit pour un grand Longleur, & un maître Sorcier, quitta son infidélité, pour embrasser par le Baptême la Foy de Iesus-CHRIST: la femme s'acquitta de sa promesse par vne bonne confession qu'elle fit, & par les remercimens & actions de graces qu'elle rendit à Dieu son unique bien-faïteur.

Vne de nos anciennes Chrétiennes [98] fit paroïtre vn courage d'Amazone dans le combat qui fut liuré à sa chasteté par vn François, dont elle sortit victo-rueuse. Et voici comme elle raconta le fait au Pere qui a la direction de son ame. Tirant de son sein vn Crucifix qu'elle portoit pendu au col: voyez-vous ce Crucifix (luy dit-elle) il a fauue autrefois mon corps du feu des Iroquois, & cette nuit il a fauue mon ame des flammes de l'enfer. Je fus pourfuiuie, il y a vn an par les Iroquois qui me vouloient raurir l'honneur & la vie, pour me fauuer plus promptement & pour eutier leur rage, je iettai mo bagage & la pluppart de mes habits, & m'enfuis presque toute nuë dans les bois. Je pris mon Crucifix en main, n'ayant plus d'autre recours qu'à celuy qu'il me reïfentoit, & je luy dis du fond de mon cœur: Mon Dieu & mon
Sauueur, je ne crains pas de mourir, vous le faïaez;
give me life. You alone give strength to my children, to enable them to walk; you alone can prevent them from weeping, and from dying of hunger.'" Finally, wearied with toil and fatigue, she was fortunate enough to reach three Rivers. Her joy was increased at meeting there her husband, who, she thought, had been killed in the fight. He had only just arrived by another road. To crown the blessings granted to her, that man, who was considered a great Juggler and a master Sorcerer, abandoned his infidelity to embrace the Faith of Jesus Christ through Baptism. The wife fulfilled her promise by making a good confession and by expressing her thanks and her gratitude to God, her sole benefactor.

One of our old Christians [98] displayed the courage of an Amazon in an attack made by a Frenchman upon her chastity, from which she came forth victorious. Note how she related the matter to the Father who directs her conscience. Drawing from her bosom a Crucifix that she wore hung on her neck, "Do you see this Crucifix?" (she said to him;) "on a former occasion it saved my body from the fire of the Iroquois; and last night it saved my soul from the flames of hell. I was pursued, a year ago, by the Iroquois, who wished to rob me of my honor and of my life. To save myself more easily and to escape from their fury, I threw away my baggage and most of my clothes, and fled almost naked into the woods. I took my Crucifix in my hand,—for there was no one to whom I could have recourse except him whom it represented to me,— and I said to him in the depths of my heart: 'My God and my Savior, I dread not death, as you know;
mais je crains de tomber entre les mains de ces vilains qui font vn iouët de la pudicité des pauvres captiues: cachez-moy dans vos playes & dans vostre costé. Je les baïfois amoureusement l'vn après l'autre. [99] Après cette prière je sentis tant de force dans mon corps, que fuiant d'vn pas leger, je me vis en peu de temps hors du danger de l'ennemi. Mon Pere, difoit-elle, je ne t'auois pas encore dit cette merueille, en voici encore vne autre que tu ne fçais pas, & que j'ay bien de la peine à te dire: car elle eft bien efrange. Cette nuit ce mefme Crucifix a fauué mon ame, qu'vn François s'est efforcé de perdre, en me voulant rauir l'honneur par fon impudicité. Il m'a prise par la main & me tirant à part il m'a fait entrer dans vne maison: il m'a iettée par furprise & par force fur vn liét, aussitôt ie me fuis mise à crier, & l'ayant repouffé, i'ay tiré mon Crucifix de mon fein, ie luy ay dit dans la chaleur de ma colere: Miferable, que veux-tu faire? Veux-tu encor crucifier derechef celuy qui a donné fon fang & fa vie pour toy & pour moy? Si tu ne crains point de faire tort à mon honneur, crains d'offenfer celuy qui te peut damner. Quoy, voudrois-tu me perdre en te perdant par vn peché que Dieu a en horreur? A ces mots il lascha prise, & [100] moy me voyant deliurée d'vn fi grand danger, ie me retiray tout eftonnée dans ma cabane, refolué de demander Iustice au Capitaine des François. Ceci arriua le foir, & le lendemain matin cette genereufe Chrétienne vint trouuer le Pere à l'Eglife vn prefent à la main, pour l'offrir à Dieu en action de grace de l'auoir retirée du precipice où elle alloit tomber; Et pour le prier de la fortifier dans de femblables rencontres: elle fe but I fear to fall into the hands of those wretches, who make sport of the modesty of their unfortunate captives. Hide me in your wounds and in your side.' I kissed them lovingly, one after the other. [99] After that prayer, I felt such bodily strength that I could run very swiftly, and soon found myself out of danger from the enemy. My Father," she said, "I had not yet told thee that marvel; here is another of which thou knowest not, and which embarrasses me greatly to tell thee, for it is very strange. Last night, this same Crucifix saved my soul, which a Frenchman endeavored to ruin by seeking to ravish my honor through his own unchastity. He took me by the hand, and, drawing me to one side, he made me enter a house; then, suddenly and violently, threw me upon a bed. I at once began to cry out; repulsing him, I drew out my Crucifix from my bosom and said to him in the heat of my anger: 'Wretch! what dost thou seek to do? Dost thou wish to crucify once more him who has given his blood and his life for thee and for me? If thou dost not fear to injure my honor, fear to offend him who may damn thee. What! wouldst thou seek to ruin me while ruining thyself by a sin which is hateful to God?' At those words, he loosened his hold, and, [100] when I found myself delivered from so great a danger, I withdrew, quite bewildered, into my cabin, and resolved to ask Justice of the Captain of the French." This happened in the evening; on the following morning that brave Christian woman went to the Father at the Church with a present in her hand, to offer it to God in thanksgiving for having saved her from the abyss into which she was about to fall, and to beg ietta en fuite aux pieds du Pere pour luy faire sa confession.

Cette mefme Amazone fit encore vne action auffi faincte que genereufe. Ayant esté sensiblement offen-fée par vne fiéenne parente, & sentant que fon cœur fe portoit à la vengeance, elle luy dît, c’est de toy, qui és mefchant que ie me vengerai. Et là deflus elle va trouver celle qui luy auoit fait infulte, luy demande pardon, & la prie fortement d’oublier le passé, & de viure avec elle comme si elles estoient fœurs.

Vne pauure malade couchée fur le fumier à demie pourrie d’víceres depuis deux mois, ne pouoit affez témoigner [101] de reconnoissance de l’affistence que luy rendoit vn de nos Peres par fon soin & par ses viûtes. Ha! mon Pere, difoit-elle, que tu me fais de bien, de me venir voir! ie suis réjouie quand ie te voy, tu me fais prier Dieu ne le pouuant faire toute seule, tu m’encourages à porter mon mal patiemment, & à en faire mon profit: Enfin tu m’ouures la porte du Ciel par tes viûtes, & par tes instructions. Quand ie t’ay veu durant le iour, il me femble à la fin de la journée que i’ay profité de mes douleurs.

Vne troupe de Sauuages penfa perir de faim dans les bois l’Hyuer dernier, les Sorciers & les deuins ont recours à leurs demons pour etre aßistés dans leur befoin; ils entrent dans leur tabernacle, ils ionglent, ils ioiient de leurs tambours: enfin ils n’épargnent rien de leur mestier; mais en vain. Dans cette troupe de Sauuages il se trouua vn bon Chreftien appelé Iean Baptifte, qui fut follicité de renoncer à la priere, & de faire comme les autres him to strengthen her on similar occasions. She then knelt down at the Father's feet to make her confession to him.

This same Amazon also performed another action as godly as it was generous. She was grievously offended by one of her relatives, and, feeling her heart inclined to vengeance, she said to it: "It is upon thee, who art wicked, that I will revenge myself." Thereupon, she went to the person who had offered the insult, asked pardon of her, and earnestly begged her to forget the past, and to live with her as if they were sisters.

A poor sick woman, half rotten with ulcers, who had lain upon dung for two months, could not sufficiently express [101] her gratitude for the assistance tendered her by one of our Fathers through his care and his visits to her. "Ah, my Father," she said, "how good thou art to come and see me! I rejoice when I see thee. Thou makest me pray to God when I cannot do so by myself; thou encouragest me to bear my sickness patiently, and to turn it to my advantage; finally, thou openest the door of Heaven to me by thy visits and instructions. When I have seen thee during the day, it seems to me that, at the end of the day, my pains have benefited me."

A band of Savages nearly died of hunger in the woods last Winter. The Sorcerers and magicians had recourse to their demons, to obtain assistance in their necessities; they entered their tabernacle, they juggled, they beat their drums,—in a word, they spared no trick of their trade; but in vain. In that band of Savages, there was a good Christian, named Jean Baptiste, who was urged to renounce the prayer and to do like the others, in order to be delivered pour se délier de la faim. Je n'ay garde de le faire, dit-il; Dieu est le seul Maître de ma vie, qui en disposerait selon son bon plaisir, j'auray recours à lui, & l'espère qu'il ne m'abandonnera pas: quand j'en deurois mourir, je ne changeray pas de résolution: car après tout si je le fers bien, il me donnera vne vie heureuse, après celle-cy: Et vous qui le méprisez, ferez misérables en l'une & en l'autre.

Sa parole s'est trouvée véritable; car vne partie de ceux qui ont eu recours au Démon, ont été tres-miserables, & celui-cy s'étant séparé des Infidèles, n'a point expérimenté les effets de la faim, ny de la maladie; & vit dans l'esperance d'un bon-heur éternel.

Vn Capitaine des plus fameux entre les Algonquins fit un festin à fes secondes noces, où il invita quelques François assez considérables, & les principaux de fa nation; auxquels il tint ce discours: Mes frères je commence à vieillir, il y a tantot vingt-ans que je suis Chretien, & que j'en fais profession. Je suis résolu de mourir dans la Foy que j'ay embrassée, & dans la doctrine que les Peres m'ont enseignée: je me suis marié pour la seconde fois: mais selon la coutume de l'Eglise, pour m'attacher plus fortement à l'obligation qu'ont les Chrétiens de ne quitter jamais leurs femmes: & pour rompre les mauvaises coutumes qui regnent de tout temps parmi notre jeunesse. Si je viens à manquer en ce point, ou à faire quelque chose contraire au Christiâniïme, je vous prie de me reprendre; & de ne me point épargner. Vous me ferez plaisir de me redresser: & de me remettre dans le bon chemin.

Ce Capitaine dit bien, mais il fait encore mieux. Je from hunger. "I have no wish to do so," he said.
"God is the sole Master of my life; he will dispose of it according to his good pleasure. I will have recourse to him, and I hope that he will not abandon me. Even if I must die for it, I will not alter my resolution; for, after all, if I serve him well, he will give me a happy life after this one, while you, who set him at naught, shall be miserable both in this life and in the other.'"

His words proved true; for a portion of those who had recourse to the Demon were in very great distress, while he who kept apart from the Infidels experienced the effects neither of hunger nor of sickness, and still lives in the hope of eternal happiness.

One of the most famous Captains among the Algonquins gave a feast on the occasion of his second marriage, to which he invited some Frenchmen of note and the chief men of his nation. He addressed to them the following discourse: "My brothers, I am beginning to grow old. For nearly twenty years I have been, and have professed to be, a Christian. I am resolved to die in the Faith that I have embraced, and in the doctrine that the Fathers have taught me. I am marrying for the second time, but in accordance with the usage of the Church, in order to bind myself more strongly to the obligation imposed upon Christians never to abandon their wives, and to break the evil habits that prevail at all times among our young people. If ever I fail on that score, or if I do anything contrary to Christianity, I beg you to reprove me, and not to spare me. You will do me a favor by correcting me and leading me back to the right path." This Captain's words are ne fçay s'il aura beaucoup d'imitateurs en ce point, puis que la loy de l'indissolubilité du mariage à autres-fois semblé bien dure, même a quelques Disciples de IESVS-CHRIST, qui désoient à leur Maître, Si ita est causa hominis cum uxore, non expedit nubere.
good, but his deeds are still better. I know not whether he will have many imitators in that respect, since the law of the indissolubility of marriage formerly seemed a very hard one, even to some of the Disciples of Jesus Christ, who said to their Master: \textit{Si ita est causa hominis cum uxore, non expedit nubere.}
CHAPITRE X.

DES SAUVAGES HURONS DEUANT LEUR ENLEUEMENT DE L'ISLE D'ORLEANS.

Nos Sauvages, écrit vn Pere qui en auoit soin, font en fort bon train. Ils font paroïtre, ce me semble, beaucoup plus de foy, & de pieté qu'à l'ordinaire, fur tout ceux qui font de la Congregation, dont le nombre est de quatre-vingt, probati omnes testimonio fidei & pietatis. Ils ont passé l'Aduent dans vne ferueur toute particuliére, chacun ayant pris à tâche de s'auancer plus solidement en la vertu. Plusieurs croyant qu'vn Meffe estoit trop courte pour satisfaire à leur deuotion, en ont entendu deux tous les iours. D'autres font venus falter le fainct Sacrement le matin auant le temps des P[r]ieres; d'autres font venus à Midy réglément, sans que le froid, ou le mauvais temps peut empecher leur ferueur.

Depuis trois sepmaines certaines grosses feures ayans attaque plusieurs de nos Sauvages, dont quelques-vns ont esté fort abbatus, les principaux de la Congregation ont eu soin de visiter les malades, & de les confoler; ce qui a esté mieux receu d'eux que mes visites. Nos Congreganistes ont fait paroïtre en leurs maladies la pieté qu'ils recommandoient aux autres.

Nous en auons perdu vn, nommé André, qui estoit meur pour le Paradis. Il s'estoit dispoé dés le

OF THE HURON SAVAGES BEFORE THEIR REMOVAL FROM THE ISLAND OF ORLEANS.

"Our Savages," writes a Father who had charge of them, "are doing well. It seems to me that they manifest much more faith and piety than usual, especially those who belong to the Congregation, who number eighty, probati omnes testimonio fidei et pietatis. They observed the time of Advent with especial fervor; each one endeavored to make more solid progress in virtue. Many, who considered one Mass too short to satisfy their devotion, heard two every day; some came to pay homage to the blessed Sacrament in the morning, before the hour of Prayer; others came at Noon, regularly; and neither cold nor bad weather could hinder their fervor.

[105] "For three weeks, certain violent fevers attacked many of our Savages, some of whom were entirely prostrated by it. The leading members of the Congregation took care to visit and console the sick, and this was more agreeable to them than my own visits. Our members of the Congregation manifested, in their own sickness, the same piety that they recommended to the others.

"We have lost one of them, named André, who was ripe for Paradise. He had prepared himself, from the beginning of Advent, with a fervor that caused him to be admired by all our Congregation. He suffered very much from a gunshot wound, commencement de l’Aduent, par vne ferueur qui le faifoit admirer de tous nos Congreganistes. Il estoit fort incommodé d’vn coup de fusil qu’il auoit receu dans la cuisse depuis huit ou neuf mois; ce qui le faifoit marcher avec bien de la peine. Il me dit, au commencement de l’Aduent, qu’il euft bien désiré venir trois fois prier Dieu chaque iour deuant le fainct Sacrement: mais que la chose luy eftant trop difficile, il preuiendroit le fon de noftrre Cloche le matin & le foir, & ne fortiroit point de la Chapelle que toutes les Prieres ne fussent acheuées. [106] Il venoit le matin d’ordinaire trois quarts d’heure avant tous les autres. Il auoit vn zele, que ie n’ay iamais veu en aucun Sauuage, pour me faire connoître les fautes des Congreganistes, fans efparger fes parens: ce qui m’auidoit beaucoup pour y apporter remede.

Nos Congreganistes ayans tous ieûné les quatre Temps, & la veille de Noël, ce bon homme le fit avec tant d'austérité, qu’eftant venu dés le foir de la veille de Noël, à deffein de passer la nuit en la Chapelle, pour attendre le temps de la Mefse, il refusa vn morceau de pain que ie luy voulus donner pour fa collation.

Le l’auois aduerty qu’il feroit fa petite promefse à noftrre-Dame, le iour de la fefte. Il voulut le donnant foy-mefme, y joindre vn prefent de pourcelaine, pour témoigner que tout ce qu’il auoit, estoit au fervice de la faincte Vierge.

Le foir de ce mefme iour eftant fort attaqué de la maladie dont il mourut, il me demanda congé de faire festin à vne centaine de Chreftiens, auſſuels il parla fi auantageufeſement de l’eſtime qu’il [107] faifoit de la Foy, qu’il en toucha plusieurs, & quelques-vns which he had received in the thigh eight or nine months before, and could walk only with difficulty. He told me, at the beginning of Advent, that he would have liked very much to come and pray to God three times a day before the blessed Sacrament; but, as this was too difficult for him to accomplish, he said he would anticipate the ringing of our Bell in the morning and at night, and would not go out of the Chapel until all the Prayers were finished.

[106] He usually came in the morning, three-quarters of an hour before all the others. He manifested a zeal which I have never observed in any Savage, in informing me of faults in the members of the Congregation, without sparing his own relatives; this greatly assisted me in applying a remedy.

"All our Congregation fasted on the Ember-days and on Christmas eve. This good man did so with such austerity that, when he came on the evening before Christmas to pass the night in the Chapel and await the time for Mass, he refused a piece of bread which I wished to give him for his collation.

"I notified him that he was to fulfill his promise to our Lady on the day of the feast. While offering himself, he wished to add a present of porcelain beads, to show that all that belonged to him was at the service of the blessed Virgin.

"In the evening of the same day, he had a violent attack of the disease of which he died. He asked me for permission to give a feast to about a hundred Christians, to whom he spoke so highly of the esteem that he [107] had for the Faith that he touched the hearts of many of them, and some came to confession after they had left the feast. He died on the last day of the year. He was nearly always praying to God, and, on the day of his death, he said four decades of his Rosary. A quarter of an hour before he passed away, about twenty of us were praying at the foot of his bed. He repeated all that we said, applying it to himself. When we said, 'Jesus, have pity on this dying man,' he would say, 'Jesus, have pity on me. I am about to die, and I die joyfully, because I am a Christian.' He brought tears of devotion to our eyes.

"Great was the honor done to him by the whole Village, and especially by the Congregation. As soon as he had breathed his last, eight Christians prayed to God on their knees near his body, one party succeeding another. On the following day, the leading members of the Congregation brought as a gift to his Cabin a moose-skin, beautifully painted, to honor his body, and the materials wherewith to give a feast to all who were invited. Our female Singers sang with much devotion [108] the songs for the dead, to the air of the Hymn, Pie Jesu Domine. Then, a decade of the Rosary was recited by two choirs, responding one to the other. All the Congregation went, at the first stroke of the Bell, to the Chapel, whence they issued two by two, followed by the principal Officers. All proceeded in fine order to the gate of the Village, where the body was delivered to us; the members of the Congregation alone went back to the Chapel; and, when the body had been placed there, we said two decades of the Rosary and a number of other Prayers. After that, we carried the corpse to the spot where it was to be buried. The whole was done with rare modesty, and with a devotion that came from and went to the heart."
Nos Chrétiens ont fait divers petits présents de porcelaine, huile & bled-d'inde au petit Iesvs, que nous ayons mis dans la Creiche à Noël; ce qui a été appliqué pour les pauvres. Dieu benisse ces petits commencements. Ce sont jusqu'ici les termes de la Lettre du Père, qui alors avoit le foin de cette Mission.

[109] Un jeune-homme d'environ trente ans, remarquable pour ses exploits de guerre, avoit eu depuis son enfance toujours la Foy dans le cœur. Mais les débauches de la jeunesse l'avoient jeté dans le défordre, d'autant plus malheureusement qu'il avoit un attrait de beauté si puissant sur l'esprit des femmes, même les plus chastes, qu'il sembloit avoir quelque charme pour enlever les cœurs. Comme souvent il retombait dans le péché, vn de nos Peres indigné contre ses rechutes, le menaça fortement des punitions de Dieu, qui ne tarderoient pas à paroître fur lui. Peu de jours après; dans l'horreur d'une nuit obscure vn spectre épouvantable luy apparut, comme voulant l'estouffer, & le saisissant à la gorge. Il fonge à Dieu en cette rencontre, & à l'exces de son péché. Et pour s'en vanger fur lui même, il prend un tison enflammé, qu'il applique fur sa chair nue, le défant à soi-même: Eprouue mal-heureux pecheur, si tu pourras souffrir le feu d'enfer. Cette main qui l'avoit saisi à la gorge pour l'étouffer, quitte prête, & il se [110] voit en liberté. Il passe le reste de la nuit dans des promesses à Dieu, qu'il va changer de vie, & il attend avec impatience le point du jour, pour aller à confesse. Ce ne fut pas sans larmes ny sans sentiments de douleur, qui firent bien connoître que ce coup là estoit du Ciel. Il demeura plus de
Our Christians gave various little presents of porcelain beads, oil, and indian corn to the infant Jesus, which we placed in the Cradle on Christmas; they were applied to the relief of the poor. May God bless these slight beginnings." So far, we have given the words of the Letter from the Father who then had charge of that Mission.

A young man, about thirty years of age, who was noted for his warlike exploits, had always from his childhood possessed the Faith in his heart. But the profligacy of youth had caused him to fall into evil ways, all the more unfortunately because he possessed the attraction of beauty, which had so powerful an effect upon the minds of women, even of the most chaste among them, that he seemed to have some charm to win their hearts. As he frequently fell back into sin, one of our Fathers, indignant at his relapses, threatened him vigorously with the punishment of God, which would not fail to make itself soon felt on him. A few days afterward, in the horror of a dark night, a frightful specter appeared to him and seized him by the throat, as if to choke him. In this encounter, his thoughts turn to God and to the enormity of his sin. To be avenged for it upon himself, he takes a burning fire-brand and applies it to his naked flesh, saying to himself: "Try, wretched sinner, whether thou canst endure the fire of hell." The hand that had seized him by the throat to choke him loosens its hold, and he finds himself free. He spends the remainder of the night in making promises to God that he will change his mode of life, and he impatiently awaits daybreak, that he may go to confession. This was not done without tears and deep contrition, which deux heures en oraison, où son cœur parloit plus que sa langue. Une maladie le saisit, qui dura plusieurs mois, avec des douleurs extraordinaires. C' était une consolation bien sensible que d'ouir les colloques qu'il faisoit à Dieu; jamais on ne l'entendit pousser aucune plainte, sinon d'amour, non pas même une moueusement d'impatience. Son cœur estoit à Dieu, & il ne respirait que lui: Quand quelqu'un de nos Peres l'alloit visiter, il reprenoit des forces, pour lui témoigner qu'il s'estimoit heureux de se voir en un état, où il ne put songer qu'à Dieu: & en l'embrassant avec amour, les larmes aux yeux, il lui disoit: Hélas, mes pechez me feront-ils pardonner? Mais tout de bon, Mon Pere, croyez-vous que j'aille au Ciel, non[0]bstant les pechez que [III] j'ay commis contre mon Dieu, qui doit estre mon juge? Comme on l'en asseuroit, ses larmes couloient en plus grande abondance, lors qu'il disoit: Hélas! mon Dieu, que vous estes bon, & que vous seul meritez d'estre aimé! Mon cœur vous veut aimer, & plus j'ay peché, plus je vous veux aimer, & veux mourir, en vous aimant. Tandis qu'il eut la parole libre, il employoit une bonne partie du jour & de la nuit en Prières. Souvent il prenoit son Crucifix en main, & il lui parloit avec tant d'amour & de larmes, que ceux qui le voyoient, en estoient touchés au vif. Il ne pouvoit souffrir qu'on luy parlât des choses de la terre. L'ay, disoit-il, trop vécu pour la terre, il est temps, que je viue, & que je meure pour le Ciel. Sa mere le pria un jour de demander pour elle, enuiron un arpent de terre, où elle pût semer du bled, pour l'entretien de sa famille; car nos Peres font faire de grands abbatis de bois, & la terre étant dispoée pour le travail de showed very well that it was a visitation of Heaven. He remained more than two hours in prayer, wherein his heart spoke more than his tongue. He was attacked by an illness which lasted several months, and was accompanied by extreme pain. It was a very great consolation to listen to the conversations that he held with God. He was never heard to utter a sigh except of love; and not a movement of impatience escaped him. His heart belonged to God, and sighed for him alone. When one of our Fathers went to visit him, he collected his strength, to show him that he considered himself happy at finding himself in a condition wherein he could think of God alone; and, embracing the Father affectionately, with tears in his eyes, he said to him: "Alas, shall my sins be forgiven me? But, My Father, do you truly think that I shall go to Heaven, notwithstanding the sins that [111] I have committed against my God, who is to be my judge?" When we assured him of it, his tears flowed in great abundance, and he said: "Ah! my God, how good you are, and how you alone deserve to be loved! My heart wishes to love you, and, the more I have sinned, the more do I wish to love you, and to die loving you." So long as he could speak, he spent a good part of the day and of the night in Prayer. He frequently took his Crucifix into his hands, and spoke to it so lovingly and so tearfully that those who saw him were deeply touched. He could not bear to be spoken to about earthly things. "I have lived too long for the earth," he said; "it is time that I should live and die for Heaven." His mother begged him one day to ask on her behalf for about an arpent of land, in which she might sow corn for the support of her la culture, ils en font le partage, entre ceux qui estant bons Chrétiens, n'ont pas [112] affez de forces, afin de se pourvoir eux-mêmes. Ce jeun homme, quoy qu'abatu de maladie, se mit presque en colere contre sa Mere. Suíès-ie en estat, luy repond-il, de fonger à vos champs? Pourquoy me parlez-vous de ce que dans peu de temps il vous faudra quitter? Que ne me parlez-vous du Ciel, puisque c'est là où doivent tendre nos desirs? Puis s'adreffant au Pere; Si elle n'est, dit-il, meilleure Chrétiennne qu'elle n'a esté iusqu'à maintenant, il n'est pas iust que qu'elle soit preferée à ceux qui meritent plus qu'elle: fay ce qui fera pour fon bien.

Cela dit, il r'entra incontinent en foy-mêmes: & jugeant qu'il auroit parlé d'vn ton trop aigre, il demanda pardon à fon Confesseur.

Cependant la mort fait ses approches. Il est faisi de conuulfions si furieuses, & iette des cris si horribles, que tout le monde en est effrayé. Il semble qu'il combatte quelque Demon qui luy ayt apparu. Marie fecourez-moy. IESVS sauuez-moy. Mon Dieu, ayez pitié de moy, s'écrit il comme tout hors de [113] foy-mêmes. Ces terres continuerent uffî bien que fa priere iusques au dernier soupir. Le Pere qui l'aßisfoit ne luy manqua pas au besoin, adorant en mefme temps les effets de la Iustice & de la Mifericorde de Dieu fur ce ieune homme qui portoit iusques à la mort la peine de ses pechez, pour ne la pas porter dans l'éternité. Il fe nommoit Iacques Atohonchioanne.

Vne ieune fille qui avoir esté pres de deux ans dans le Seminaire des Vrfulines, s'oublia affez-toft apres en ester forte de des promeffes qu'elle avoir fait fouuent à family; for our Fathers cause great clearings to be made in the woods; and, where the soil is fit for cultivation, they divide it up among those who are good Christians, and who have not sufficient strength to provide for themselves. The young man, although exhausted by sickness, almost became angry with his Mother. "Am I in a condition," he said to her, "to think of your fields? Why do you speak to me of that which in a short time you will have to leave? Why do you not speak to me of Heaven, since all our desires should tend thither?" Then, addressing the Father, he said: "If she be not a better Christian than she has hitherto been, it is not right that she should have preference over those who are more deserving than she is; do whatever may be for her good."

Having said this, he at once became himself again; and, thinking that he had spoken in too harsh a tone, he asked pardon of his Confessor.

Meanwhile, death draws near, he is seized with such violent convulsions, and utters such terrible cries, that every one is frightened. He seems to be fighting the apparition of some Demon. "Mary, come to my aid! Jesus, save me! My God, have pity on me!" he exclaims, as if quite beside himself. His terrors and prayers continued to his last breath. The Father who attended him did not fail him in his need; he adored, at the same time, the effects of God's Justice and of his Mercy upon that young man, who endured the penalty of his sins up to his death that he might not endure them throughout eternity. His name was Jacques Atohonchioanne.

A young girl, who had been for nearly two years in the Seminary of the Ursulines, forgot, shortly after leaving there, the promises which she had frequently Dieu, d'eutter le peché. Les remonstrances y estant inutiles, vne personne qui l'aimoit felon Dieu, demanda pour elle qu'elle tombât en quelque grievue maladie, qui peût arrester le cours de ses desbauches, & la faire r'entrer en foy-méme. Cette prière eut bien-toft fon effet. Elle tombe malade, & incontinent les semences de l'Eternité, qu'on auoit iettées dans fon ame, commencèrent à poufier des fruict du Paradis. Elle demandoit pardon à Dieu d'un cœur parfaitement contrit, elle le [114] remercoit amoureusement de ce qu'il auoit arrefté les dereglemens de fa vie, elle le prioit avec vne tendrefle de cœur merueilleufe qu'il ne luy rendit point la fanté, dont peut-estre elle auroit abusé, mais plufoft qu'il pro-longeait ses douleurs & fa maladie. La mort furueuant là deflus, luy fut vne afeurance de fon salut.

Elle auoit fait le mëme iour vne Confession gene-rale. Vne fiéenne compagne craignat qu'elle n'eust oublié quelqu'un de ses pechez luy en renouuella la memoire. Elle auoit deja perdu la parole, ses yeux parlerent par ses larmes, & fa bouche ne peut parler que par les fanglots de fon cœur. Le Pere qui eftoit là prefent, luy aiant donné l'absolution qu'elle luy auoit demandée par figne, auffi-toft elle expira.

Vne bonne vieille Chreftienne n'auoit i'amais pu apprendre d'autre priere que quatre mots, IESVS ayés pitié de moy, que j'aille au ciel apres la mort. Mais elle auoit vne telle habitude à les repeter iour & nuit, qu'ayant perdu la parole & le jugement pour toute autre chose, [115] elle continua cette priere inuques au dernier soupir, d'un visage fi remplit de ioye, qu'à la voir leuer les yeux au ciel, on iugeoit bien qu'elle portoit là tous ses defirs.
made to God to avoid sin. As remonstrances had no effect upon her, a person who loved her as God commands asked, on her behalf, that she might fall into a grievous illness, which might arrest the course of her dissoluteness and make her return to her former self. That prayer soon had its effect. She fell ill, and at once the seeds of Eternity that had been cast into her soul commenced to bring forth fruits of Paradise. She asked God for pardon with a truly contrite heart; she [114] thanked him lovingly for having put a stop to the dissoluteness of her life; she prayed him with wonderful tenderness of heart not to restore her health, of which she might perhaps make a bad use, but rather to prolong her sufferings and her illness. Then came death, and that was an assurance of her salvation.

On the same day, she had made a general Confession. One of her companions, who feared that she might have forgotten some of her sins, reminded her of them. She was already deprived of speech; her eyes spoke with her tears, and her mouth could speak only with the sobbing of her heart. The Father who was present gave her absolution, which she had asked by signs, and she at once expired.

A good Christian old woman had never been able to learn any other prayer than these few words: JESUS, have pity on me, that I may go to heaven after my death." But she had such a habit of repeating them day and night that, when she was deprived of speech, and unconscious of all other things, [115] she continued to say that prayer up to her last breath; and this with a face so full of joy that, on seeing her lift her eyes to heaven, it was easy to observe that all her desires centered there.
Il y a vn an que cinq Iroquois Agnieronnôs, ayant esté pris à la guerre par les Algonquins & Hurons, furent brûlez, apres avoir receu le saint Baptême: mais ce qui nous parut de plus aimable en leur conversion, fut que quatre d’entre-eux se trouuerent suffisamment instruits d’abord qu’on leur parla. Nos Chrétiens dans leur captivité, iettent par tout où ils font des semences du Christianisme.

Vn d’eux ayant appris vne priere qui s’adresseit à IESVS-CHRIST, demanda de luy-même qu’on luy parlaist de la Mère qui l’auoit enfanté etant demeurée Vierge: & la Mère & le Fils, disoit-il, font entrez en mon cœur, ie ne veux pas les separer, & ie veux que ma langue les inuoque iusques à la mort. En effet il les inuoqua constantly iusques au dernier soupir.

L’année derniere vn François fut têmoin [116] de l’heureuse mort de deux Hurons qui furent brûlez dans le pais des Iroquois Agnieron nons, où ce Francois estoit captif. Il nous a asseuré que ces deux Hurons auant que d’estre attachés au poteau où ils deuoient estre brûlez, demanderêt du temps pour prier Dieu, ce qui leur fut accordé. Le plus ieune des deux ayant apperceu ce François; Mon Frere, luy dit-il, si jamais tu vois Outfitfont (c’est le nom que les Hurons donnent a Monsieur de Becancourt, chez lequel ce ieune Huron auoit demeuré deux ans) tu luy diras que ie meurs Chrétiens, que les tourmens ne m’estonnent point, a cause qu’ils ne me peuuent oster l’esperance du Paradis.

Vne pauure Chrétiennne Algonquine qui auoit esté faite captive en meême temps, estant sur le point d’estre brûlée, fit aussi ses prières avaut que de mourir, & inuita le meême François a prier avec elle:
A year ago, five Agnieronnon Iroquois were made prisoners of war by the Algonquins and Hurons, and were burned, after receiving holy Baptism; but what pleased us most in their conversion was, that we found four of them sufficiently instructed when we first spoke to them. Our Christians in their captivity sow the seeds of Christianity wherever they happen to be.

One of them, who had learned a prayer which appealed to Jesus Christ, asked us of his own accord to tell him about the Mother who had borne him while she remained a Virgin. "Both," said he, "the Mother and the Son, have entered into my heart. I do not wish to separate them, and I wish my tongue to pray to them until I die." In fact, he continually invoked them until his last breath.

Last year, a Frenchman witnessed [116] the happy death of two Hurons, who were burned in the country of the Agnieronnon Iroquois, where that Frenchman was a captive. He assured us that those two Hurons, before being tied to the stake at which they were to be burned, asked for time to pray to God. Their request was granted them. When the younger of the two perceived the Frenchman, he said to him: "My Brother, if ever thou shouldst see Outsitsont" (that is the name given by the Hurons to Monsieur de Becancourt, with whom that young Huron had lived for two years), "thou shalt tell him that I die a Christian; that the tortures frighten me not, because they cannot take from me the hope of Paradise."

A poor Christian Algonquin woman, who had been captured at the same time and was about to be burned, also said her prayers before dying, and requested the same Frenchman to pray with her.
Le Dieu qu’adorent les Chrétiens n’estant pas moins adorable au milieu des feux & des flammes, & au milieu d’un peuple infidèle & barbare, que dans les Églises les plus augustes de la terre.

[117] Vne Chrétiennne fuyant au bruit des Iroquois, avec deux petits enfants, qui à peine la pouuoient fuivre; ils furent fix iours égarez dans les bois. A leur retour vn de nos Peres interrogeant cette pauvre femme dequoy elle auoit vefcu dans les bois. T’ay vefcu de prières, répondit-elle tout simplement. Quand ie me fentois foible, ie difois mon Chapelet, & aussi-toft sentant mes forces reuenir, ie pourfuiuois mon chemin. Pour mes enfans, ie leur cherchois de petites racines, & quelques bouts de branches de petits arbrisseaux, dont les bestes viuent dans les bois. La nuit, ie faifois dormir mes enfans, & moy ne pouuant m’endormir, ie les pafois presque toutes entieres en prières, & à dire mon Chapelet. C’est la faincte Vierge qui feule m’a fauue la vie, & c’est elle que ie veux feruir de tout mon cœur iusques à la mort. The God whom the Christians adore is no less adorable in the midst of fires and flames, in the midst of a pagan and barbarous people, than in the most august Churches of the earth.

[117] A Christian woman, on hearing of the approach of the Iroquois, fled with her two little children who could hardly follow her, and they wandered in the woods for six days. On their return, one of the Fathers asked the poor woman on what they had lived in the woods. "I lived on prayers," she replied quite simply. "When I grew weak, I said my Rosary, and I at once felt my strength return, and continued my way. As for my children, I tried to find for them some small roots and the tips of the branches of small shrubs, on which the animals live in the woods. At night, I put my children to sleep; and, as I could not sleep myself, I passed the nights almost entirely in prayer and in saying my Rosary. It is the blessed Virgin alone who has saved my life, and whom I wish to serve with all my heart until my death." The devotion of that poor woman, and the piety which she has shown for several years, deserved that assistance from Heaven.

A young woman said, some time ago: "Very early in the morning, I long to be in the Church; and, when it is time [118] to leave, it seems as if we had only just gone in."

A good old man, a Christian of long standing, was insulted, and nevertheless expressed no indignation at it. When asked whence he derived that equanimity of mind, he replied: "If I were in sin, I would, when I am calumniated and loaded with insults, be angry at it. But, as I am not in fault therein, I have faute, i'ay plus sujét de m'en réjouir, que de m'en attrister. Dieu qui voit le fond de mon cœur, fçait bien mon innocence, & c'est cela qui me confole.

Vne veufue eftant folicitée au mal, par vn ieune homme riche, qui luy preffentoit vne chofe de prix, & luy promettoit de l'aidier en fa pauureté. Malheureux que tu es, retire toy, & laisse moy ma pauureté, luy respond cette femme; Pourueu que ie meure Chrestienne, fans m'engager dans le peché, ie ferai en peu de temps, mille fois plus riche que toy. Dieu m'en promet bien plus que toy, & me tiendra parole. Je ferois folle de prendre moins, & de m'engager dans le peché.

[119] Vne autre veufue qui n'auoit point d'autre appuy au monde que fon fils unique, qu'elle aimoit tendrement; l'ayant perdu, & l'ayant veu enleuer à fes yeux par les Iroquois Agnieronnons, eut fon recours à Dieu avec vne reffignation vrayement Chreftienne. Mon Dieu, luy difoit-elle, vous auez voulu esprouuer ma fidelité, & f i c'eftoit de cœur que ie vous disois que ie vous priferois à toutes chofes. Vous le voyez maintenant. Il eft vray que ie fonge à mon fils, & que ie le pleure nuiët & iour: mais il eft vray auflî que ie fonge bien plus à vous, & qu'en pleurant ie vous dis que ie fuis contente, à caufe que ie fçay que c'eft vous qui l'auze permis.
more reason to rejoice than to be sorry for it. God, who sees the bottom of my heart, knows my innocence full well, and that consoles me."

A widow was solicited to do evil by a rich young man, who offered her a valuable gift, and promised to assist her in her poverty. "Wretch!" replied the woman; "go away and leave me in my poverty. Provided that I die a Christian without falling into sin, I shall soon be a thousand times richer than thou. God promises me much more than thou, and he will keep his word to me. I would be foolish to take less and involve myself in sin."

[119] Another widow, who had no other support in the world than her only son, whom she tenderly loved, lost him, and saw him carried off before her eyes by the Agnieronnon Iroquois. She had recourse to God with truly Christian resignation. "My God," she said to him, "it has been your will to test my faithfulness, and to try whether I meant it from the bottom of my heart when I said that I preferred you above all things. You see it now. It is true that I think of my son, and that I weep for him night and day; but it is also true that I think much more of you, and that, while I weep, I tell you that I am content, because I know that it is you who have permitted it."

DE LA NATURE & DE QUELQUES PARTICULARITEZ DU PAYS DES IROQUOIS.

Le pays des cinq Nations des Iroquois ayant leurs conquêtes estoit entre le 40. & le 50. degré d'élévation: [120] maintenant on ignore l'exten-duedé de leur domination, qui s'est accrue de tous costez par leur valeur militaire. Noître demeure est entre le 42. & 43. degré sur les rives du petit Lac de Gannentaa, qui feront un séjour des plus commodes & des plus agréables du monde, sans le ceder même à la leuée de la Riviere du Loire, s'il auroit des Habi-tans aussi polis, & aussi traitables.

Il a des avantages qui manquent au reste du Canada: car outre les raisins, les prunes, & plusieurs autres fruits qui luy font communs avec les belles Prouines de l'Europe, il en poffede quantité d'autres qui surpassent les nostres en beauté, en odeur, & en saveur. Les forests sont préfque toutes composées de chasteigners & de noyers. Il y a deux sortes de noix, dont les vnes font aussi douces & agréables au gout, que les autres font amères: mais leur amertume n'empfèche pas qu'on n'en tire d'excellente huile, en les faifiant passer par les cendres, par le moulin, par le feu, & par l'eau, de la même façon dont les Sauuages tirent l'huyle du tournefol. On y [121] voit des cerifes sans noyau, des fruits qui ont la couleur & la grosseur d'un abricot, la fleur du lys blanc, l'odeur & le gout du citron: des pommes de CHAPTER XI.

OF THE NATURE AND OF SOME PECULIARITIES OF THE IROQUOIS COUNTRY.

The country of the five Iroquois Nations, before their conquests, lay between the 40th and 50th degrees of latitude; [120] at present, we do not know the extent of their dominion, which has been increased on all sides by their military valor. Our residence is situated between the 42nd and 43rd degrees, on the shores of the little Lake Gannentaa, which would be one of the most commodious and most agreeable dwelling-places in the world, without excepting even the levee of the River Loire, if its Inhabitants were as polished and as tractable.

It has advantages that are wanting in the rest of Canada; for, besides grapes, plums, and many other fruits,—which it has in common with the fine Provinces of Europe, it has a number of others, which excel ours in beauty, fragrance, and taste. The forests consist almost entirely of chestnut and walnut trees. There are two kinds of nuts; one kind is as sweet and agreeable to the taste as the other is bitter; but, with all their bitterness, an excellent oil is extracted from them by passing them through the ashes, through the mill, through fire, and through water, in the same way as the Savages extract oil from sunflowers. [121] Stoneless cherries are found there. Fruits grow there which are of the color and size of an apricot, whose blossom is like that of the la figure d'un œuf d'oise, dont la graine apportée du pays des Chats est semblable aux feubes, le fruit en est délicat, & d'une odeur très-soyeuse, & le tronc de l'arbre de la hauteur & de la grosseur de nos arbres nains, se plaît aux lieux marecageux & en bonne terre. Mais la plante la plus commune, & la plus merveilleuse de ces contrées, est celle que nous appelons la plante vniuerverelle, par ce que ses feuilles broyées referment en peu de temps toutes sortes de playes: ces feuilles de la largeur de la main ont la figure du lys peint en armoire, & ses racines ont l'odeur du laurier. L'écarlate la plus vive, le vert le plus riant, & le jaune & l'orange le plus naturel de l'Europe, cedent aux couleurs diverses que nos Sauuages tirent des racines. Je ne parle point des arbres aussi hauts que des chênes, dont les feuilles sont grandes & ouvertes comme celles des choux, non plus que de quantité d'autres plantes [122] particulieres à ce pays, parce que nous en ignorons encore les propriétés.

Les sources qui y sont aussi fréquentes que merveilleuses, sont presque toutes minérales. Nous petit Lac qui n'a que fix ou sept lieues de circuit, est presque tout environné de fontaines salées, de l'eau desquelles on se fer pour faire & affaisionner les viandes, & pour faire de fort bon sel, qu'on voit souvent se former de soi-même en belles glaces, d'où la nature se plaît à environner ces sources. Ce qui se forme d'une autre source éloignée de deux journées de notre demeure vers le pays d'Oioygon en bien plus de force que ce sel des sources de Gannentaa; puis que son eau qui paroist blanche comme du lait & dont l'infection se fait sentir de fort loin, estant bôîillie laisse vne espèce de sel aussi mordicant que la pierre Caustique: & les roches qui environnent white lily, and which smell and taste like the citron. There are apples as large as a goose's egg; the seed has been brought from the country of the Cats and looks like beans; the fruit is delicate and has a very sweet smell; the trunk is of the height and thickness of our dwarf trees; it thrives in swampy spots and in good soil. But the most common and most wonderful plant in those countries is that which we call the universal plant, because its leaves, when pounded, heal in a short time wounds of all kinds; these leaves, which are as broad as one's hand, have the shape of a lily as depicted in heraldry; and its roots have the smell of the laurel. The most vivid scarlet, the brightest green, the most natural yellow and orange of Europe pale before the various colors that our Savages procure from roots. I say nothing of trees as tall as oaks, whose leaves are as large and as open as those of cabbages; or of many other plants, [122] peculiar to this country, because as yet we are ignorant of their properties.30

The springs, which are as numerous as they are wonderful, are nearly all mineral. Our little Lake, which is only six or seven leagues in circumference, is almost entirely surrounded by salt springs. The water is used for salting and seasoning meat, and for making very good salt. It often forms of itself in fine crystals with which nature takes pleasure in surrounding these springs. The salt that forms at a spring about two days' journey from our residence, toward Oiogoen, is much stronger than that from the springs of Gannentaa; for, when the water—which looks as white as milk, and the smell of which is perceptible from a great distance—is boiled, it leaves a kind of salt almost as corrosive as Caustic. The cette fontaine font couvertes d’une eau souillée qui n’a pas moins de solidité que la crème. La source qui se rencontre du côté de Sonnontoian n’est pas moins merveilleuse : car ses eaux tenant de la nature de la terre qui les environne, qu’il ne faut que laisser pour en avoir du souffre tout pur; s’enflamment étant remuées avec violence, et rendent du souffre quand on les fait bouillir. Approchant davantage du pays des Chats on voit une eau dormante & espaisse, qui s’enflamme comme l’eau de vie, & qui s’agite par bouillons de flammes aussi-tôt qu’on y a jeté du feu : aussi est-elle si huileuse qu’elle fournit à tous nos Sauvages de quoi s’oindre & se graisser la tête & le reste du corps.

Il ne faut pas s’étonner de la fertilité de ce pays, puis qu’il est par tout arrosé de Lacs, de Rivières & de Fontaines, qui se trouvent même sur les plus hautes montagnes. Mais si ces eaux rendent la terre féconde, elles ne manquent pas elles-mêmes de la seconde qui leur est propre. Les poissons qui y sont les plus communs, sont l’Anguille & le Saumon, qu’on y pêche depuis le Printemps jusqu’à la fin de l’Automne ; Nos Sauvages pratiquant si bien leurs digues & leurs escluses, qu’ils y prennent à même temps l’Anguille qui descend & le Saumon qui monte toujours. Ils prennent le poisson d’une autre façon dans les Lacs, le dardant avec un trident à la lueur d’un feu bitumineux, qu’ils entretiennent sur la pointe de leurs canots.

La température de l’air approchant de celuy de France, joignante à ces avantages, que l’eau & la terre nous fournissent, facilitent beaucoup la conversion des Sauvages ; en forte que nous ayons lieu d’esperer que leur humeur phantastique & bizarre, dont nous allons parler, fera le seul obstacle à leur bon-heur.
rocks about that spring are covered with a foam as thick as cream. The spring in the direction of Sonnontouan is no less wonderful; for its water—being of the same [123] nature as the surrounding soil, which has only to be washed in order to obtain perfectly pure sulphur—ignites when shaken violently, and yields sulphur when boiled. As one approaches nearer to the country of the Cats, one finds heavy and thick water, which ignites like brandy, and boils up in bubbles of flame when fire is applied to it. It is, moreover, so oily, that all our Savages use it to anoint and grease their heads and their bodies.\textsuperscript{21}

One must not be astonished at the fertility of this country, for it is everywhere watered by Lakes, Rivers, and Springs, which are found even on the highest mountains. But, if these waters make the earth fertile, they themselves are none the less fruitful in what pertains to them. The fish most commonly found in them are Eels and Salmon, which are caught there from the Spring to the end of Autumn. Our Savages construct their dams and sluices so well, that they catch at the same time the Eels, that descend, and the \textsuperscript{[124]} Salmon, that always ascend. In the Lakes, they catch fish in a different manner; they spear them with a trident by the light of a bituminous fire, which they maintain in the bows of their canoes.

The temperature of the atmosphere, which resembles that of France, added to those advantages supplied by the waters and the earth, greatly facilitates the conversion of the Savages. We have reason to hope, therefore, that their capricious and peculiar disposition, of which we are about to speak, will be the only obstacle to their blessedness.
CHAPITRE XII.

DU NATUREL & DES MŒURS DES IROQUOIS.

LES Iroquois dont nous n’auons encore découvert que quatorze Bourgs, font partagez en Supérieurs & Inférieurs [sc. Inférieurs & Supérieurs]. Les premiers ne contiennent que les Anniehronnons qui font les plus cruel, & avec lesquels nous [125] auons moins de communication; & fous le nom des Iroquois Inférieurs [sc. Supérieurs] font compris les Sonmontouaehronnons, qui font les plus nombreux; Les Onmontagehronnons, qui font les plus confiderables & nos plus fideles alliez; Les Oiogoenhronnons, qui font les plus superbes; & les Onnciout-hronnons qui font les plus foibles de tous.

L’humeur de toutes ces Nations est guerriere & cruelle; & faute d’auoir des voisins à combattre, pour les auoir tous fubiugez, elles vont chercher dans d’autres contrées des nouueaux ennemis. Il n’y a que fort peu de temps qu’ils font allez porter la guerre bien loin au delà du pays des Chats à des peuples qui n’ont pas la connoiffance des Europeans, de meême qu’ils leurs font inconnus. La vertu de ces pauures Infideles eftant la cruauté, comme la manuetsude eft celle des Chreftiens, ils en font efohol e des le berceu à leurs enfans, & les accouftument aux carnages les plus atroces, & aux specéctacles les plus barbares. Leurs premiers courfes ne font que pour répandre du fang humain [126] &

OF THE CHARACTER AND CUSTOMS OF THE IROQUOIS.

The Iroquois, of whose Villages we have as yet discovered only fourteen, are divided into the Lower and the Upper Iroquois. The former consist only of the Anniehronnons, who are the most cruel, and with whom we [125] have less communication. Under the name of Upper Iroquois are comprised the Sonnontouaehronnons, who are the most numerous; the Onontagehronnons, who are the most influential, and our most faithful allies; the Oiogenhronnons, who are the most arrogant; and the Onneiouthronnons, who are the weakest of all.

The character of all these Nations is warlike and cruel; and, as they have no neighbors to fight, because they have subjugated all of them, they go to seek new enemies in other countries. Not long ago, they went to carry war very far beyond the country of the Cats, to peoples who have as yet no knowledge of Europeans, by whom they are equally unknown. The chief virtue of these poor Pagans being cruelty, just as mildness is that of Christians, they teach it to their children from their very cradles, and accustom them to the most atrocious carnage and the most barbarous spectacles. Their first expeditions are undertaken merely for the purpose of shedding human blood [126] and of signaling themselves by murders; and their infantile bands, armed with hatchets and guns which they can hardly carry, do fe signaler par des meurtres, & leurs trouppes enfantines armées de haches & de fuzils, qu’elles ont de la peine à soutenir, ne laissent pas de porter par tout l’épouante & l’horreur. Ils vont à la guerre à deux & trois cents lieues loin de leurs pays par des rochers inaccessibles, & des forets immenses, n’eftant munis que d’esperance; & ne laissant dans leurs Bourgs pendant des années entieres que leurs femmes & leurs petits enfans. Mais quelques trophées dont ils croient leurs trauaux heureusement recompensés.

Cependant ces victoires leur caufant presque autant de perte qu’à leurs ennemis, elles ont tellement depueplé leurs Bourgs, qu’on y compte plus d’Étrangers que de naturels du pays. Onmontaghe à fept nations différentes qui s’y font venues établir, & il s’en trouve iufqu’à onze dans Sonnontouian; en forte que leur ruine caufée par leurs conquêtes, nous donnent l’avantage de préfcher la Foy à quantité de Nations diuerfes que [127] nous ne pourions aller inftruire chacune dans fon pays.

Leurs mariages ne rendent que le liet commun au mari & à la femme, chacun demeurant pendant le jour chez fes propres parents, & la femme allant le foir trouver fon mari pour s’en retourner le lendemain de bon matin chez fa mere, ou chez fon plus

not fail to spread fear and horror everywhere. They go to war at a distance of two or three hundred leagues from their country, over inaccessible rocks and through vast forests, provided solely with hope, and leaving in their Villages, for whole years at a time, only their women and little children. But a few scalps that they bring back, or a few prisoners of war, destined to be butchered by them, are the trophies with which they consider their labors happily rewarded.

Nevertheless, these victories cause almost as much loss to them as to their enemies, and they have depopulated their own Villages to such an extent, that they now contain more Foreigners than natives of the country. Onnontaghé counts seven different nations, who have come to settle in it; and there are as many as eleven in Sonnontouan. Thus, their ruin, caused by their conquests, gives us the advantage of preaching the Faith to a number of various Nations, whom [127] we could not visit and instruct each in its own country.

Their marriages make only the bed common to the husband and wife; each one lives, during the day, with his own relatives. The wife goes to her husband at night, returning early next morning to the home of her mother or of her nearest relative, and the husband does not dare to enter his wife's cabin until she has had some children by him. The only community of property between them is, that the husband gives all the products of his hunting to his wife, who in return renders him certain services, and is obliged to till his fields and harvest the crops.

They make their most serious illnesses ridiculous recompense quelques services, & est obligée de cultiver ses champs, & d’en faire la récolte.

Ils rendent ridicules les plus fâcheuses de leurs maladies par la superstition grossière qu’ils apportent à leur guérison. Car se persuadant que toute leur incommode vient de ce que l’âme manque de quelque chose qu’elle souhaite, & qu’il ne faut que lui donner ce qu’elle désire pour la retenir paisiblement dans le corps; C’est à qui se montrera [128] le plus liberal, faissant au malade les présents qu’il souhaite, & auxquels il croit que sa vie est attachée. On voit un moribond environné d’alestines, de ciseaux, de coutaupins, de fonnettes, d’aiguilles, & de mille autres bagatelles, de la moindre desquelles il attend la santé. S’il se laisse enfin mourir on attribue sa mort au défaut de quelque chose qu’il désirait: il meurt, dit-on, parce que son âme désirait manger d’un chien, ou de la chair d’un homme; parce qu’on ne lui a pas trouvé une certaine hache qu’il désirait, ou parce qu’on n’a pas pu lui retrouver une belle paire de chaussures qu’il avait été dérobées: si au contraire le malade recouvre sa santé, il attribue sa guérison au présent qu’on lui a fait de la dernière chose qu’il souhaitait pendant sa maladie, & le cherissant toujours par après, le consécute soigneusement jusqu’à la mort. En sorte que comme ils croient que toutes leurs maladies ont la même cause, ils ne reconnaissent aussi qu’un seul remède pour les guérir.

Les Morts ne sont non plus exempts de leurs superstitions que les malades. [129] Aussi-toft que quelqu’un a expiré dans une cabane, on y entend des cris & des lamentations de la parenté assemblée, de tout âge & de tout sexe, si effroyables qu’on prendroit by the gross superstition with which they seek to cure them. They are convinced that they are afflicted with diseases only because the soul is in want of something for which it craves; and that it is only necessary to give it what it desires, in order to detain it peacefully in the body. They all vie with each other as to who shall be [128] the most liberal, giving to the sick person all the presents that he desires and on which he considers that his life depends. A dying man may be seen surrounded by awls, scissors, knives, bells, needles, and a thousand other trifles, from the least of which he expects to obtain health. If at last he happen to die, his death is attributed to the absence of some article that he desired. "He dies," say they, "because his soul wished to eat the flesh of a dog, or of a man; because a certain hatchet that he wished for could not be procured; or because a fine pair of leggings that had been taken from him could not be found." If, on the contrary, the sick man recover his health, he attributes his cure to the gift of the last thing that he wished for during his illness, and afterward he cherishes it forever, preserving it carefully until his death. Thus, as they believe that all their illnesses are due to the same cause, they also recognize but one remedy for effecting their cure.

The Dead are not more exempt from their superstitions than the sick. [129] As soon as any one dies in a cabin, one hears in it the cries and lamentations uttered by the assembled relatives of all ages and both sexes; and so frightful are they that one would take that lugubrious uproar, which lasts for months and even for entire years, for the howlings of Hell. Meanwhile,—after the dead man is buried, and his ce tintamarre lugubre, qui dure les mois & les années entières pour les hurlemens de l'Enfer. Cependant après que le mort est enterré, qu'on a comblé son tombeau de viures pour la subsistance de son ame, & qu'on luy a fait vne maniere de sacrificice, en brûlant vne certaine quantité de bleds; les anciens, les amis & les parents du defunct font inuitez à vn festin, où chacun porte ses presents pour confoler les plus affligez. C'est ainsi qu'ils en vferent en presence d'vn Pere de noftrre Compagnie, qui representoit dans vne de ces ceremonies la personne de Monsieur le Gouverneur. Vn Ancien des plus considerables fe demarchant grauement, s'escrie d'vn ton lugubre ai, ai, ai, agatondichon, helas, helas, helas, mes chers parents, ie n'ay ny esprit ny parole pour vous confoler, ie ne peux autre chose que de mefler mes larmes avec les voîtres, & me plaindre de la rigueur [130] de la maladie qui nous traite si mal, ai, ai, ai, agatondichon. Ie me confole neantmoins de voir Onnontio & le resté des François pleurer avec nous: mais courage mes parens! n'attriftons pas plus longtemps vn hofte si honorable, effuyons les larmes d'Onnontio en effuyant les noftres; voilà vn prefent qui en tarira la source. Ce prefent qu'il fit à mefme temps, fut vn beau colier de Porceclaine, qui fut fuiuy des prefens & des condoleances de tous les autres; la liberalité des femmes n'estant pas moindre que celle des hommes en cette rencontre. La cereumonie fe termine par le festin, dont on tire les meilleurs morceaux pour les malades considerables du Bourg. Tout cela ne pouuant arrefter les pleurs & les cris d'vne mere, quelqu'vn des parens, pour donner des marques de fa pieté, en la confolant, grave is filled with provisions for the sustenance of his soul, and after a sort of sacrifice has been offered to him by burning a certain quantity of corn,—the elders, with the friends and relatives of the deceased, are invited to a feast, to which each one brings his presents to console the most afflicted. Thus did they proceed in the presence of a Father of our Society, who, at one of those ceremonies, represented Monsieur the Governor. One of the most notable of the Elders, with grave demeanor, exclaimed in a lugubrious voice: Ai, ai, ai, agatondichon. "Alas, alas, alas, my beloved relatives! I have neither mind nor words wherewith to console you. I can do nothing but mingle my tears with yours, and complain of the severity [130] of the illness that treats us so ill. Ai, ai, ai, agatondichon. I am, nevertheless, consoled when I see Onnontio and the remainder of the French weeping with us. But, take courage, my relatives! Let us not cause sorrow any longer to so honorable a guest; but let us dry the tears of Onnontio by wiping away our own. Here is a present that will dry up their source." The present that he gave at the same time was a fine collar of Porcelain beads, and it was followed by the gifts and condolences of all the others. The liberality of the women was not less than that of the men on that occasion. The ceremony concluded with a feast, the best morsels of which were reserved for the sick persons of rank in the Village. As all this could not arrest the tears and the cries of one mother, one of the relatives, in order to testify his devotion by consoling her, disinterred the dead body; and, after clothing it with new garments, he threw the grave-clothes into the fire. This he did two or three deterre le mort, & le reueftant d'un habit neuf, iette au feu fon habit mortuaire: ce qu'il fait iufqu'à deux ou trois fois en diuers temps; iufqu'à ce que ne trouuant plus que les os nuds, il les enuelope dans vne couuerture pour les prefenter [131] à l'affligée.
Enfin quelque temps apres ces ceremonies, on reconnoišt la liberalité de ceux qui auoient fait des prefens de conflation, en leur distribuant les meubles du mort, auxquels on en adioufte d'autres, fi ceux-là ne fuffifent pas.

Il n'y a rien que ces peuples ayent plus en horreur que la contrainte: les enfans mêmes ne la peuuent fouffrir, & viuent à leur fantaisie dans la maison de deurs parents, fans crainte de reprimende ny de chaftiment. Ce n'est pas qu'on ne les puniffequel-quefois en leur frottant les leures & la langue d'vne racine fort amere; mais on le fait rarement, de peur que le depit ne les porte à fe faire mourir, en man-geant de certaines herbes venimeufes, qu'ils fauent estre vn poifon, dont les femmes mariées veulent beaucoup plus fouuent, pour fe venger du mauuais traite-ment de leurs maris, en leur laiffant ainsi le reprochede leur mort.

Au reste parmy tant de defauts causez par leur aueuglement & leur education barbare, il ne laiffe pas de s'y rencontrez [132] des vertus capables de donner de la confusion à la plufpart des Chreftiens.
Il ne faut point d'Hofpitaux parmy eux, parce qu'il n'y a point de mendiantz ny de pauures tant qu'il s'y trouue des riches, leur bonté, humanité & courtoifie ne les rend pas feulemente liberaux de ce qu'ils ont;
mais ne leur fait prefque rien poffeder qu'en com-
mun. Il faut que tout vn bourg manque de bled times on different occasions, until he found nothing but the bare bones, which he wrapped up in a covering to present them [131] to the afflicted woman. Finally, some time after these ceremonies, the liberality of those who have given presents of consolation is acknowledged by distributing among them the effects of the deceased, to which other things are added if these do not suffice.

There is nothing for which these peoples have a greater horror than restraint. The very children cannot endure it, and live as they please in the houses of their parents, without fear of reprimand or of chastisement. Not that they are not punished sometimes by having their lips and their tongues rubbed with a very bitter root; but this is seldom done for fear that vexation might lead the children to cause their own death by eating certain noxious plants, which they know to be poisonous. These are most often used by the married women, to revenge themselves for the ill treatment of their husbands by thus leaving them the reproach of their death.

However, amid so many defects due to their blindness and to their barbarous training, they still possess [132] virtues which might cause shame to most Christians. No Hospitals are needed among them, because there are neither mendicants nor paupers as long as there are any rich people among them. Their kindness, humanity, and courtesy not only make them liberal with what they have, but cause them to possess hardly anything except in common. A whole village must be without corn, before any individual can be obliged to endure privation. They divide the produce of their fisheries equally with all who come; and the only reproach they address to deuant qu'un particulier soit reduit à la difette: Ils partagent leurs pesches en égales portions avec tous ceux qui furuiennent, & ils ne nous font reproche que de noftre referue à y enuoier fouuent faire nos prouifions.

Nous auons dit dans noftre derniere Relation combien leur superftition les attachoit scrupuleufe-ment à leurs fonges; mais les exemples que nous en auons veu depuis, font trop rares pour les omettre. Vne femme fort malade dans Onnontaghe auoit refué qu'il luy falloit vne robbe noire pour la guerir; mais le massacre cruel de nos Peres que ces Barbares auoient fait tout recemment, leur oftant l'esperance d'en pouuooir [133] obtenir de nous, ils eurent recours aux Hollandois, qui leur vendirent bien cher la pauure f[o]utanne du Pere Poncet, qui en auoit quelque temps auparauant esté dépouillé par les Annienhron- nons. Cette femme luy attribuant fa guerifon, la veut conferuer toute fa vie comme vne precieufe relique, & c'est entre fes mains que nous l'auons reconnue. Il ne leur faut que refuer à vne chofe pour leur faire entreprendre de grands voyages à fa recherche. L'Esté dernier vne femme n'ayant pas trouué à Kebec vn chien François qu'elle y eftoit venu chercher, parce qu'un fiem neueu l'auoit veu en fonge, entreprît vn fecond voyage de plus de quatre cens lieuës par les neiges, les glaces & les chemins les plus rudes, pour aller chercher cét animal fi defiré, au lieu où on l'auoit tranporté. Pleuft à Dieu que nous fiffions autant d'eftat des infpirations du ciel que ces Barbares en font de leurs fonges!
us is our hesitation to send to them oftener for our supply of provisions.

In our last Relation, we stated how closely their superstitions were connected with their dreams; but the instances that we have since seen are too extraordinary to be omitted. A woman, who was very ill at Onmontaghé, had dreamed that she required a black gown to effect her cure. But, as the recent cruel massacre of our Fathers by those Barbarians deprived them of all hope of being able [133] to obtain one from us, they applied to the Dutch, who sold them at a very high price the wretched cassock of Father Poncet, who had shortly before been despoiled of it by the Annienhronnons. The woman attributed her cure to it, and wished to keep it all her life as a precious relic. It was in her hands that we recognized it. They have only to dream of a thing, to be induced to undertake long journeys to seek it. Last Summer a woman—who could not find at Kebec a French dog that she had come there to get, because a nephew of hers had seen it in a dream—undertook a second journey of more than four hundred leagues, over the snow, the ice, and the roughest roads, to seek the animal so ardently desired at the place whither it had been taken. Would to God that we paid as much heed to the inspirations of heaven as these Barbarians do to their dreams!
CHAPITRE XIII.

DES TESMOIGNAGES RECIPROQUES D'AMITIÉ ENTRE NOUS & LES IROQUOIS.

Il est difficile de trouver d'exemple où Dieu se soit montré Maître plus absolu des cœurs que dans notre réconciliation avec les Iroquois. Nous en receuons autant de caresses & de témoignages de bienveillance que nous craignions d'effets funestes de leur cruauté. Nous logeons & nous mangeons en toute sûreté avec ceux dont l'ombre il y a peu de temps, & le seul nom nous donnoit de la frayeur. La durée de cette union, qui semble croître tous les jours, nous a fait perdre la crainte que nous eussions peu avoir au commencement, qu'un premier accueil si joyeux ne fût suivi d'une issue également funeste. Ce n'est pas l'intérêt temporel qui cimente cette amitié; puis qu'elle ne leur a encore produit aucun fruit de la terre: mais c'est sans doute l'amour [135] Divin qui leur donne ces douces pentes, ces complaisances & ces tendresses pour nous, dont il doit tirer leur salut. Il n'y a jamais de plus grande joie, ny de plus grande feste dans leurs cabanes & leurs bourgs, que quand ils peuvët nous y posleder. S'ils ne peuuent nous y retenir assez long-temps, ils témoignent ne pouvoir souffrir notre absence, en nous suivant par troupes inçues dans notre habitation, pour y viure auec nous; & s'y comportent de telle sorte, que si Dieu leur fait trouuer des charmes
CHAPTER XIII.

OF THE MUTUAL TOKENS OF FRIENDSHIP BETWEEN US AND THE IROQUOIS.

It is difficult to find any instance in which God has shown himself more absolute Master of hearts than in our reconciliation with the Iroquois. We receive as much kindness and as many tokens of good will from them, as we feared to experience baleful results from their cruelty. We dwell and eat in entire security with those whose shadow, and whose very name, filled us with dread but a short time ago. The duration of that accord, which seems to grow daily, has caused us to lose the fear which we might have had at the beginning, that the joyous welcome given us at first might be followed by as fatal an ending. It is not temporal interest that cements this friendship, for it has not as yet brought them any earthly advantage; but it is, beyond a doubt, Divine love that inspires them with those gentle thoughts, that kindness, and that affection for us by which it will procure their salvation. Never is there greater joy or greater pleasure in their cabins and in their villages, than when they can have us there. When they cannot keep us with them long enough, they show that they cannot bear our absence by following us in bands as far as our dwelling, in order to live with us; and they behave in such a manner that, if God makes them find a dans nostre entretien, il ne nous laisse pas fans aucun sentiment de ioye dans leur compagnie.

Aucun de nous n’a esté malade cet hyuer qu’ils ne luy ayent témoigné prendre part à fa douleur, luy faifiant largeffe de leur gibier, comme ils témoignoient en suite par leurs prefens de conjoyffance prendre part à fa guerison.

Les alliances que nous contractons à la façon du pays avec les Sauuages, est vn des plus excellens moyens que Dieu nous ait inpiré pour nous maintenir, & [136] auncer la foy parmy eux: ces pauuress Barbares prenant pour nous des feniments de peres, de freres, d’enfans & de neuex, lors que nous leur en accordons les noms. La plus aduantageufe de ces alliances est celle que le Pere Superieur appellé Achiendafé a contractée avec Sagochiendagefité, qui a la puissance & l’autorité Royalle fur toute la Nation d’Onontaghe, quoy qu’il n’en ait pas le nom: Le contract de leur vnion qui fe fit en presence des deputez des cinq Nations leur ayant fait touiours depuis confiderer les François comme vne partie de leur peuple, qu’ils font obligez de cherir & de defendre de tout leur pouuoir.

Auffi nous ont-ils touiours depuis rendu les meemes offices dont ils vuent enuers leurs plus fideles amis. Les principaux d’entr’eux estant venus avec de grands cris lugubres pour nous confoler de la mort de deux de nos François, celuy qui portoit les prefens de condoleance adreffant fon discurso au Pere Superieur luy dit: Les Anciens de nostre pays ayant couftume de s’entr’effuyer [137] les larmes, quand ils font afligez de quelque malheur; Nous venons Achiendafé, pour te rendre ce deuoir d’amitié: Nous charm in our conversation, he does not leave us without a feeling of joy at being in their company.

Not one of us was ill last winter, without their manifesting that they shared his trouble by giving him liberally of their game, just as they afterward showed by their presents the joy which they felt at his recovery.

The alliances that we contract with the Savages according to the fashion of the country constitute one of the most excellent means with which God has inspired us for maintaining ourselves, and for [136] advancing the faith among them. Those poor Barbarians feel like fathers, brothers, children, and nephews toward us when we call them by those names. The most advantageous of those alliances is that which the Father Superior, called Achiendasé, has contracted with Sagochiendagesité, who exercises Royal power and authority over the whole Nation of Onontaghé, although he does not bear that title. The contract of their union, which was concluded in the presence of the envoys of the five Nations, has since then always caused them to consider the French as a portion of their people, whom they are obliged to cherish and defend with all their might.

Consequently, they have since then always rendered us the same services that they render to their most faithful friends. The chief men among them came with mournful cries to console us for the death of two of our French. He who carried the presents of condolence addressed himself to the Father Superior, saying: "The Elders of our country have the custom of wiping away one another's [137] tears when they are afflicted by any misfortune. We come, Achiendasé, to perform that friendly duty toward pléurons avec toy, parce que le malheur ne te peut toucher fans nous percer du mème coup; & nous ne pouuons fans vne extreme douleur te voir si maltraité en noftre pays, apres auoir quitté le tien où tu estois parfaitement à ton aife: La maladie iette tes neueux dans le fond d’vne terre dont tu ne connois pas encore la superficie. Ah! que le Demon cruel prend bien l’occasion pour affliger ceux qu’il hait! Il fe fert luftement, pour faire ce mauuais coup, du temps auquel tu auois plus befoin de tes neueux, pour baftir tes cabanes, te fortifier, & cultiuier tes champs. Les ayant en vain harcelez fans relasche pendant tout l’Efté, & fe reconnoiffant trop foible pour t’attaquer, il a fait ligue avec les Demons de la fievre & de la mort, afin de ioindre noftre perte à la voftre, exerçant fes raugages chez nous encore plus que chez vous. Mais prens courage, noftre frere, nous effuyons les larmes de tes yeux, afin que [138] tu voyes que tous tes neueux ne font pas morts; nous t’ouuurons les yeux par ce præfent, afin que tu confi- deres ceux qui te reftent, & que par tes agreeables regards tu leur rende la vie & la ioye à mème temps. Pour nos deux neueux qui font morts, il ne faut pas qu’ils aillent nudz en l’autre monde, voicy vn beau drap mortuaire pour les courir. Voilà auch de quoy les mettre dans la fosse, de peur que leur veue ne renouuelle ta douleure; & pour t’offter de deuant la veue toute forte d’objets lugubres. Ce præfent eft pour aplaniir la terre dans laquelle ie les ay mis, & cet autre pour dreszer vne paliffade alentour de leur tombeau, afin que les bestes & les oyseaux carnaffiers n’inquietent point leur repos. Enfin ce dernier eft pour remettre ton esprit dans fon repos & fon affiette, thee. We weep with thee, because misfortune cannot touch thee without piercing us by the same blow; and we cannot, without extreme regret, see thee suffer so in our country, after having left thine own, where thou wert perfectly comfortable. Sickness casts thy nephews into the depths of a land whose extent thou knowest not as yet. Ah, how the cruel Demon seizes the opportunity to afflict those whom he hates! To do that evil deed, he chooses the very moment when thou hast the greatest need of thy nephews to build thy cabins, to fortify thyself, and to till thy fields. After harassing them in vain throughout the Summer, and finding himself too weak to attack thee, he has leagued himself with the Demons of fever and death, in order to add our loss to yours, and to work havoc among us still more than among you. But take courage, our brother; we wipe away the tears from thine eyes, that thou mayst see that not all thy nephews are dead. We open thine eyes with this present, that thou mayst consider those who are left to thee, and by thy pleasant looks restore life and joy to them at the same time. As to our two nephews who are dead, they must not go naked into the other world; here are fine grave-clothes wherewith to cover them. Here is something also wherewith to place them in their graves, to prevent the sight of them from renewing thy grief, and to remove all sorts of lugubrious objects away from thy eyes. This present is to level the earth in which I have placed them; and this other one, to erect a palisade around their grave, in order that the flesh-eating animals and birds may not disturb their rest. Finally, this last present is to calm thy mind and restore it to its seat, that our afin que notre paix continuant dans la même fermeté, aucun Demon ne la puisse alterer.

Ce furent les propres termes de la harangue de ce graue Barbare, qui fut accompagnée de huit beaux présens de coliers de Porcelaine qu'il nous fit au [139] nom du public. Pluieurs particuliers ont vifié des mêmes ciuilité & de la même liberalité que nous ayons reconnu avec avantage dans toutes les occasions que nous en ayons pu trouver.

L'union que nous ayons contractée avec Sagochiendagefité nous faisant aussi frères des Sonnontouae-hronnons, & pères des Oligoehronnons, ces trois Nations nous en font venuës faire leurs remerciements: mais les Sonnontouae-hronnons en ont plus témoigné de reconnaisance que les autres, nous ayant présentée, pour nous posseder chez eux, vne demeure fort avantageuse pour son abondance de toutes fortes de viures, & pour la communication qu'elle peut avoir facilement avec celle d'Onnontaghé.
peace may continue as firm as before, and that no Demon may impair it."

Such were the very words of the harangue of that grave Barbarian. It was accompanied by eight fine presents of collars of Porcelain beads, which he gave us on [139] behalf of the public. Several individuals displayed the same civility and the same liberality, which we repaid with interest at every opportunity that we could find.

As the alliance that we have contracted with Sagochiendagesité makes us also the brothers of the Sonnontouaehronnons and fathers of the Oiogoenhronnons, those three Nations came to express their thanks to us for it. The Sonnontouaehronnons, however, displayed more gratitude than the others; they presented to us, in order to secure our presence among them, a dwelling possessing great advantages, both, because it is furnished with an abundance of all kinds of provisions, and because it can maintain easy communication with the residence of Onmontaghé.
CHAPITRE XIV.

DES DISPOSITIONS QUE LES IROQUOIS ONT À LA FOY.

L'INSOLENCE, la superstition, & la dissolution extreme de ces peuples [140] jointes à la cruauté qui les a fait les uniques perécuteurs de la primitiue Eglise de ces contrées, nous donnoient lieu d'attendre un succès de cette Mission tout different de celuy que la protection de Dieu nous y a fait éprouuer. Ces meurtriers des Predicateurs de l'Euangile, ces loups carnassiers qui avoient exercé leur rage sur le bercail de IESVS-CHRIST avec plus de fureur & des tourmens plus atroces que les Nerons & les Diocletians, embrasent noftrre faincte Religion avec plus de ferueur que ceux qu'ils ont exterminé, & prennent le ioug de cette mefme foy dont ils estoient il y a peu d'années les Tyrans. Ils repeuplent l'Eglise que leur cruauté avoient depeuplée: ils bâtiffent chez eux plus de Chapelles qu'ils n'en avoient destruit chez leurs voisins. La prouidence de Dieu leur fit prendre la place des pauures Chrétiens qu'ils ont exterminate: & les exhortations de nos Martyrs plus ardentes que les flammes & les brasiers du milieu desquels ils prechoient, ont maintenant de si merveilleux effets parmy leurs bourreaux, qu'il s'eût fait plus [141] de Chrétiens Iroquois en deux mois, qu'il ne s'eftoit converti de Hurons en pluieurs années: Ils demandent avec autant de ferueur & de

OF THE DISPOSITIONS OF THE IROQUOIS TOWARD THE FAITH.

The Insolence, the superstition, and the extreme dissoluteness of these peoples, \[140\] added to the cruelty that has made them the sole persecutors of the primitive Church in these countries, led us to expect a result of this Mission quite different from that which the protection of God has enabled us to attain. The murderers of the Preachers of the Gospel—those ravenous wolves that had vented their fury on the fold of Jesus Christ, with greater rage and more atrocious tortures than any Nero or Diocletian—now embrace our holy Religion with more fervor than those whom they have exterminated, and assume the yoke of the same faith of which they were, some years ago, the Oppressors. They repopulate the Church which their cruelty had depopulated; they build in their own country more Chapels than they had destroyed in that of their neighbors. God’s providence makes them take the place of the poor Christians whom they have exterminated, and the exhortations of our Martyrs, more ardent than the flames and the fires from the midst of which they preached, now produce such marvelous effects upon their executioners that more \[141\] Iroquois have become Christians in two months than there were Hurons converted in several years. They ask as fervently and devoutly for the waters of veneration les eaux du Baptême, qu’ils les auoient méprisées avec insolence, verfants de l’eau bouillante fur la tête des Predicateurs en dérision de ce Sacre-ment. S’ils demandent avec instance d’entrer au nombre des Fideles & de porter l’Illustre nom de Chrestiens, ils n’apportent pas moins de soin à ne s’en pas rendre indignes & à en faire les fonctions. Leur ferueur ferait prendre cette Eglise naiffante pour vne Eglise formée & établie par plusieurs années, ou par plusieurs siecles: encore ferait-il assez difficile de trouver dans les anciennes Eglises vn aussi grand empressement pour affîter aux prieres & aux Instruction publiques, jointe à vne aussi grande modestie, & vne aussi parfaite soumission à tous les deuoirs d’vn Chrestien.

Deux Peres de noftré Compagnie qui ne quittent point la Mission d’Onnontaghé où la ferueur du Christianisme est plus grande, reconnoîssent dans [142] les Onnontagehronnons vne douceur de conuer- fation, & vne ciuilité qui n’a presque rien de Barbare. Les enfans y font dociles, les femmes portées à la deuotion la plus tendre, les anciens affables & respectueux, les guerriers moins superbes qu’ils ne le paroiffent. Et en general la complaisance que le peuple témoigne pour noftré doctrine & nos pratiques ne nous fait pas eflérer de petits progres de noftré fainête Foy. Dieu fe fert de leurs superstitions & de leur fauffe pieté pour en tirer fa gloire, nous donnant le moyen de fanctifier l’inclination qu’ils ont à prati- quer quelque culte Divin, & à vfer de quelques ceremonies de Religion, en leur faifiant changer d’obiet, & leur faifiant adreffer au vray Dieu les invocations & les termes d’adorations dont ils fe Baptism, as they had insolently contemned them by pouring boiling water on the heads of the Preachers, in derision of that Sacrament. If they urgently ask to be admitted to the number of the Faithful and to bear the Illustrious name of Christians, they take no less care to become worthy of that grace, and to perform the duties connected with it. Their fervor would cause this nascent Church to be taken for a Church already formed and established for many years,—nay, for several centuries. It would indeed be difficult to find in the older Churches so great eagerness to attend the public prayers and Instructions, combined with so great modesty, and so perfect submission to all the duties of a Christian.

Two Fathers of our Society—who do not leave the Onnontaghe Mission, where the fervor of Christianity is greatest—find in [142] the Onnontagehronnons a gentleness in their conversation and a civility which hardly savors in any wise of Barbarism. The children there are docile, the women inspired with the tenderest devotion, the elders affable and respectful, the warriors less arrogant than they seem. And, on the whole, the favor that the people manifest for our doctrine and our practices leads us to expect no slight progress for our holy Faith. God makes use of their superstitions and false piety to derive his glory from them. He gives us the means of sanctifying their tendency to practice some Divine worship and to perform some ceremonies of Religion; we make them change the object of these, and address to the true God the invocations and words of adoration which they formerly employed in their sacrifices, when they offered the best of what they possessed to some unknown Divinity.
feruoient auparavant dans leurs sacrifices, quand ils offroient ce qu'ils croiroyent avoir de meilleur à quelque Diuinite inconnu.

La coutume qu'obferuent ces Nations de fe faire chaque année reciproquement des prefens d'amitié dans les [143] Confeils & les Assemblées publiques, nous donnera dans ces occasions, en y faifant & recevant les prefents publics, vne favorable ouverture pour leur expliquer nos myfteres; au lieu d'y faire le recit des choses passées & les plus reculées de la memoire, ainsi qu'ils le pratiquent dans ces cerem-

C'eft ausfi de cette mefme façon que nous nous feroons de la coutume que les parens & les anciens ont de fe tenir affemblez pendant la nuit qui fuit le jour des funerailles, pour raconter des histoires anciennes: car nous leur rendons leur curiofité vtile dans ces rencontres, & jettons infaifiblement & à loifir dans leurs ames les femences de la Foy, en leur expliquant dans ces recits d'histoires nos myfteres, & les merueilles de noftrer Religion.

Qui n'admireroit la bonte de Dieu qui fe fert pour le bien de ces pauures Infideles, des mefmes moyens que le diable employoit pour les feduire? Le fonge qui efloit le Dieu & le grand Maiftre de ces peuples en ayant fouuent porté plufieurs deuant la Predica-tion de [144] l'Euangile à la pratique des vertus Morales, a mefme fait embrasser la Foy à quelquesvns; & vn des deux Peres employez à Onmontagé mande qu'vne ieune fille, fur l'esprit de laquelle fes exhortations ne pouuoient avoir aucun effet, a efte conuertie par vn fonge, qui luy a, dit-elle, fait voir dans le Ciel la verité des choses qu'on leur prefche.
The custom observed by these Nations, of giving one another each year friendly presents in the [143] Councils and public Assemblies, will afford us on those occasions, when giving and receiving public presents, a favorable opportunity for explaining our mysteries, instead of reciting things that are passed and are the most remote from memory, as they do in performing those ceremonies.

In the same manner, also, we take advantage of the custom followed by the relatives and elders, of meeting during the night after a funeral, to relate stories of olden times. We turn their curiosity to advantage on such occasions; imperceptibly and at leisure, we cast the seeds of the Faith into their souls, by explaining to them in the relation of those stories our mysteries, and the marvels of our Religion.

Who would not admire the goodness of God, who, for the welfare of these poor Infidels, makes use of the same means as the devil did to seduce them? Dreams—which constituted the God and the great Master of those peoples, and which frequently, before the Preaching of [144] the Gospel, had led many to the practice of Moral virtues—have even caused some to embrace the Faith. One of our two Fathers who are employed at Onmontage writes us, that a young girl, upon whose mind his exhortations had no effect, was converted by a dream,—which, she says, showed her in Heaven the truth of what we preach to them.

Nevertheless, our labors are not unhindered by obstacles; and the Gospel finds there enemies who contend against it, in order that the victories of the Faith may be real victories. For, not only do the warlike and impetuous nature, the unbounded Cependant nos travaux ne font pas fans obstacles, & l’Evangile trouve là ses ennemis qui la combattent, afin que les victoires de la Foy foient de veritables victoires. Car outre que l’humeur guerriere & bouillante, l’extreme libertinage & les courfes continuelles de la jeunefie retardent la conversion de ce pays; le diable y renouvelle toutes les calomnies dont il s’estoit autres-fois servi avec plus de fuccez, pour nous mettre mal dans les esprits des Hurons, & frustrer les travaux des Peres de noftrre Compagnie des fruits qu’ils en attendoient.

Noftre Compagnie qui tâche d’imiter celuy dont elle a l’honneur de porter le nom, & au service duquel elle s’employe [145] par toutes les contrées du monde, fait gloire d’être comme luy attaquée de calomnies. Auffi s’en trouve-t’il par tout en grand nombre qui luy procurent cet honneur, qui, quoy qu’il luy foit d’ordinaire avantageux, empefche neanmoins quelques-fois les fruits qu’elle fait dans l’Eglife. Mais il eft assez difficile de trouver des calomnies plus groffières que celles que l’esprit de mensonge fuggere à ces pauures Sauuages. On nous y accufe de les exhorter fouuent au Paradis pour les y brûler à noftrre aife: & il s’en trouve quelques-vns qui difent estre reffuscitez, & auoir esté tesmoins de tout cela.

Mais vne feule femme en a peu trouuer, quoy qu’en petit nombre, d’afliez foibles, pour estre intimidez par ces fortes de refueries. Nous tafchions de dispofer au Baptême & à la mort cette pauvre Infidelle qui auoit la machoire demife, lors qu’elle tomba en syncope, & bien-tost apres reuenant a foy, conta des nouuelles de l’autre monde. Elle auoit, difoit-elle, esté menée au pays des ames des François, mais estant licentiousness, and the continual raids of the young men delay the conversion of the country, but the devil repeats there also all the calumnies which he formerly employed, with more success, to give the Hurons a bad opinion of us, and to prevent our Fathers from deriving from their labors the fruits that they expected therefrom.

Our Society, which endeavors to imitate him whose name it has the honor to bear, and in whose service it has employed itself [145] in every country of the world, glories in being assailed by calumnies as he was. Thus, there are everywhere a great many who confer upon it that honor, which, although it is usually advantageous to it, nevertheless sometimes prevents the fruits that it seeks to bring forth in the Church. But it is difficult to find grosser calumnies than those which the spirit of falsehood suggests to these poor Savages. We are frequently accused of exhorting them to strive for Paradise, in order to burn them there at our leisure; and there are some who say that they have risen from the dead and have witnessed all that.

A single woman has been able to find some, though few in number, weak enough to be intimidated by dreams of that kind. While endeavoring to prepare for Baptism and for death, that poor Pagan woman, whose jaw was dislocated, she fell into a swoon, and, on recovering consciousness soon after, she related news of the other world. She had been taken, she said, to the land where the souls of the French go; but, as she was [146] preparing to enter, she saw a bluish smoke rising from the center of Paradise, which caused her to mistrust what was going on. Then, at two different times, she looked more
Les relations des jésuites

[146] prefte d’entrer, elle vit vne fumée bluaftre qui s’eleuoit du milieu du Paradis, & qui luy donna de la defiance de ce qui s’y pafoit: regardant en fuite par deaux diuerfes fois plus attentiuement, elle auoit veu plusieurs de fes compatriotes que les François brulfoient auc de grandes huées: ce qui l’auoit obligée de s’eschaper des mains de ceux qui la conduifoient au ciel, & de reuerir en vie, pour euiier vn pareil traitement, & donner auius au public du danger qu’il y auoit de croire les François.

Nous n’auons pas tant de peine à nous purger de ces reproches ridicules, qu’à detromper le peuple des bruits que font courir quelques Hurons Apoftats qui attribuent à la Foy toutes les guerres, les maladies & les ruynes du pays; & apportent leur propre experience pour confirmation de leurs impostures, affeulant que leur changement de Religion a causé le changement de leur fortune, & que leur Baptefme a esté fuiuy aufti-toft de toutes les misères possibles. Les Hollandois, difent-ils, ont maintenu les Iroquois, en les laiffant viure à leur mode, comme les Robbes noires ont perdu les Hurons en leur prechant la foy. Enfin ils apportent pour la meilleure de leurs preuues l’exemple d’vne Cathecumene d’Onnontaghé, qu’ils difent eftre tombée malade à noftrre abord, & auoir efté enforcelée avec du poil d’vn chien de Kebec, ainsi que le Sorcier du pays l’auoit enfin découvert, apres auoir long-temps examiné les caufes de fa maladie.

Cette calomnie fit moins d’impression fur les esprits que celle que le Diable furfcita contre le Pere qui partit l’Hyuer dernier d’Onnontaghé pour nous venir querir: car fon voyage fit croire que la grande attentively, and saw several of her countrymen being burned by the French amid loud shouting. This had induced her to escape from the hands of those who were leading her to heaven, and to return to life, in order to avoid similar treatment, and to warn the public of the danger that lay in believing the French.

We have not so much trouble to clear ourselves of such ridiculous reproaches, as we have to disabuse the people of the rumors spread by some Huron Apostates, who attribute to the Faith all the wars, diseases, and calamities of the country. They allege their own experience in confirmation of their imposture; they assert that their change of Religion has caused their change of fortune; and that their Baptism was at once followed by every possible misfortune. The Dutch, they say, have preserved the Iroquois by allowing them to live [147] in their own fashion, just as the black Gowns have ruined the Hurons by preaching the faith to them. Finally, they mention as their most convincing proof the case of a Catechumen, a woman of Onnontaghe; she fell ill, they say, on our arrival, having been bewitched by the hair of a dog from Kebec, as was discovered by the Sorcerer of the country after endeavoring for a long while to ascertain the cause of the illness.

This calumny made less impression on their minds than the one instigated by the Devil against the Father who started last Winter from Onnontaghe to come for us; his journey gave rise to the belief, that the great mortality which then prevailed in the country was due to his search for souls, a box full of which he wished to take along with him. Although their traditional belief that Souls issue forth from their bodies from time to time, especially a short mortalité qui eftoit alors en ce pays-là, eftoit caufée par la recherche des ames qu'il faifoit, en voulant empor-ter vne caiffe toute pleine. Neantmoins, quoy que l'opinion qu'ils ont par tradition que les Ames fortent de temps en temps de leurs corps, fur tout vn peu deuant la mort, femblaft favorifer cette impofture, ce bruit fe diffipa bien-toft de foy-mefme, & n'eut aucune fuite fafcheufe.

[148] Ainsi peut-on voir que les obstacles font bien moindres que les moyens que nous auons là d'auan-cer la Foy, qui feroient plus grands, fi la compaffion & la charité des gens de bien eftoit plus grande: car vn des fruicts les plus remarquables qu'on pourroit faire en ce pays, feroit de racheter des captifs Chrefiens qui font entre les mains des Iroquois; ce qui feroit utile non feulement au falut des Ames & des corps de ces pauures efclaves, mais auflì à la conversion des Iroquois; qui font rauis par ces exemples. Il ne faut que découvrir aux perfonnes zélées la mifiere des Hurons & des autres captifs, pour les porter à vne liberalité proportionnée à la pitié qu'ils en auront.

Les Iroquois ont trois fortes de captifs, dont les premiers ayant fubi de leur gré le ioug des vain-queurs, & pris parti parmi eux, font devenus chefs de famille, apres la mort de leurs Maiftres, ou fe font mariez. Quoy qu'ils meinent vne vie afiez douce, ils font confidèrent comme efclaves & priuez de voix active & paffiue aux Confeils publics: Les autres décheus dans l'esclavage apres avoir efté les plus opulents & les plus confidèrent de leurs bourgs, n'ont de leur Maiftre pour recompense de leurs trauaux & de leurs fueurs continuelles, que la nourriture
while before death, seemed to favor that delusion, this rumor, nevertheless, soon disappeared of its own accord, and had no unpleasant consequences.

[148] Thus it is seen that the obstacles are far less than the means which we have for advancing the Faith in those regions. And these means would be more considerable if the compassion and charity of good people were greater; for one of the most important fruits that could be gathered in this country would be the redemption of the Christian captives in the hands of the Iroquois. It would be useful, not only in saving the Souls and the bodies of those poor slaves, but also in converting the Iroquois, who are attracted by such examples. It is only necessary to make known to zealous persons the misery endured by the Huron and other captives, to induce them to display a liberality equal to the pity that they will feel for them.

The Iroquois have three classes of captives. The first are those who, having willingly submitted to the yoke of the conquerors and elected to remain among them, have become heads of families after the deaths of their Masters, or have married. Although they lead a tolerably easy life, they are looked upon as slaves, and have no voice, either active or passive, in the public Councils. The [149] second class are those who have fallen into slavery after having been the richest and the most esteemed in their own villages, and who receive no other reward from their Masters, in exchange for their ceaseless labor and sweat, than food and shelter. But the fate of the third class is much more deplorable; it consists chiefly of young women or girls, who, because they have not yet found a husband among the Iroquois, are constantly exposed to the danger of losing their honors or their lives through the brutal lechery or cruelty of their Masters or Mistresses. Every moment is one of dread for them; their rest is never free from anxiety and danger; the only punishment for even their slightest faults is death; and their most harmless and most holy actions may be considered as faults. When a Barbarian has split the head of his slave with a hatchet, they say: "It is a dead dog; there is nothing to be done but to cast it upon the dunghill." Thus a poor Christian captive called Magdelaine, afflicted with a consumptive disease, was cured by her Mistress, who killed her with as much inhumanity as she had previously manifested kindness toward her, when she adopted her as her mother. We have but too many examples of this nature. May God be pleased so to excite the compassion of those upon whom he has conferred an abundance of earthly goods, in order that they may acquire heavenly blessings, that, their liberality having delivered those poor captives from so great and such manifest dangers, we may be unable in the coming years to relate similar instances.
& le couVERT. Mais le fort des derniers est bien plus déplorable: ce sont la plupart des jeunes femmes ou filles, lesquelles n'ayant peu trouver party parmi les Iroquois, sont incesfamment exposées au danger de perdre l'honneur ou la vie par la lubricité brutale, ou par la cruauté de leurs Maîtres ou de leurs Maîtresses. Tous les moments leur font à craindre; leur repos n'est jamais sans inquiétude & sans danger, leurs moindres fautes n'ont point d'autre châtiment que la mort; & leurs actions les plus innocentes & les plus sainctes peuvent passer pour fautes: Quand vn Barbare a fendu la teste à fon éclaude d'un coup de hache, c'est vn chien mort, dit-on, il ne faut que le jeter à la voirie. C'est ainsi qu'une pauvre Chrétienne captive appelée Magdelaine fut guerir d'une maladie qui la faifoit languir, par sa Maîtresse, qui la massacra avec autant d'inhumanité qu'elle auroit auparavant fait paroiftre de bonté, en l'adoptant pour sa mere. Nous n'aurons que trop d'exemples de cette nature, & Dieu veuille tellement exciter la compassion de ceux à qui il a fait largefse des biens de la terre pour acquérir ceux du ciel, que leur liberalité tirant ces pauvres captifs de ces dangers si grands & si manifestes, nous ne puiffions plus les années prochaines en raconter de semblables.

DES PREMIERES SEMENCES DE LA FOY PARMI LES IROQUOIS.

QVOY que les deux Peres qui hyuernerent à Onnontaghé dès l’année 1656, y fuffent allez comme Ambaffadeurs, pluftoft que comme Predicateurs de l’Euangile: ils ne laifferent pas dés-lors de ietter les diuines femences dans ces terres en friche, & de les diſpofer à faire la paix avec Dieu, en les portant [151] à fe reconcilier avec les hommes. Ils fe feruient de la facilité qu’ils trouuuerent de pouuoir fans choquer les efprits, enseigner la doctrine Chreftienne, faire les prieres dans vne petite Cha- pelle, & baptifer les enfans. Mais ils n’vfoient que moderément de leur zele, pour gaigner les occasions de l’exercer par apres avec plus de liberté, & ouvrir vne plus grande porte à l’Euangile, en moyennant l’accord avec les François.

Ce fut donc l’Esté fuiuant que les Peres s’estant establis, declarerent ouuertement la guerre à l’Infi- delité non feulement dans Onnontaghé, mais auffi dans tous les autres pays des Iroquois, où ils ont peu auoir accez. En forte que feize ou dix-fept Nations differentes de pays, de mœurs & de langage, auf- quelles ils ont porté le flambeau de la Foy, ont ouuert les yeux aux veritez qu’ils leur ont annoncées: & Dieu qui a ramaffé de quatre cens lieuës loin des enuirons ces captifs de plusieurs nations pour leur

OF THE FIRST SEEDS OF THE FAITH SOWN AMONG THE IROQUOIS.

ALTHOUGH the two Fathers who passed the winter at Onnontaghé in the year 1656 had gone there as Ambassadors rather than as Preachers of the Gospel, they did not fail from that very moment to sow the divine seed in those uncultivated lands, and to dispose them to make peace with God by inducing them [151] to become reconciled with men. They took advantage of the facility with which, without offending them, they could teach the Christian doctrine, hold prayers in a small Chapel, and baptize the children. But they exercised their zeal only with moderation, in order to obtain afterward opportunities of displaying it more freely, and of opening a wider door to the Gospel by procuring peace with the French.

Therefore, in the following Summer, after the Fathers were established, they openly declared war against Paganism, not only in Onnontaghé, but also in all the other Iroquois countries to which they could obtain access. Sixteen or seventeen Nations, differing in country, in customs, and in language, to whom they bore the light of the Faith, have opened their eyes to the truths that were preached to them. And God, who has, from a distance of four hundred leagues around, gathered those captives of various nations to make them share the freedom of his faire part de la liberté de ses enfants, leur rend l'Iroquois, qui est la langue feule dans laquelle on les préfche, [152] assez intelligible pour en être instruits dans nos mystères.

Mais on remarque dans les Onnontagheeronnons plus de ferueur que dans tous les autres, & plus d'inclination pour le Christianisme, auquel ils se maintiennent avec autant de constance qu'ils ont eu de zèle en s'y attachant; les menaces & la crainte de la mort ne les en pouvant séparer. Ainsi une fille des plus considérables d'Onnontaghe, qui est fort malade, méprisant les discours d'une méchante femme, qui vouloit luy persuader que son baptême ayant causé sa maladie, les visites de la Robe noire acheueroient de la faire mourir; attendit à déclarer au Père cette tentation, après avoir reçu ses Instructions & acheué ses prières.

Une captive Huronne nommée Therefe, qui auit deuant son esclavage esté de bonne famille, & tenu rang de Princeffe, fit encore paroifiere plus de générosité, lors qu'une indisposition ne luy ayant pas permis d'obeir au commandement que son Maistre luy auit fait d'aller querir de la viande à une journée [153] loin, & attendant d'heure en heure le coup de la mort, dont le Barbare furieux l'auoit menacée, & dont elle sembloit si affeuree, que chacun la consideroit déjà comme morte; elle eut tant de courage & de confiance en nos mystères, qu'après s'estre confesée avec les sentiments d'une Amé tout à fait Chrétienne, elle s'en alla aussitôt pleine de joie trouver son tyran & le prier qu'il haftast la mort qu'il luy auit destinee, puis qu'il ne luy pouuoit rendre un meilleur office. Le Barbare furpris aussì bien que children, renders the Iroquois language, the only one in which we preach, [152] sufficiently intelligible to them to enable them to be instructed in our mysteries.

But we observe in the Onnontagheronnonns more fervor and a greater leaning toward Christianity than in all the others, and they are as constant in the faith as they were zealous in attaching themselves to it. Threats and the fear of death could not sever them from it. Thus the daughter of one of the notables of Onnontaghé, when very ill, refused to listen to a wicked woman who tried to persuade her that, as her baptism had caused her illness, the visits of the black Gown would accomplish her death; she waited to tell the Father of that temptation, until she had received his Instructions and finished her prayers.

A Huron captive named Therese—who before her slavery had belonged to a good family, and had held the rank of Princess—manifested still greater courage. An indisposition prevented her from fulfilling a command of her Master, namely, to go and bring some meat from a distance of a day’s journey. [153] She awaited from hour to hour the death-blow with which the furious Barbarian had threatened her, and which she was so sure to receive that every one already looked upon her as dead. Such was her courage, and her confidence in our mysteries, that, after confessing herself with all the sentiments of a truly Christian Soul, she went at once full of joy to her tyrant, and begged him to hasten the death that he had intended for her, because he could not render her a better service. The Barbarian, as well as all those who were present, was surprised at such boldness; and from that moment he felt more shame for tous les affîstans de cette hardieffe, eut dés lors plus de confusion de fon mauvais defsein que d’enuie de l’executeur: tant la magnanimité Christienne a d’ascendant fur les esprits.

Il n’est pas croyable combien les exemples de generofite font puiffants pour gagner ces Infidelles. La hardieffe que les Peres qui les instruifent témoignent, alant fans changer de vifage dans les bourgs & les cabanes, où on leur dit que la mort & les supplices les attendent; caufe autant de fruiét dans les Ames que d’admiration dans les esprits, [154] & a eu tant de pouvoir fur les cœurs des Anciens & des Capit-taines, qui témoignoient au commencement toute l’indifference poffible pour nos myfteres, qu’il y en a maintenant quelques-vns d’entre eux; Catechumenes cachez, & quelques autres qui font profession ouverte de la Foy, fans qu’aucun d’eux s’oppofe au progrez de l’Euangile. Il eft vray que l’exemple funefte de Hondiatarafe doit les en deftourner. Ce pauure mal-heureux eftoit vn homme d’esprit & d’intrigue, qui faifoit vne partie des affaires du pays, parloit le mieux dans les Confeils, & auoit feul d’entre tous les Anciens osé s’opposer ouvertement à l’Euagile, entre en difpute fur nos myfteres, & deffendre les Fables du pays. Mais Dieu fceu bien renuerfer cet obstacle de fa gloire, & punir les blasphemes de cet infolent. Vn fien nueu qui croioit en auoir receu quelque iniure luy fendit la teste d’un coup de hache, aufi lieu mefme où on deuoit planter la Croix qu’il vouloit renuerfer, & au temps que les Peres partoient de Kebec, pour y venir eftablir leur demeure.

[155] Si Dieu a fait paroifte fa luftice en cet exemple, il a fait voir fa mifericorde infinie en plusieurs his evil design than desire to carry it out. So great is the ascendency that Christian magnanimity has over minds.

It is incredible what a powerful effect examples of courage have in winning over these Infidels. The bravery displayed by the Fathers who teach them—going, without changing countenance, into villages and cabins, where they are told that death and torture await them—produces as much fruit in their Souls as admiration in their minds. [154] It has made so deep an impression on the hearts of the Elders and Captains,—who, at the outset, manifested every possible indifference to our mysteries,—that now some of them are Catechumens in secret, and others openly profess the Faith, while not one of them opposes the progress of the Gospel. It is true, the fatal example of Hondiatarase serves them as a warning. That poor wretch was a man of ability and intrigue; he had charge of a portion of the affairs of the country, and spoke best in the Councils; he alone, among all the Elders, had ventured openly to oppose the Gospel, to enter into a dispute about our mysteries, and to defend the Myths of the country. But God knew how to remove that obstacle to his glory, and how to punish the blasphemies of that insolent man. A nephew of his, who believed himself injured by him, split his head with a hatchet, on the very spot where we were to erect the Cross that he wished to overthrow, and at the very moment when the Fathers started from Kebec to come and establish their residence here.

[155] If God has manifested his Justice in that instance, he has displayed his infinite mercy in many others. For a long while the Father could produce autres. Le Pere ne pouvant rien depuis longtemps fur l'esprit d'une femme superbe & hautaine aussi difficile à convertir que son frère Jean-Baptiste Achiongeras s'était montré docile aux lumières de l'Evangile, ayant eu l'honneur d'être le premier Chrestien de son pays: il eut recours à Sainte Magde-laïne avec tant de succès, que la Pechereffe convertie dès le second jour de la neufuaine, venant demander le Baptesme, y recevut le nom de sa bien-faictrice.

Le même Pere ayant aduïs qu'une Huronne Chretienne fort malade estoit depuis vingt quatre jours dans le milieu d'un bois où elle auroit été conduite par quelques personnes qui luy estoient afectionnées, pour la sauuer de la cruauté de son Maître; il s'y transporta aussitôt & n'y trouua pas la Chrestienne, mais une autre pauvre femme Infidelle aussi fort malade, qu'il luy fut si aisé de convertir & d'instruire, qu'elle demanda & recue aussitôt le Baptesme.

[156] Heureuse! d'avoir fait une rencontre si impre-ueuë de la vie de l'âme deux jours avant sa mort corporelle, & d'avoir appris si à propos le moyen de reparer la petite perte qu'elle alloit faire, par le gain du plus grand threfor, ou plustoit de l'vnique threfor qui foit au monde.

Une autre pauvre femme de la Nation des Chats, condamnée par ses Maîtres à être delivrée par une guerison d'âme pour guérir d'une hydropise dont elle estoit travaillée depuis quelque temps, recue prenque à même temps la guerifon du corps & de l'âme; car e une de ses parentes ayant prié le Pere de l'aller voir, il la deliura du danger de sa maladie & de la cruauté de ses Maîtres, la guerissant en deux heures, en luy faisant prendre des pignons d'Inde, & laDisposable en fuite au Baptesme.
no effect on the mind of a proud and haughty woman, who was as difficult to convert as her brother Jean Baptiste Achiongeras had proved docile to the light of the Gospel,—he who had had the honor of being the first Christian of his country. He had recourse to Saint Magdalene with such success that, on the second day of the novena, the converted Sinner came to ask for Baptism, and received the name of her benefactress.

The same Father learned that a Christian Huron woman, who was very ill, had been for twenty-four days in the midst of a wood; she had been taken thither by some persons who had an affection for her, to save her from the cruelty of her Master. He proceeded there at once, and found, not the Christian, but another, a poor Pagan woman, also very ill, who was so easily instructed and converted that she asked for and at once received Baptism. [156] Happy was she to find so unexpectedly the life of the soul two days before the death of the body; and to learn so opportunely the means of retrieving the slight loss which she was about to experience by gaining the greatest, or rather the only, treasure in the world.

Another poor woman, of the Cat Nation, was condemned by her Masters to be delivered by a bloody death from a kind of dropsy that had afflicted her for some time. Her body and her Soul were cured almost simultaneously. One of her relatives begged the Father to go and see her, and he delivered her from the danger of her illness and the cruelty of her Masters; he cured her in two hours, by making her take some pignons d’Inde, and then by preparing her for Baptism.
Dieu qui tourne tout à l'avantage de ses Eleyz, fe seruit d'une façon aussi admirable de la curiosité d'une femme d'Onnontaghé, laquelle ne s'estant transportée à Gannentaa que pour voir nos Franços, entra par rencontre dans [157] la maison avec les Catechumenes, & prenant part aux petites charitez que nous y faisons, en prit encore dauantage à nos Instrutions: en forte qu'elle présenta sa fille pour être baptisée, & demanda à prier Dieu parmy les Catechumenes.
God, who turns all things to the advantage of his Elect, used in as admirable a manner the curiosity of a woman of Onnontaghé. She went to Gannentaa solely to see our French people and entered, by chance, [157] the house with the Catechumens; she participated in the little charities that we practice there, and still more in our Instructions. Thus it happened, at length, that she brought her daughter to be baptized, and asked to be allowed to pray to God among the Catechumens.
CHAPITRE XVI.

DE LA PUBLICATION DE LA FOY AUX IROQUOIS OIO-GOENHRONNONS.

IANT adopté incontinent après noître arrivée au pays, les Onmontagehronnons pour frères, & les Oiogoenhronnons, & les Onneioutheronnons pour enfants, il fallut pour garder les formes de cette alliance, nous transporter chez eux, pour leur faire nos prefens; ainsi que nous ferons obligez de faire tous les ans, pour leur rendre noître parenté plus utile & plus souhaitable. Cette nécessité ne nous peut être que tres-agreable, puis qu'elle nous fournit les moyens de leur annoncer [158] l'Euangile en leur faifiant nos prefents, ainsi que nous avons heureusement commencé.

Ce fut à ce deffein que les Peres Chaumont & Menart partirent sur la fin du mois d'Aouft de l'année 1656. pour Oiogoen, où estant arriuez deux iours apres, & y ayant fait quelque feiour, le Pere Chau-mont en partit pour Sonnontoüan, y laissant le Pere Menart, qui travaaille aux fondemens de cette Eglife naissante. Voici ce qu'il nous en mande.

L'auerfion de la Foy & de nos perfonnes que les Hurons auoient donné aux naturels du pays, leur perfluadant que nous portions auec nous la maladie & le malheur du pays où nous entriions, nous fit ici receuoir auec vn accueil aflez froid, & rendit mépri-sables les prefens que nous fîmes pour la Foy. Cependant les Anciens qui pour leur interef temporel
CHAPTER XVI.

OF THE PREACHING OF THE FAITH TO THE OIOGOEN-HRONNON IROQUOIS.

Immediately after our arrival in the country, we had adopted the Onnontagehronnons as brothers, and the Oiogoenhronnons and Onneiouthronnons as children; and, in order to observe the forms of that alliance, we had to go to their land to give them our presents. We shall be obliged to do so every year, to make our kinship more useful and more desirable to them. This necessity can only be most agreeable to us, because it gives us the means of preaching [158] the Gospel to them while giving them our presents, as we have happily commenced to do.

With that object in view, Fathers Chaumont and Menart started, at about the end of August of the year 1656, for Oiogoen, where they arrived two days later. After remaining there some time, Father Chaumont went to Sonnontouan, leaving at the former place Father Menart, who is working at the foundation of that nascent Church. This is what he writes us about it.

"The aversion to the Faith and to our persons that the Hurons had excited in the minds of the natives of the country, by leading them to believe that we carried disease and misfortune into every region that we entered, caused us to be received with a rather cold welcome, and the presents which we ne vouloient pas rompre avec nous, croyant que l'effay de la Foy ne feroit pas dangereux fur la vie de leurs esclaues, nous firent bâfîr quatre iours aprés noître arriée vne Chapelle, à laquelle ils s'emplöyèrent eux-mêmes [159] de telle forte, qu'elle fut en deux iours en etat d'y receuoir les Chrestiens. L'ayant tapiffée des plus belles nattes, i'y expofé l'Image de noître Seigneur, & celle de Noître-Dame : Ce fut vn ëspectacle dont la nouueauté furprit si fort nos Barbares, qu'ils venoient en foule pour le confiderer, & remarquer le vifage & l'action des deux Images. I'eus fans cefte alors occasion de leur expli-

er nos mysteres, lors qu'ils me faifoient diuerfes queftions fur les Images, en forte que ie ne faifois chaque iour qu'vn Catechifme, qui duroit depuis le matin iufqu'au foir. Ce qui appriuoïa les esprits de telle forte, que nous eufmes en peu de iours pluieurs Neophytes, non feulemente des Hurons & des esclaues, mais aussî des naturels du pays.

Plusieurs m'apportoient leurs enfans pour les baptifier, & m'aïdoient à leur apprendre les Prieres en les leur repetant aucc moy: Et la grace fit en peu de temps de si merueilleux changemens, que les petits enfans qui m'auoient au commencement pour le plus ordinaire [160] objet de leurs railleries & de leurs huées, me rendoient par apres les offices de bons Anges, me conduîfant dans les cabanes, m'attendant aux lieux où ie m'arreftois; & me difant les noms des enfans que ie baptïfois, aussî bien que ceux de leurs parens; ce que ces Barbares ont coutilume de nous celer foigneusement, croiant que nous escriuons leurs noms, pour les auoir en France, & y procurer leur mort par magie.
gave for the Faith to be despised. However, the Elders—who from motives of temporal interest did not wish to break with us, and who thought that a trial of the Faith would not be dangerous to the lives of their slaves—caused, four days after our arrival, a Chapel to be built. They themselves worked at it so assiduously that in two days it was finished and in a condition to receive the Christians. After having carpeted it with the finest mats, I hung up in it the Picture of our Lord and that of Our Lady. The novelty of the spectacle so astonished the Barbarians, that they came in crowds to gaze at it, and to observe the faces and the expression of the two Pictures. I then had continual opportunities of explaining our mysteries to them, as they asked various questions about the Pictures; in fact, I held but one Catechism each day, which lasted from morning till night. This so familiarized their minds that in a few days we had several Neophytes, not only among the Hurons and the slaves, but also among the natives of the country.

"Many brought me their children to be baptized, and assisted me in teaching them their Prayers by repeating them with me. In a short time, grace produced such a wonderful change that the little children, who at the beginning generally made me the butt of their jests and hootings, afterward rendered me the services of good Angels. They introduced me into the cabins; they waited for me at the places where I stopped, and they told me the names of the children whom I baptized, as well as those of their parents. These names the Barbarians are in the habit of carefully concealing from us, because they think that we write them down to send
La prouvidence de Dieu me pourueut de trois Maiftres excellens pour apprendre la langue: ils esfoient tous trois freres, originaires du pays, & d'vn excellent naturel: la bonté avec laquelle ils m'inuitoient fouuent chez eux, & la patience & l'affiduité avec laquelle ils m'instruiifoient, me mirent bien-toft en etat de les instruire eux mesmes, & de leur apprendre nos myfteres, en leur faifant voir quelques Images, dont ils esfoient curieux au possible.

Le premier adulte que ie iugé capable du Baptême, fut vn vieillard âgé de quatre-vingts ans, lequel ayant esté touché de Dieu, en m'entendant instruire [161] vn Chrêftien, me fit appeller deux iours apres, eftant, ce fembloit malade à l'extremité. Ie ne fis pas de difficulté de luy accorder le Baptême, trouuant en luy toutes les dispositions d'une Ame choiffée pour le ciel, au chemin duquel il a encore eu depuis loisir de fe dispofer.

Le fecond que ie baptifay, fut vn estropiat qui auoit le visage couuert d'vn chancre, qui faifoit horreur à la veue. Ce pauvre afflige receut ma visite avec autant de ioye qu'il fauoit souhaitée avec ardeur, & s'appliqua de fi bonne forte à retenir les prieres & les instructions; que ie luy conferay peu de temps apres le Baptême dans noftre Chapelle. Peut-eftre que ces graces que Dieu luy a fait, fon des fruict de la charité qu'il eut autresfois pour les Peres Brebeuf & l'Allemand. Il m'a dit qu'il auoit esté téftmoin de leur mort, & que s'estant acquis du credit par fa vaillance parmy fes compatriotes en cette iournée, où il auoit tué huiët Hurons de fa main, & en auoit fait cinq autres prifonniers, il auoit eu compassion de ces [162] deux Peres captifs; & them to France and there procure their death by magic.

"God's providence supplied me with three very good Masters for learning their language. They were three brothers, natives of the country, and of excellent character. The kindness with which they frequently asked me to their homes, and the patience and assiduity with which they taught me, soon enabled me to instruct them, and to teach them our mysteries by showing them some Pictures, about which they evinced the greatest possible curiosity.

"The first adult whom I deemed worthy of Baptism was an old man eighty years of age. His heart was touched by God on hearing me instruct a Christian, and he sent for me two days afterward,—being, it seemed, sick unto death. I did not hesitate to administer Baptism to him; for I found in him all the dispositions of a Soul destined to heaven, on the road to which he still has some leisure to prepare himself.

"The second whom I baptized was a maimed warrior, whose face was covered with a canker horrible to look at. This poor afflicted man received my visit with as much joy as he had ardently desired it, and applied himself so well to learning the prayers and the instructions that I shortly afterward administered Baptism to him in our Chapel. Perhaps the graces that God has granted to him are the fruits of the charity that he formerly displayed toward Fathers Brebeuf and l'Allemant. He told me that he had been an eye-witness of their death; that—as he had acquired some influence among his countrymen by his bravery on that day, having killed eight Hurons with his own hand, and made five others qu'il les avoit obtenu des Anniehronnons moyennant deux beaux colliers de Pourcelaine, à dessein de nous les renuoyer; mais que bien-toit après on luy avoit rendu ces présents, pour retirer les deux prisonniers, & les brûler avec toute la fureur imaginable.

Ce pauvre Lazare que j'ay ainsi nommé au Baptême, est fort considéré dans le bourg, & le premier appuy que Dieu a voulu donner à cette petite Eglise, qu'il augmente fans cesse, en attirant d'autres à la Foy, par la fureur de ses discours & de ses exemples.

L'ennemi de l'Evangile ne pouvant en souffrir les progres, n'a pas manqué de calomnies pour les troubler. On accuse notre Foy d'etre homicide de tous ceux qui la professent: & la mort de quelques Chrétiens d'Onnontagé ayant fery d'occasion à cette erreur des Barbares, le discours qu'un Capitaine ennemi de notre Religion fit dans vne assemblée sort à les abuser daunantage: en forte que non seulement plusieurs des naturels du pays, iugeant qu'il [163] estoit plus feur de croire ce qu'il disoit cet homme d'autorité parmi eux, que d'ajouter luy à l'expérience toute contraire, dont il fuft diminué: mais encore on accusoit la Foy des Françoys de tous les maux dont le public ou les particuliers sembloient estre affligés. C'est ce qu'un Apostat tafchoit de perfuader à ces Barbares, nommant les Hollandois pour les garans de ce qu'il disoit, quand il affeurroit que les enfans des Iroquois mouroient deux ans apres leur Baptême, & que les Chrétiens, ou fe rompoient prisoners—he had had compassion on the [162] two captive Fathers, and had obtained them from the Anniechronnons in exchange for two fine collars of Porcelain beads, with the view of sending them back to us; but that soon afterward they had returned him his presents, had taken the two prisoners from him, and had burned them with all the fury imaginable.

"That poor Lazarus, whom I so named in Baptism, is highly respected in the village, and is the first prop that God has been pleased to give to this little Church, which is constantly increasing, for he attracts others to the Faith by the fervor of his discourses and of his example.

"The enemy of the Gospel, who cannot bear to witness its progress, has not failed to assail it with calumnies, in order to arrest its course. Our Faith is accused of killing all who profess it. The death of some Christians of Onnontage gave rise to this delusion on the part of the Barbarians, and a speech delivered at a meeting by a Captain who is hostile to our Religion served to mislead them still more. Hence, not only did some natives of the country—who considered it [163] safer to believe that man in authority among them, than to place any faith in the quite contrary experience of our old Hurons—not only did they beg me to excuse them from attending the prayers until their dread of me should decrease; but they also accused the Faith of the French of being responsible for all the ills with which the whole people or individual persons seemed to be afflicted. That is what an Apostate tried to make those Barbarians believe, naming the Dutch as his authority for what he said. He asserted that the children of the Iroquois died two years after their la iambe, ou fe bleffoient le pied d'une espine, ou deuenoient ethiques, ou vomisfoient l'ame avec le sang, ou estoient attaquez de quelque autre malheur insigne.

Si nofotre reputation est ici maltraitee, nofotre vie n'y est pas plus en feurete. Un guerrier de ma connoiffance etant venu loger dans nofotre cabane, ne nous donna pas peu d'exercice: car [164] etant entre trois nuits de fuite dans une espece de possession qui le rendoit furieux, il témoignoit en vouloir à ma vie, & il m'euff sans doute mal-traite, s'il n'en euff efté empefché par nofotre hofte.

Le fus menacé de la mort d'une facon plus fiere par vn ieune homme, lequel apres m'auoir entendu instruire vn Catechumene fort malade, que ie voulois disposer à la mort; me dit que l'eftois vn Sorcier dont il fe falloit deffaire, que ie faisoi viure & mourir qui ie voulois, & qu'il m'eftoit auflï facile de guerir cet homme que de le mener au ciel. Ce reproche n'eftoit-il pas agreable?

Toutes ces difficultez que le Diable nous fufcite n'empefchent pas neantmoins que la Foy n'acquiere de iour en iour plus de credit parmi les peuples, que ie ne fois par tout bien efcouté, que nofetre Chapelle ne fe rempliffe de Catechumenes, & qu'enfin ie n'aye baptisé tous les iours des enfans ou des adultes.

Voilà ce que nous a mandé le Pere qui eut alors foin de cette Mission pendant [165] deux mois, & qui fut obligé de la quitter pour retourner ioudre fes travaux à ceux de deux autres Peres à Onnontaghé, où ils establissent le fondement & le Seminaire de toutes les autres Missions des Iroquois.

Mais depuis ce temps là mefme le Pere y eftant
Baptism, and that the Christians either fractured their legs, or wounded their feet with thorns, or became consumptive, or vomited their souls with their blood, or were assailed by some other great misfortune.

"If our reputation be attacked here, our life is in no greater security. A warrior of my acquaintance, coming to lodge in our cabin, gave us no little trouble. [164] On three successive nights he became possessed in some way, and fell into a frenzy; he manifested an inclination to take my life, and would without doubt have done me an injury, had he not been prevented by my host.

"I was threatened with a still nobler death than this. A young man, after hearing me instruct a Catechumen who was very ill, and whom I wished to prepare for death, told me that I was a Sorcerer who should be got rid of; that I gave life or death to whomsoever I wished; and that it was as easy for me to cure that man as it was to lead him to heaven. Was not that reproach an agreeable one?

"All these obstacles that the Devil raises up against us do not, however, prevent the Faith from daily acquiring more credit among these peoples. I am listened to attentively everywhere, our Chapel is filled with Catechumens, and, finally, I daily baptize both children and adults."

That is what was written to us by the Father who then had charge of that Mission for [165] two months. He was compelled to leave it, to return and unite his labors to those of the two other Fathers at Onnontaghé, where they are establishing the foundation and the Seminary of all the other Iroquois Missions.

But, since that time, the Father has gone back retourné accompagné de cinq ou six Français, & du plus considérable du Bourg, qui l’estoit venu prier de retourner chez eux, il y fut receu avec tout l’accueil imaginable. Ayant trouué la Chapelle en même état qu’il l’avoit laissée, il y fit commencer les prières le jour de son arriuée, & les nouveaux Chrétiens & les Catechumènes firent bien-toit paroïtre tant de zèle, que le Père eçrit que cette Eglise n’est pas moindre dans sa naissance que celle d’Ommontaghé.
there, accompanied by five or six Frenchmen and by the most notable man of the Village, who had come and begged him to return among them. He was received with the warmest welcome imaginable. He found the Chapel in the same condition as he had left it; and on the very day of his arrival he began to hold prayers in it. The new Christians and Catechumens soon manifested so much zeal, that, as the Father writes us, that Church is not less vigorous in its birth than that of Onnontaghé.
This is a letter of Paul le Jeune, ended in March, 1657 (no place given, but doubtless Paris), to the mother superior of the Hôtel-Dieu at Quebec. The original MS. rests in the archives of St. Mary's College, Montreal; and this we follow in the present publication.

For bibliography of the Journal des Jésuites, see our Vol. XXVII.

In reprinting the Relation of 1656–57 (Paris, 1658), we follow a copy of the original Cramoisy edition in the Lenox Library. This volume was edited by Paul le Jeune. In his preliminary epistle he says that Jean de Quen, as superior of the New France missions, had sent over an annual report; but that the vessel which bore it was captured by the Spaniards, who threw overboard all the letters they found. Le Jeune, however, had previously had some advance sheets from De Quen. He, therefore, collected as much of the materials as he could recover, which, with the addition of some other unpublished memoirs of the previous year, form the contents of the present Relation.

Le Jeune's editorial letter to the Provincial, Louis
Cellot, is dated "Au College de Clermont ce 1. de Decembre 1657." The "Privilege" for the volume was "Donné à Paris le 3. Decembre 1657;" and the "Permision" was issued "A Paris, le 28. Decembre 1656," though in reality only repeating the date of the permission of the preceding annual. Chapter xx. contains a letter from François le Mercier to the Provincial, dated "A Monreal ce 6. Juin 1656," which was, in fact, a belated part of the preceding year's report. Chap. xxi. contains a letter from Paul Ragueneau, dated on p. 202, "Du chemin de Kebec à Onontaghé ce 9. d'Aoufl 1657." This latter piece was received while the last sheet of the Relation was in press. The volume is mentioned in no. 110 of Harrisse's Notes.

Collation: Title, with verso blank, 1 leaf; Le Jeune's editorial letter, pp. (6); "Table des Chapitres," pp. (2); "Privilege," with "Permision" on the verso, 1 leaf; text, pp. 1-211, with the verso of p. 211 blank. Signatures: a in four, e in two, A-N in eights, O in two. No mispaging.

Copies of this Relation are in the following libraries: Lenox, Harvard, New York State Library, Brown (private), Ayer (private), Library of Parliament (Ottawa), Laval University (Quebec), British Museum, and Bibliothèque Nationale (Paris). It has been sold or priced as follows: Harrassowitz (1882), no. 39, priced at 125 marks; O'Callaghan (1882), no. 1238, sold for $50, and had cost him $32.50 in gold; Barlow (1890), nos. 1306 and 1307, sold for $12 and $9, respectively; and Dufossé, priced in 1891 and 1892 at 150 and 190 francs.
NOTES TO VOL. XLIII

(Figures in parentheses, following number of note, refer to pages of English text.)

1 (p. 31).—This nun was Françoise Giffard, aged twenty-three years (Quebec ed. of Journal, p. 207, note).

2 (p. 35).—Pierre Duval, born in 1604, came to Canada with his family, including his wife and six children; of these, two were drowned, and one slain by the Iroquois. The date of his death is not recorded.

3 (p. 35).—Regarding this voyage of Bourdon, see vol. xi., note 11. Its date has been given by various writers as 1656; but the statement of the Journal in our text, with other evidence, corrects that error. The subject has been carefully investigated by J. E. Roy; see his excellent paper in Bulletin des Recherches Historiques, vol. ii. (1896), pp. 2-9, 21-23—also published in separate form (Lévis, Que., 1896).

4 (p. 37).—Pierre Miville (as the name is given in the Notre-Dame registers), a native of La Rochelle, brought his family to Canada before 1640; he died at Quebec in October, 1669. Tanguay mentions him as captain (presumably of militia) of Côte Lauson.

5 (p. 41).—Jean Lemire, born in 1626, near Rouen, married (October, 1653) at Quebec, Louise, daughter of Nicolas Marsolet (vol. v., note 35); she was then thirteen years old; they had sixteen children. Lemire was elected syndic of Quebec, in 1664, and again in 1667; he died in October, 1684.

6 (p. 41).—"After this phrase, in the original, a space of four or five lines is left blank. Father de Quen doubtless intended to insert therein the Huron's reply, and the signification of his two presents."—Quebec ed. of Journal, p. 212, note.

7 (p. 43).—De Mores is but a variant of Du Maure, the seigniorial title of Jean Juchereau (vol. xxvii., note 15).

8 (p. 51).—Batiscan (Baptiskam) is the name of a river traversing Champlain County, Quebec, and discharging into the St. Lawrence; it gives name to the town of Batiscan, 57 miles west of Quebec. The seigniory of Batiscan was granted to the Jesuits in March, 1639, by Abbé de la Ferté of Chateaudun, France; see terms of that concession in Suite’s Canad.-Français, t. ii., p. 69.

9 (p. 53).—Gabriel, abbé de Queylus (Kélus), had been an associate of Olier at Vaugirard (vol. xxi., p. 312) and became a prominent member of the Sulpitian community, founded by Olier. He did much to improve its discipline, also to establish ecclesiastical reform in various parts of Languedoc. The Associates of Montreal desired his appointment as bishop of Canada; but the greater influence of the Jesuits secured that dignity for Laval. The Associates also preferred a secular clergy at Montreal, and obtained from Olier four Sulpitians, of whom De Queylus was appointed superior. Just before their departure for Canada, Olier died (Apr. 2, 1657). They asked, and obtained, from the archbishop of Rouen the powers and authority commonly granted to missionaries in Canada; but he also appointed De Queylus his representative and grand vicar for all New France. The abbé’s attempt to enforce the authority thus granted occasioned, of course, much dissatisfaction to the Jesuits; and the relations between them and the Sulpitians were, in consequence, long unfriendly. For a minute account of this whole affair, see Faillon’s Col. Fran., t. ii., pp. 270–282; and Rochemonteix’s Jésuites, t. ii., pp. 189–231, 277–305. Cf. vol. xvi. of this series, note 5. De Queylus went to France in 1671, intending to return next year to Canada; but his health gave way, and he was obliged to retire from active life. His death occurred at the Sulpitian seminary in Paris, March 20, 1677.

10 (p. 57).—From this point to the end of the next paragraph (September 2–6), the handwriting is that of Druillettes; thereafter, the record is kept by De Quen.

11 (p. 63).—Lambert Closse, a native of Touraine, had come to Montreal with Maisonneuve (1641), and was next to the latter in command of the garrison there, bearing the title of major or sergeant-major. In August, 1657, he married Elizabeth Moyen, by whom he had two daughters, but one of whom survived infancy. Closse received a grant of land at Montreal in 1650. In February, 1662, he was slain by the Iroquois, while aiding some Frenchmen whom they had attacked. He is described by contemporary writers as a man of great uprightness and piety, and a fearless and gallant soldier; his bravery, it was thought, had saved the infant colony of Montreal from destruction by the savages.

12 (p. 67).—“That is, his servant—who, according to the registers of Notre-Dame of Montreal, was called Jacques Noël” (Quebec ed. of Journal, p. 224, note 1).

Nicolas Godet, born (1581) in Perche, was one of the first settlers at Montreal (1641); he brought with him his wife (née Françoise Gadois), and four children. Lands were granted him in 1650. His youngest daughter, Mathurine, at the age of fourteen married (1651) Jean St. Père (St. Pair), a notary, who came to Montreal two years after Godet. Grants of land were made to him in 1650, 1651, and 1654. At his death, he left two young children; a year later, his widow married Jacques Lemoine. Dollier de Casson, in his Histoire du Montréal (Quebec ed., 1871), p. 68, praises St. Père as a man of excellent character, intelligence, and judgment.

13 (p. 69).—Jean de Lauson, governor of Canada, resigned that post before his term of office expired, and, in the autumn of 1656, returned to France. He left the charge of affairs to his son Charles (vol. xxxvii., note 6); but the latter grew weary of such responsibility, and, in September, 1657, sailed for France, leaving the government of the country to Louis d’Ailléboust (vol. xxiii., note 16), Jean de Lauson’s predecessor. In place of the last named, the Viscount d’Argenson was appointed by the king (January, 1657); but he did not arrive at Quebec until July, 1658, until which time D’Ailléboust was acting governor.

It may be added here, that the contention of P. G. Roy in regard to D’Ailléboust’s daughter, mentioned in vol. xxxii., note 18, is sustained by M. Ernest Myrand, in Bull. Rech. Hist., February, 1899, pp. 43–51. He cites documents which show that D’Ailléboust had no children; Tanguay consequently errs in saying that his daughter married De Lauson.

14 (p. 73).—Jean Levasseur (also named Lavigne), born in 1622, came from Rouen to Canada. In 1648, he married Marguerite Richard, by whom he had twelve children. He is mentioned in the text as a sergeant; by Tanguay, as a bailiff. In January, 1664, he and two other Montreal habitants obtained from De Lauson the island of St. Paul, near Montreal. Soon afterward, this concession was equally divided between the three; but, in 1669, Lavigne gave his fief to Marie Le Ber. He died in August, 1686.

15 (p. 73).—François d’Alliet, who probably acted as the secretary of De Queylus, was one of the four Sulpitians who arrived in Canada in 1657. He remained there until 1671, when he returned with De Queylus to France.

Louis Théandré Chartier de Lotbinière was born in 1612, of a noble family in Paris. Tanguay traces this family line to the early part of the fourteenth century; there is, he says, no other Canadian stock which can be traced back so far as this one. Louis married (1641) Marie Elizabeth, sister of Mathieu d’Amours (vol. xxx., note 14), by whom he had two children. He was one of the Tadoussac trading company in 1663; and, in the following year, was appointed procuror-general by De Mézy. He is also mentioned in the census of 1667 as lieutenant-general, civil and criminal, for the seneschal of Quebec. Chartier was granted lands in 1662, 1672, and 1685. The first of these concessions was a part of the lands donated to the Récollet missionaries in 1620, located on the St. Charles River (vol. iv., note 22). Upon the return of that order to Canada (1670), Chartier restored to them his share of their lands. It was at his house that "the first ball in Canada" was given, as noted by the Journal (February, 1667). He died in September, 1690.

16 (p. 73).—"The Jesuits, having been given the choice, in 1645, of accepting 6,000 livres, for building a clergy-house upon the church lands [see vol. xlii. of this series, note 28], or of building with their own funds and handing over that amount to the Community of Habitants, preferred the latter alternative; and they did, in fact, pay the 6,000 livres (1655) to the treasurer of the Community. On his arrival, Monsieur the abbé de Queylus, now curé of Quebec, finding himself without a clergy-house, brought suit against the Jesuit Fathers, to compel them to give up to the parish the new dwelling which they had just built, or to pay it the 6,000 livres. They were notified of the interlocutory mandate of the seneschal, as the Journal here indicates, Nov. 22, 1657; and four months later, March 23, 1658, the governor, M. d'Ailleboust, rendered a definite judgment. By it he declared that 'the Community of Habitants was duly made responsible for paying, in release and acquittal of the said Jesuit Fathers, the said sum of six thousand livres; and the agent of the said Community, M. Jean Gloria, was sentenced to pay, in preference to other debts of the said Community, the said sum of six thousand livres, to be employed in the erection of the said clergy-house.'"—Quebec ed. of Journal, p. 226, note.

17 (p. 143).—Zacharie Dupuis, the leader of this expedition, was a native (1608) of Rieux, France. It is not known when he came to Canada. Previous to his departure for Onondaga, he was commandant of the fort at Quebec; in 1670, he was major of the Montreal garrison; and, in 1672, he obtained from the Sulpitians a grant of land below Lachine. He died at Montreal, in June, 1676. In 1668, he had married Jeanne Groisat; there is no record of her death, or of children born to them.

18 (p. 147).—Atoka (atoca, ataca; toca, Sagard): the common cranberry (Vaccinium macrocarpon, Gray), still known to the French Canadians by its Indian name. It is figured and described by Charlevoix (Plantes Amer., p. 39). Cf. the cerises sans noyau, "cherries without stones," on page 257 of this volume.
19 (p. 257).—The nuts here mentioned are doubtless those of the hickory (Carya, Nutt.).—the "shell-bark" variety (C. alba), or the "pig-nut" (C. glabra), which are sweet; and the "bitternut" or swamp hickory (C. amara), the nuts of which, although intensely bitter, yield excellent oil. See Charlevoix's description of these (Journ. Hist., p. 162). The Indians pounded the kernels to a paste, which they boiled in water; the oil, rising to the top, was skimmed off, and preserved in gourds or in vessels of bark; it was used to enrich and flavor the sagamité and other foods. The sunflower (Helianthus) was prized by the natives for the oil obtained from its seeds, "though among the Northern tribes the oil made from it was not eaten, but was used on the hair."—Carr's "Food of Amer. Indians," Amer. Antiq. Soc. Proc., vol. x., part 1. pp. 171, 172.

20 (p. 259).—The "cherries without stones" refer to the cranberry (note 18, ante). The fruit resembling an apricot is probably the May-apple (Podophyllum peltatum); cf. vol. xiii., note 3. The "apples shaped like a goose's egg" are the fruits of the papaw (Asimina triloba).

The "universal plant" mentioned in our text has not yet been, so far as known, identified; and it seems to have escaped the notice of most botanical writers. The description given in this Relation would indicate, however, the common sassafras (Laurus Sassafras, Linn.; Sassafras officina, Nees.; Sassafras Sassafras, Karsten, and in U. S. Pharmacopœia). It is indigenous in America from Canada to Brazil; in southern latitudes it becomes a tree 30 to 50 feet high, but north of 40° N. lat. it is found as a low shrub, three to five feet high. This consideration will account for the Father's mention of it as "a plant." The sassafras has always been prized for its medicinal virtues; it had been long used by the natives of Florida before the Spanish conquest; upon its discovery by white men, it speedily became a valued drug in Europe, and an important article of commerce from America; and it is still employed to a considerable extent, especially in domestic medicine in the United States. Every part of the tree is used medicinally; for list of these uses, see Rafinesque's Medical Flora (Phila., 1830), vol. ii., p. 235. The bark affords a dye for a handsome and permanent orange color. See the admirable monograph, historical, bibliographical, and practical, on "Sassafras," by Prof. John U. Lloyd, in Pharmaceutical Review, Dec., 1898, pp. 450–459. The sassafras is figured and described by Charlevoix, in Plantes Amer., pp. 9, 10. Thanks are due Prof. L. S. Cheney and Dr. Rodney True, of the University of Wisconsin, for information and suggestions regarding this subject.

21 (p. 261).—In regard to the mineral springs mentioned in the text, the first one has never been exactly identified. By land, it would be about 30 miles from the fort to Auburn; but such a spring would be at least at the base of the limestone rocks, farther north, and probably in the Salina group. The river route, two days' journey, would bring the travelers to the salt springs at Montezuma; and the text seems to imply salt springs highly charged with lime. The sulphureous odor and the milky tinge would be caused by the decomposition of sulphate of lime. There are many small springs of this kind, continually forming calcareous tufa—sometimes encrusting large masses of leaves or moss, and sometimes forming masses of a light, spongy nature, yellow in hue. When wet, these are quite caustic to the touch.

The "burning spring near the Senecas" is in the town of Bristol, Ontario County, half-way between Canandaigua and Honeoye, where Charlevoix's map locates it as "Fontaine brulante." There are several other carbureted hydrogen gas springs in Ontario County.

The spring "toward the country of the Cats" (Eries) was probably the noted Oil Spring in the town of Cuba, Allegany County, about 50 miles S.W. of the "burning spring." It is on the Oil Spring reservation, and is described as a dirty, stagnant pool, 20 feet in diameter, and without an outlet. A yellowish-brown oil collects on the surface, which is skimmed off. In my younger days, it was well known as "Seneca oil," and was a popular remedy. This spring was so highly esteemed by the Senecas that in their treaties they reserved it, with a square mile of land.

The spring toward Cayuga cannot be satisfactorily identified. There are several magnesian springs, but not located as in the text. I think it was one of the common springs, highly charged with sulphate of lime. John Bartram saw one of these in 1743, at Onondaga; but it was not odorous, being above the gypsum rocks. Cf. allusions to the mineral springs of that region, in Robert Munro's Description of the Genesee Country (N. Y., 1804; reprinted in N. Y. Doc. Hist., vol. ii., pp. 679-689).—W. M. Beauchamp.

Cf. vol. viii. of this series, note 35, regarding the "burning spring."

22 (p. 303).—Pignons d'Inde: the seeds of Jatropha curcas, one of the Euphorbiaceae; physic-nuts, Barbadoes nuts (Eng.), médécinier (Fr.), or Brechnüsse (Ger.). It was introduced from Brazil by the Portuguese, and readily became naturalized in India and other tropical countries. The root, leaves, juice, and the oil of the seeds, are all used for various medicinal purposes. The seeds are actively purgative. See Dymock's Pharmacographica Indica (London, 1893), vol. iii., pp. 274-277; cf. Berg's Pharmacognosie des Pflanzen- und Thierreichs (Berlin, 1879), p. 443.
